The Queen's Bad Deal.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MR. NEIL PETREE, newly elected president of James McCreery & Co., in New York, gave a luncheon yesterday to celebrate completion of the gigantic Empire State Building, a magnificent shaft, trimmed with shining metal, 1,248 feet high, tallest structure on earth. The great newspapermen were there, all three of them, Louis Wiley, Roy Howard and Mr. Dewart.

REMARKS BY former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, guest of honor, head of the Empire State Building enterprise, should persuade the wise to buy and keep good real estate. The Empire State Building, occupying less than one acre, stands on part of the Thompson farm of 20 acres, bought in 1799 for $2,500. The part of an acre on which the magnificent building stands is worth more than $10,000,000. The 20-acre farm would be worth about $200,000,000.

Land does improve in value and real estate opportunities are as good today as when Thompson bought his farm, and better.

THE FRENCH government, to promote its pari mutuel system of race track betting, arranges to take bets not only at the race course, but anywhere in France. Bets can be sent by telegraph or mail. You deposit money in advance, not less than 5,000 francs ($200). And the smallest bet by wire or mail is 50 francs ($2).

All profit goes to the government except purses actually won by the owners of racing horses.

IN THIS COUNTRY we bet on the races at least $10 for every one bet in France, and all the profit goes to bookmakers, race track touts, etc. Similarly in our liquor selling, all the profit goes to bootleggers, racketeers, hijackers and speakeasies.

It used to pay a big profit, with less crime, to the government, as it still pays a great profit with little crime to governments of France, Germany, England and other civilized countries.

BUSINESSMEN plan a fight to change, in a common-sense way, some of the laws that hamper business, and it is none too soon.

Under the obsolete Sherman act, made in the days of hansom cabs, nearly half a century ago, any group of men that should now "conspire" to stop criminal waste in the oil industry, or to regulate any industrial production to prevent slumps or depression, could be put in jail.

IN EUROPE great combinations are encouraged, entire nations go into them. Here we say to businessmen:

"No, you can't make any agreements. You must compete with each other, no matter how disastrously, no matter to what extent you waste or exhaust the nation's resources.

"You can't make any agreement to prevent producing 10 times as much as the people can buy. You must continue forever to run your industries on a haphazard, wastefully competitive basis."

That nonsense should stop.

C. J. STARKEY, lawyer of Hollywood and accustomed to big figures, says Queen Isabella got a poor return when she invested $6,000 worth of jewelry in Columbus' trip to America.

If she then had invested $6,000 at 5 per cent, compounded twice a year, it would amount now to four trillion five hundred billion dollars ($4,500,000,000,000) and that, says Mr. Starkey, is "eleven and one-half times the value of the United States and all its possessions." The figures are impressive, but anyone who would sell the United States now for four and one-half trillions would make a bad bargain.

We have our billionaires, seven of them, and we shall, in due time, have our "trillionaires," if men persist in their foolish pursuit of more money than they need.

MARY PICKFORD, in New York on her way to London, says her will will compel the burning of all films of moving pictures in which she has appeared.

Miss Pickford is still very young. Her will, probably, will not be read for 60 or 70 years at the earliest, and everybody hopes it will be much nearer 100 years. Perhaps, in that interval, she will realize that to destroy pictures, which are a most important part of a great American industry, and illustrate a forward step in civilization, would be a crime.

She made her pictures, she says, to give happiness in her lifetime. She should leave them to give inspiration and information.

THE FORMER Kaiser, now known to Germans as William Hohenzollern, has sued a German recorder of deeds because he refused to record a deed signed "Wilhelm, I. R." The I. R. stands for Imperator, Rex "Emperor, King."

DANTE, IN the infernal regions, found men that he had left alive in Florence. Virgil explained that some particularly bad individuals walk around the earth thinking they are alive, when their souls really are in hell.

Many human beings, as far as anything useful is concerned, have died and don't know it.

WOODWARD DIES AT CAPITAL

Internal Affairs Secretary, McKeesport Man, Failed to Rally From Attack of Flu

HARRISBURG, April 30.—James F. Woodward, 63, of McKeesport, who on next Tuesday was to have retired as secretary of internal affairs, died at his apartment here today. He had been in ill health for some time following an attack of flu last December, which affected his heart.

Mr. Woodward

He was on the road to recovery two weeks ago when a fire swept his apartment. He was out riding at the time of the fire, but suffered a shock on his return, which gave him a setback.

Woodward was rounding out his third term. Next week he was to have been succeeded by Philip H. Dewey, of Tioga County, who was elected last November.

Woodward was born in New Brighton, Beaver County, February 19, 1868. Educated in the Pittsburgh public schools, Woodward also attended the Park Institute, preparatory department of the Western University of Pittsburgh.

After leaving school he spent two years in the office of the

PARK SUPPORTS ARMSTRONG

District Attorney Andrew T. Park today announced his support of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong for re-election.

At a dinner given for Armstrong by the Twelfth Legislative District Committee last night Park, himself a candidate for re-election, assured the political boss that he would not only support him but that 70 employes of his office were working for him. Park's announcement appears to make certain that he and Armstrong will both be on the same slate in the fall campaign.

Other speakers at the dinner, given in Fern Gardens, were Judge W. Heber Dithrich, Congressmen Harry A. Estep and Guy E. Campbell; Attorney Archibald W. Powell, substituting for Controller Robert G. Woodside, who was ill; Burgess Robert Chamberlain, of Dormont, and Burgess Jack Cavanaugh, of Homestead, who is regarded as a possible running mate for Armstrong.

MACARTNEY HITS BIRTH CONTROL

Declares Proposal Will Fail of Passage Here; Assembly Facing Clash

A controversy over adoption of the report of the committee on marriage, divorce and remarriage, when it is presented in the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, here May 28 to June 3, loomed today, it was indicated in the attack upon the report by the Rev. Dr. Clarence E. Macartney, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Macartney said:

"Things certainly have come to a sorry pass when Protestant ministers step in and begin to recommend that ill-favored doctrine of birth control. The Protestant church by these colossal follies is simply digging its own grave."

CLAUDY SIGNER

Declaring that the place for debate is in the General Assembly, the Rev. Dr. J. W. Claudy of the Council of Churches and one of the signers of the report, declined to comment upon Dr. Macartney's attack. He added:

"My views are fully stated in the report of the commission. I am not a prophet of sufficient vision to say whether the report will be adopted or not be adopted."

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Leith, pastor of the Mt. Lebanon Presbyterian Church, predicted that the report would be the subject of a sharp attack when it is submitted at the conclave of Presbyterians here. He said that he saw some justification in the attitude of the advocates of the proposed changes, but said that the church should be slow in taking an advanced stand on the question.

200 Victims Of Brazil Blast

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, April 30. — (AP.) — Half of the four hundred employes in the naval laboratory at Nichtheroy were reported killed or injured today when an explosion wrecked the plant.

As soon as they could get near the place rescuers began removing the mutilated bodies of the dead and carrying out the injured.

PHILLIPS 'FOR FAIR RATES'

HARRISBURG, April 30.—Modern operation of public utilities is based on natural economic law, just as merchandising or other commercial business, Frank R. Phillips, president of the Duquesne Light Company, Pittsburgh, told the House special investigating committee today. He said:

"It's a short-sighted policy to hold up rates. Rates are lowered to stimulate business. We would lower rates in a minute if we saw our way fit, in order to boost business."

UTILITIES WITNESS

Mr. Phillips, connected with a group of subsidiary concerns furnishing service in Pittsburgh and its vicinity, was another witness put forward by the utilities to combat various testimony by the investigators' experts that electric corporations have inflated valua-

Hawks Makes Fast Flight in Ireland

KLAN ISSUE IN GIN PARTY JURY

VALAPARAISO, Ind., April 30.—(AP.)—Bitter clashes between counsel and questioning of veniremen as to membership in the Ku Klux Klan enlivened the second day of Virgil Kirkland's new trial for the murder of Arlene Draves at a Gary party.

Attempts of Defense Counsel Ronald Oldham to quiz prospective jurors on inflicting the death penalty ended in a tilt with prosecutor John Underwood, who contended that the state alone had the right to examine veniremen about the death penalty. Oldham shouted that the state was not sincere in qualifying jurors to send Kirkland to the electric chair.

Of the first 10 examined today, eight were dismissed for holding an opinion and one for serving on a previous criminal jury. Following the question put to jurors and their replies, Kirkland on one occasion conferred with counsel over seating of a venireman.

Ruth Nichols' Mark Accepted Officially

RYE, N. Y., April 30.—(INS.)—Notice that the Federation Aronautique Internationale has recognized and accepted the 28,743 foot altitude mark of Miss Ruth Nichols as a world's record for women, was received at her home here today. She made it on March 6 last at the Jersey City, (N. J.) Airport.

Miss Nichols, who also established a new women's speed record of 210 miles an hour at Detroit recently, is to attempt a trans-Atlantic flight within the next few weeks.

Alfonso Enrolls Son At English College

DARTMOUTH, England, April 30.—(AP.)—Prince Juan of Spain, entered the Royal Naval College here today as a cadet. His father, the former King Alfonso, came with him from Torquay, where they had been visiting Princess Beatrice, the young man's grandmother. Alfonso returned to London after luncheon.

Village Police Too Much for Big Time Crooks

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

It's nothing new. One of the world's great bank robbisters stopped off at a small town about 20 years ago to put the finger on the local community chest.

The town was so small the bank had autumn leaves mixed with its cash. But he tried to tap it anyway. And was picked off the limb by a 12-year-old boy with a squirrel rifle.

Burke and the other boys who lost April decisions in Hickaboola whistle stops might have learned something from another big boy who decided to pick up some unearned increment in a very tiny Ohio settlement.

It was only a few years back. Coming out of the bank with an armful of golden cabbage he was clay-pigeoned by the village barber. How did the big boy know the village razor was the champion rifleman of the Ohio National Guard?

The barber gave him his choice of trump and buried him with military honors. It is proof that the metropolitan gorillas should stick to the high rent districts and leave the excursions to the touring firemen.

We've heard the hamlet police referred to as town clowns and weedbenders. But when it comes to getting their man they have the Royal Canadian police and Peggy Hopkins running second and third.

Mrs. Purdue Dead; City Hospital Matron

FREEDOM, Pa., April 30.—Mrs. Lillian Bell Purdue, 68, for 20 years matron of City Hospital, Pittsburgh, died today at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Cloak.

She was a member of St. James' Memorial Episcopal Church, Pittsburgh.

PILOTS SAVE 8 IN AIR CRASH

ELYRIA, O., April 30.—(AP.)—Two pilots lay in a hospital today badly hurt and their tri-motored air liner was a wreck, but they had saved their eight passengers from all but minor injuries in making a forced landing five miles north of here.

Pilot Sam Taylor and Allen McDiarmid, who was with him at the controls, were flying a National Air Transport ship from Chicago to Cleveland yesterday when, witnesses and passengers agreed, two of the motors went dead. Taylor cooly made sure that all the passengers had their life belts fixed and then started to bring the plane down.

The left wing caught in the top of a small tree, whirling it around and against telephone wires before it landed in a barnyard. All but one wing and the passenger compartment was destroyed, but the passengers were calm.

O'Neill's New Play Reaches New York

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—Eugene O'Neill's new play, three thick volumes, has arrived from Tours, France, and the Theater Guild has begun preparations for its production in the fall.

It is a trilogy, entitled "Mourning Becomes Electra," to require three nights to play. The three plays call for the same actors as the principal characters run through each of the plays.

CITY SEEKING PAY FOR LEAK

Drain on Herrs Island Halts During Survey, Kerr Says In Warning to Firms

City officials today were trying to find ways and means of collecting for millions of gallons of water which have been taken from the mains on Herrs Island.

Controller J. P. Kerr estimated that over a period of years water valued at $350,000 has flowed from these mains and has not been paid for.

The water has flowed through a big main intended for use in case of fire on the island.

CONFERENCE ADVISED

Kerr yesterday addressed a conference of representatives of companies located on the island—W. and H. Walker Company, Pittsburgh Joint Stockyards Company and Pittsburgh Provision and Packing Company. The Controller said that the presence of these representatives was not to be interpreted as an indication that the missing water had flowed into the private mains of their companies.

Others who attended the conference were Public Works Director Edward G. Lang; James H. Kennon, managing engineer of the Bureau of Water; Paul M. Kydd, of the Bureau of Governmental Research; Charles M. Reppert, chief engineer of the Department of Public Works; James M. Gray, of the Board of Water Assessors; Chester F. Drake, filtration engineer of the Bureau of Water, and L. S. Morgan, district engineer of the State Health Department.

Both Kerr and Thomas M. Benner, assistant city solicitor, scouted as far-fetched reports that the city was planning a suit to recover for the water, but both also hoped that some means would be agreed upon for payment.

SURVEY HALTS LEAK

Pitometer tests revealed that the water was leaving the city main and flowing into private mains, Kerr said, adding:

"Three weeks ago another survey showed the water going into private mains . . . Then a singular thing happened. The flow suddenly stopped. The result showed that 620,000 gallons were passing through the line on week-days, and on Sunday the flow dropped to a minimum. When the last survey was made the flow suddenly stopped and water from the plants on the island began backing into the city's mains."

Kerr estimated that the water had been flowing from the main for possibly 15 to 20 years and said that the survey indicated that the loss was roughly $170 per day, or $60,000 a year.

Director Lang refused to comment until an investigation is completed.

Kerr, who said that possibly leaks in the main were responsible for the loss, promised that if the investigation shows theft, appropriate steps to force payment will be taken.

Duquesne University's New Head Installed

Leaders of present-day education must establish a definite aim, not only for themselves, but for their students, the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan told his hearers as he delivered the inaugural address marking his installation as president of Duquesne University at Memorial Hall this afternoon.

He said:

"There is certainly a necessity for returning to the fundamentals in education. The immense efforts that have been expended on various educational theories in our day is largely energy dissipated.

"Modern education has lost its way and is wandering about in the swamps and brushlands of a terra incognita.

"Even its leaders have lost control and are hopelessly bewildered.

"There is no common concept of what education is, nor what the college and university should do.

"The purpose of a university is not the advance of science as such, but the advance of the 'Numbers' Racket Balked As Curb Bans Totals

The New York Curb Exchange, thwarting the Pittsburgh "numbers" racket, was to begin publication of its daily total sales of stocks in round numbers today.

The action was taken at a meeting of the board of directors late yesterday afternoon. Reports from Pittsburgh that the curb had unwittingly officially issued predetermined figures are understood to have caused the step.

Members of the racket, operating their pools on the Curb figures, had recently become suspicious that the totals were being set by racketeers. One large book had tried unsuccessfully to set the totals. One man, however, began to win, following frequent trips to New York.

Officials of the exchange were notified. They began an investigation. The results of their investigation were unknown today, excepting that they caused the announcement late yesterday, that the figures would be published in round numbers. It was understood that fraud had been detected.

The racket has changed its basis of payment four times since the last of December. During that time play fell off an estimated 90 per cent from a peak of about $300,000 daily, recovered to a point about 70 per cent under former play, operators say.

BOY HERO INVITED TO EXTEND STAY AS HOOVER'S GUEST

LAD SERVED SAME FOOD AS KING

Bryan Not Permitted to Attend Banquet But Sees Reception to Royal Pair

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP.)—Bryan Untiedt spent the second day of his visit to President and Mrs. Hoover with the pleasant prospect that his stay may be longer than he first expected.

So impressed was the President with the bearing of the boy he invited here to spend a day and night because of his heroism when left in charge of a snow-bound Colorado school bus, that he let it be known he wanted Bryan to remain in Washington until he had seen all a 13-year-old should see.

PLAYS MOUTH ORGAN

Today he went sightseeing in a White House automobile after he had entertained Peggy Ann Hoover, the President's 6-year-old granddaughter, with selections on an old-fashioned mouth organ. The President and Mrs. Hoover heard the music and came into the room during the concert.

Bryan already has had one experience of which few grown-ups outside the government service can boast. Through a door which purposely had been left ajar, he watched the reception that preceded the formal dinner last night in honor of the King and Queen of Siam.

OFFICIAL DINNER

The boy was not able to attend the dinner because it was a highly official function for officials only. But in the children's room on the third floor of the executive mansion he ate the same kind of food that was served to King Prajadhipok and Queen Rambai Barni in the paneled state dining room.

The boy arrived in Washington early yesterday, and began a round of activity which might well have tested the staying power of most adults. Everybody connected with the White House started out to see that he had a good time, and when he went to bed in the Blue Room he had pretty well exhausted all the nearby sights, as well as himself.

First of all he saw and talked with President and Mrs. Hoover, and long before he could get over that he watched the brilliant ceremonial attending the formal reception yesterday morning of the King and Queen.

SIGHTSEEING TRIP

A sightseeing trip to Washington's Monument followed, and then an informal, pleasant family luncheon with the President regaling the table with amusing stories. After lunch there was a session with photographers, followed shortly by a visit to the Navy Yard with Capt. Joel Boone, White House physician.

The visit to the White House came near ending when the boy was shown the gun room of the Navy Yard. Dr. Boone said he almost had to drag Bryan away from the firearms display. From there they went to the Ford Theater, where Lincoln was shot, and across the street to the house where Lincoln died.

When he arrived back at the White House he found Mrs. Hoover awaiting him. Bundled up in a big robe in an open car which Mrs. Hoover herself drove, Bryan then got a ride around the city. The two older Hoover grandchildren were the other delighted occupants of the car.

WAIT SENTENCE IN JAIL FRAUD

Their motions for a new trial denied, Attorney Samuel Y. Rossiter, Joseph Donovan and Lester Beals, all of Erie, convicted in the United States District Court, March 21, in a prisoner substitution case, today were awaiting sentence. United States Attorney Louis E. Graham has been directed by Federal Judge Nelson McVicar to have the three defendants in court for sentence at an early date.

Judge McVicar denied the new trial pleas yesterday.

Rossiter is the son of Judge U. P. Rossiter, of Erie. Donovan is an automobile dealer and Beals a confessed rum-runner.

Joseph Warner, alias Joseph Jarvis, alias Joseph Petrone of Buffalo, a co-defendant, pleaded guilty before the trial and appeared as government witness.

Stanley Wells, of Port Colborne, Ont., reputed wealthy rum-runner, and Beals were arrested in September, 1929, by United States coast guards, while attempting to land a cargo of liquor from near Erie. They were released under heavy bonds, Wells giving his name as Joe Jarvis.

On December 31, 1929, Warner substituting for Wells, appeared in court here and entered a plea of guilty. A similar plea was made by Beals, and both men were sentenced by Judge R. M. Gibson to serve 60 days in the Erie County jail.

A few days later the deception was discovered.

Stamp Purchases Pay for Sea Flight

ROME, April 30.—(AP.)—Aviation seems to owe something to the fad for stamp collecting. Italo Balbo, air minister, has disclosed that the cost of an Italian group flight to Brazil, $160,000, was covered by sales of stamps, and a surplus was left for future flights.

URGES PENOWA MINE OPERATE

That there would be no difficulty marketing the product of the Penowa mine if given permission to let the men operate it, was the declaration of Attorney Harry I. Miller, of the Helping Hand, as he continued his efforts to obtain such permission.

Meanwhile the organization through its Penowa committee is endeavoring to find employment for the men in other mines in the neighborhood.

Establishing an auxiliary of the Helping Hand in Washington County to work with the authorities there in caring for the Penowa destitute is contemplated by the Pittsburgh organization, when it withdraws after the emergency situation subsides.

A clinic has been established to care for the medical and dental needs of the community. The number of families on the list at Penowa, Attorney Miller said, had increased from 79 at the opening of the relief station, to 300 families yesterday.

Abandon Coal Field As Railroad Quits

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., April 30.—(AP.)—The West Point coal field, an area of 2,800 acres, 10 miles north of here, which once was valued at $1,000,000, will be abandoned because of the decision of the Youngstown and Ohio River Railroad to junk its 38-mile line between East Liverpool and Salem. The mines had been closed since 1929, and final abandonment was announced last night by a group of brokers headed by Barney Goodman, of Kansas City, Mo.

Allegheny County Commissioners. He later was named assistant superintendent of the West Penn Hospital in Pittsburgh. In 1894 he was appointed superintendent of the McKeesport General Hospital, which position he filled up to the time he became secretary of internal affairs in 1919.

Woodward served in the House of Representatives from 1905 to 1917, with the exception of 1913.

Last May he was defeated by Dewey for the Republican nomination for a fourth term. Dewey had the backing of the Philadelphia organization, while Woodward ran as a "free lance" candidate.

Woodward served as chairman of the Republican City Committee of McKeesport and had been delegate to a number of Republican national conventions.

Woodward's wife and one married daughter, who lives in Pittsburgh, survive.

He is the first elected state official to die in office since Henry Houck died, March 13, 1917.

21,000 CHANGE HOMES HERE

About 15 per cent fewer families are moving this year than last in the Pittsburgh district, reports of service changes by gas, electric and telephone companies indicated today.

Approximately 21,000 families will have changed their addresses when the moving season, designated by the public utility service changes as between April 1 and May 3, ends Saturday night, the reports revealed.

Real estate operators reported that an unusually large number of families have managed to move before tomorrow, the annual moving day, and that many others, due to an increased number of vacancies in houses and apartments, will move later in the month.

There is a larger demand for single houses this year, the realty men reported, but a strong renter market exists in apartments and multiple houses, even in the face of widespread rent reductions.

Joe Brown Settles Suit With Circus

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—(AP.)—Joe E. Brown, comedian of the stage and screen, and the Al G. Barnes circus have ironed out their differences which arose over the alleged use of Brown's "funny" face on circus posters. Brown sued the circus for $100,000 damages for using his likeness without his knowledge and consent. Brown's attorney said a sum of money had been paid by the circus and all posters objected to surrendered to the actor.

Citizens Committee Audit To Sift Contracts; Kline Expected to Face Evans

Transactions of the City of Pittsburgh with the Cooper Tire Company, of Findlay, O., have come under the scrutiny of the Citizens' Committee, participating in the dual audit of the Department of Supplies, it was revealed today when Attorney Earl F. Reed asked permission for the examination of the company's records.

The request was made to City Controller James P. Kerr, who said he would write a letter to the Ohio tire concern asking it to open the records of its transactions with the city to a member of the staff of Main & Co., conducting the audit for the Citizens' Committee.

PHOTOGRAPH TAKEN

It was learned at the same time that photographs were taken at the city garage yesterday, by a cameraman working for the Citizens' Committee, but what had been photographed was not revealed. Nor could it be ascertained whether the photographs had any connection with the inspection of the Cooper Tire Company's transactions with this city.

That Mayor Charles H. Kline will be glad to appear and answer questions related to the investigation in the Department of Public Works as soon as his health permits, is the opinion of John S. Herron, president of City Council, given to Henry Oliver Evans near the close of the session yesterday.

Evans, whose request to Council produced the inquiry which for five weeks has been concentrated in the Department of Public Works, has called for Kline on several occasions in order to ask him about the methods used in appointing inspectors and other employes of the department.

HERRON OFFERS AID

Herron said there will be an opportunity later for questioning the Mayor. He also invited Evans to appear before Council at any time when Evans wishes to ask questions or bring out something of public interest.

'BOZO' LAVERY GETS DIVORCE

Joseph J. (Bozo) Lavery, 35, of 255 Edmund street, former city patrolman, was granted a divorce as the victim of the cruelty and indignities of his wife, Mrs. Matilda Ruth Lavery, 34, 105 Morewood avenue, by Judge Sylvester J. Snee in Common Pleas Court.

Her mistreatment began about three months after their elopement to Wellsburg, W. Va., May 24, 1927, chiefly because of her excessive use of intoxicants, according to Lavery, who described these assaults during 1930:

July 8—Shot him in the nose with his service revolver.

Labor Day—Struck him in the face with a beer bottle.

His suit was uncontested.

DUNLAP OPENS FOOD BIDS

Bids for meats, lumber, butter and eggs and two automobiles for the Bureau of Fire were opened today by Col. W. R. Dunlap, director of the City Department of Supplies.

The meats and butter and eggs will be supplied to Mayview, the Tuberculosis Sanitarium at Leech Farm, and the Municipal Hospital, and are bought monthly.

The two automobiles will be bought for Fire Chief Richard Smith and Deputy Chief Louis Conley.

The bids were opened in the City Council chamber and a large number of contractors were present.

KING OF SIAM'S EYES EXAMINED

BALTIMORE, April 30.—(INS.)—The King of Siam underwent an hour's medical examination on his eyes today at the Wilmer Eye Institute, a part of Johns Hopkins Hospital.

The examintion was made by Dr. William H. Wilmer, head of the institution, who will eventually decide whether an operation is necessary to save the monarch's failing sight.

The King and his party arrived here after a swift automobile run from Washington, where the King today received an honorory degree of doctor of laws from George Washington University.

ARCTIC RESCUE HOP DELAYED

LONDON, April 30.—(INS.)—Heavy fog today prevented Capt. Albin Ahrenberg, noted Swedish flier, from continuing his flight to Greenland to search for the missing British scientist, Augustine Courtauld, marooned on the interior icecap, according to word received here.

Ahrenberg is now at Bergen, Norway, preparing to continue to Greenland by way of the Faroe Islands and Iceland. Dispatches from Bergen said the take-off was unlikely to be made before tomorrow.

Courtauld, isolated for months in the heart of Greenland's ice cap, was believed in imminent danger of starvation. A previous expedition failed to find him, but hopes were renewed with interception of a wireless message purporting to come from him and stating his supplies were "absolutely exhausted."

While Capt. Ahrenberg and his companions are making an air dash into Greenland in the hope of locating the explorer and dropping food to him, an icebreaker with a seaplane aboard proceeded into the icefields from Reykjavik to co-operate in the search.

Additional boats and planes may join the air and sea expedition shortly.

UNIONTOWN MAN DENIES STRANGLING

Says San Diego Woman Gave Him Pawned Handbag; Will Waive Extradition

International News Service.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 30.—Denying knowledge of the slaying of Mrs. W. H. Bibben, Henry C. Yardley, 34, arrested at the home of his aunt here, today announced he would waive extradition and return to San Diego, Cal., for questioning in connection with the garroting of the woman.

Yardley, according to police, returned here last Monday after a two-year absence. He asserted that he was in San Diego on the day of the murder, but left the city at 1 o'clock that afternoon. He disputed information forwarded here by San Diego police, who asserted that they believed Yardley was in San Diego as late as 9 o'clock on the evening of the murder.

DENIES CRIME

In an exclusive interview in his cell today, Yardley, puffing on a borrowed cigaret, declared:

"You don't think for one minute that had I killed her that I would have come right back to my home, here, do you?

"I got a job as a cook on a fishing boat down there and saw Mrs. Bibbens signing up roomers. I obtained a room at her house.

"Mrs. Bibbens always had money but I never questioned her. Once when I returned from my work she told me she had met a nice man who gave her presents."

"Mrs. Bibbens kept her money in the house until recently, when she told me she had banked it. The day I departed she gave me a traveling bag and $2, and said she would have to go to the bank for money to pay her rent. She didn't want me to leave and asked me to return. I promised I would, and left my overcoat and other garments there. When I got to Joplin, Mo., I was short of funds and pawned the bag.

TO PROVE INNOCENCE

"She was well and on both feet when I departed and I knew nothing of her death until told of it when arrested last night.

"Mrs. Bibbens was a nice looking woman when she was dressed up. There was nothing between us. I never meddled in her business, nor she in mine. They don't have a thing on me. I am absolutely innocent and I will be able to prove it."

Yardley is a native of Uniontown. At one time he was employed as an electrician and aided in wiring the jail where he is now held.

individual; its aim is in respect to persons, not knowledge."

The Rev. Dr. Michael Kelly, head of the English department of the university, delivered the sermon at the inaugural mass in the university chapel this morning.

He said:

"With the inauguration of our new president, we are rededicating ourselves to the service of a Divine task—education.

"The future of the United States will depend upon the thoughts of educated men and upon the human intellect. The rejection of falsehood is most important. It lies in the hands of the educators."

He brought out the amazing vitality of the United States is not symbolized by the tremendous economic expansion, but that that vitality lies in the human intellect. He continued:

"The fallacy with some education is that the education begins and ends with the human mind."

The installation ceremonies will end with a banquet in the Hotel Schenley tonight following formal academic exercises in Memorial Hall with the Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Pittsburgh diocese, chancellor of the university, making the installation address. He also was to present President Callahan with the gold medallion which is the insignia of his office as president of Duquesne University. All presidents of the university from today forward will wear the emblem.

BANQUET SPEAKERS

Speakers at the banquet tonight were to include Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology; Dr. S. B. Linhart, secretary of the University of Pittsburgh; Dr. James N. Rule, acting superintendent of the State Department of Public Instruction, the principal speaker; Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, Edward A. Pace, vice rector of the Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C., and Raymond M. Marlier, president of the Duquesne University Alumni Association. Senator Frank J. Harris will be toastmaster.

ZAMORA ASKS FRIENDSHIP OF U. S. IN OVERSEA TALK

Have You Been Held Up? Look At Faces in This Gang!

STABLE RULE OF SPAIN FORECAST

By REGINALD A. CALVERT
Universal Service.

MADRID, April 30.—The Republican government of Spain, which will remain stable and conquer disorder and chaos which have in the past attended the overthrow of monarchies, looks forward henceforth to closer relations with the United States.

This was the theme of the talk of Provisional President Alcala Zamora last night in the first international radio address ever made from Spain. The international hook-up was arranged by the National Broadcasting Company, the Hearst Radio Service, and Universal Service.

President Alcala Zamora was introduced at 8 p. m. by George W. Hinman, Jr., manager of the Paris Bureau of Universal Service, who also later translated into English, Alcala Zamora's remarks, which required more than 15 minutes.

GREETS HOOVER

The provisional President, very enthusiastic over the broadcast, was happy and appreciative. He spoke extemporaneously, and his words were intense and emphatic, as though he were addressing an audience in the same room.

After greeting President Hoover and the heads of the governments of all the Americas, Don Alcala Zamora launched into a description of what the overthrow of the Bourbon dynasty means to Spaniards and Spanish-speaking people the world over.

He expressed the hope that Spain and America would come into closer trade relations, citing as one reason the fact that the discovery of America was made by Columbus, sailing from Spain, for a new trade route to the Indies.

SPEAKS OF U. S. WAR

In mentioning the Spanish-American War, Alcala Zamora said he felt certain that Americans realize that they fought against the representatives of the Spanish crown, rather than against the people of Spain.

He spoke of the general amnesty being declared to allow the repatriation of all Spaniards, and emphasized the stability of the present Republican regime in Spain.

Immediately after the broadcast, from an outline he had prepared while the President spoke, Hinman took up the thread of conversation and began his translation of the President's remarks. Both Alcala Zamora and Hinman were applauded by the government representatives in the President's office in the government palace at the conclusion of their parts of the program.

MATE SEES WIFE DRINK POISON

'Other Man' Serves Fatal Cocktail to Woman and Self as Romance Closes

International News Service.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Remnants of a death cocktail, a dozen love letters professing undying affection, and a distraught and heart-broken husband, were all that remained today in the romance of J. T. Hartung, of Columbus, O., and his married sweetheart, Mrs. Kathleen Garrison, of Kalamazoo, Mich.

The unconsolable husband is Ralph Garrison, a magazine circulator in Kalamazoo, who had become reconciled to his erring wife last night only to have her taken from him several minutes later by death.

Hartung brought to a tragic end the clandestine love affair with a death cocktail of poisoned liquor which he and Mrs. Garrison drank in the presence of the woman's husband and Mrs. B. M. Jones, a friend of the family, in the Bismarck Hotel, where the couple had lived together since Monday.

RECONCILIATION, DEATH

Mrs. Garrison appeared at the hotel last night with her husband and Mrs. Jones. As they entered the room of Hartung, who was a dealer in women's clothes, Garrison, with a smile, announced:

"My wife and I have patched up our troubles and she is going back home with us."

Hartung apparently was not surprised at the announcement. He smiled and nodded his head in agreement with the decision of his sweetheart.

Mrs. Garrison began to pack her bag, assisted by her husband.

Hartung walked over to a serving table, poured out two drinks of liquor and returned to where Mrs. Garrison was packing her grips. He said:

"Let us have one more drink before we part."

Both raised the glasses to their lips. Hartung gave an inarticulate salutation and they drank together.

Mrs. Garrison screamed as the deadly liquor poured down her throat. She cried as she collapsed:

"It's poison."

Hartung, clutching his throat as he fell, looked at his sweetheart lying on the floor near him and said:

"Yes, it is poison and we are dying."

LOVE LETTERS FOUND

Both were dead when a doctor summoned by the distracted husband arrived.

After the bodies had been removed to a mortuary, Detective David Schwartz found a dozen love letters, some in the purse of Mrs. Garrison and others in the clothing of Hartung, and some were scattered in a dresser drawer.

One of the letters said in part:

"So here I am planning with the last drink of our gin to take the easiest way out. I will love you till death do us part. I can't bear to lose you again—the most wonderful, sweetest love of my life. You seem like part of me. I would rather be dead than be away from you. I hope you will think of me—and in my last breath, I'll think of you."

The romance between Hartung and Mrs. Garrison had existed for several months. Last March, Garrison told police, he sent his wife to Miami in an effort to break up the growing romance between the two. Hartung was five years younger than Mrs. Garrison.

BANDIT VICTIMS PICK SUSPECTS

A bandit gang which preyed upon chain stores during the past several months, police claimed, was under arrest today.

Twenty store managers today identified two of the five prisoners as having participated in robberies. Included in the managers identifying the prisoners were four who had been held up twice.

Inspector Charles Cahill and Plainclothesmen Louis Foster and Clarence Everett, arrested the men last evening, after being tipped off by a store messenger as to their whereabouts. Harry Kelley, 29, and Paul Walls, 24, of 32 Vinecliff street, and W. J. Martin, 50, of 24 Vinecliff street, were arrested in a South Hills skating rink and later Harry Lollo, 23, was arrested in his home at 32 Vinecliff street, along with William Sewell, 19, a roomer there.

Kelley was identified by J. M. Schick, of 9 Judicial street; George Miller, of 2338 Candice street; Etore Guidotti, of 300 Sycamore street, and J. W. Oliver, of 339 Boggs avenue, as having twice robbed their stores, police said.

Grocer Bequeaths $1,000,000 Estate

NEW YORK, April 30.—Specific bequests of nearly $500,000 indicated today that the late Howard W. Charles, head of the grocery store which bore his name, amassed a fortune of at least $1,000,000.

His will gives $50,000 in cash and a life interest in the residue of the estate to the widow, Mrs. Lillian M. Charles, of 1115 Fifth avenue. Bequests totaling $40,000 are made to 14 charitable organizations.

Coolidge Praises Siam Monarch as Benefactor

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 30.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

Again the United States is entertaining royalty. The reigning King and Queen of Siam are making a tour of inspection and study. They are being welcomed with interest and hospitality not only because of their rank and pleasing personalities but because they represent our oldest treaty friends in the Far East.

Mr. Coolidge

On the map Siam looks small beside India and China, but it is larger than Spain. About 11,000,000 of peaceful agricultural people dwell there, under one of the last absolute monarchs in the world, and call themselves the free. Our annual trade with them averages about $3,000,000 but they buy of us many times what we buy of them.

The government is so reliable and justice is so well administered that consular courts have been discontinued. The benevolence of the reigning house makes it unnecessary to resort to force or agitation to secure reforms. When any revolution is desirable the King voluntarily provides it. He is now studying our franchise system with a view of introducing the ballot at home. An absolute monarch devoting his power to the liberal advancement of his people is a very appealing figure in the world.

Beer Taps Found Among Roses And Lilies

CHICAGO, April 30.—(AP.)—It was just like any other flower shop, prohibition agents said. Across the front window was a big sign which read, "Florist." There were lilies and roses there, too.

But the scent that reached the nostrils of the agents, they related, was strangely unlike any roses or lilies they had ever smelled, so they decided to investigate.

Inside they reported they found Clarence Edwin amid a system of pipes, designed not to water the flowers, but to quench the thirst of any of Edwin's customers who might care for beer.

6 CAPTORS SEEK IRENE REWARD

PHOENIX, Ariz., April 30.—(INS.)—Claiming that a reward was due them for the capture of Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague, recently executed in Pennsylvania for the murder of Corp. Brady Paul, of the Pennsylvania Highway Patrol, peace officers of Arizona today announced their intention of suing Pennsylvania authorities.

Mrs. Schroeder and her companion were captured in the mountains near here after a gun battle. Those participating in the battle with the two fugitives were Chief of Police Oscar Roberts, Jack Carter, Hans Coor, George Pruitt, Indian Chief Leon Sundust and Al Rhodes.

The six officers claimed they should participated in the reward of $3,200 offered by Pennsylvania authorities.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., April 30.—The Commissioners of Lawrence County would welcome such a suit as the Phoenix officers plan, Solicitor John Lockhart, of Lawrence County, asserted today. He said so many conflicting claims to the rewards have been made that the Commissioners prefer that the courts settle the disputes.

Looters of Train Fire on Conductor

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—(INS.)—Three daring train bandits fired on a Pennsylvania Railroad conductor early today when he caught them looting a freight train near Willow Grove on the Trenton branch of the system. The men broke into three cars while the long freight had stopped at a water tower at Heaton.

The amount of loot obtained by the bandits has not yet been determined, but it is feared it may amount to several thousand dollars.

Chicago Police Told To End Third Degree

CHICAGO, April 30.—(AP.)—Describing the "third degree" as a "substitute for police efficiency" Acting Police Commissioner John Alcock put all Chicago policemen under orders today to refrain from using this method in questioning prisoners.

He added that reports had been received by him that some Chicago police were using the "third degree" and pointed out that such practices are strictly prohibited by law.

'Killer' Burke Hopes Wife Will Free Self

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., April 30.—(INS.)—Thoughts of Fred "Killer" Burke turned to his young Missouri wife, Bonnie Porter, after he was sentenced to serve a life term in the Marquette Penitentiary at hard labor, according to Sheriff Fred J. Cutler, who quoted Burke today as saying:

"I hope my wife divorces me and gets out of this whole mess."

At 6 o'clock tonight, Hoseman George Frederick, 47, of No. 23 Fire Company, Carrick, will complete 20 years of continuous service in the department. Tomorrow, with his wife and son, George, Jr., 18, he will move to his new home in French Creek, Pa.

Frederick said that he will spend the rest of his life hunting and fishing. The retiring fireman will be honored with a banquet.

KING GEORGE WALKS IN PARK

WINDSOR, England, April 30.—(AP.)—King George emerged from Windsor Castle today for the first time since announcement of his illness made a month ago. He was accompanied by Queen Mary on a walk about the grounds of the castle.

They strolled through the park for nearly an hour, the King wearing an overcoat and a bowler hat. At Frogmore, half a mile from the castle, an automobile picked them up and they came back for luncheon.

The King let it be known that he had enjoyed the fresh air and sunshine after his long siege, and it was said that he is making excellent progress toward complete recovery.

The Prince of Wales, who got home only yesterday from South America, was up before noon and away from the castle, for he had a lot of business which had accumulated during his absence. He is staying at York House in London tonight and returning for the week-end.

Weather Conditions.

High barometer, centered over the Ohio Valley states and the lake region is attended by unseasonable cold weather and caused heavy frosts and freezing temperatures over Pennsylvania, New York, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin. The skies are clear over that section this morning. Relatively low pressure occupies the West, with centers of disturbance in the Northwest and south of Texas. It is responsible for much cloudiness over that section and showers over the Lower Mississippi Valley and southern plains states. Temperature changes were slight.

River Conditions.

China Now Requires Vises on Passports

SHANGHAI, April 30.—(AP.)—Chinese port authorities announced today that, beginning tomorrow, all foreigners entering China would be required to display passports bearing Chinese visas.

DOG MAD, RADIO WARNS VICTIM

CASTLETON, N. Y., April 30.—(AP.)—Mrs. Anna Smith, for whom search was made in Adirondack communities to tell her that a dog which had bitten her two weeks ago had developed rabies, was seeking treatment against the malady today.

A radio broadcast from Station WGY at Schenectady carried the message of the fate of the dog to her as she was visiting a store at Newcomb, about 70 miles north of Glens Falls, N. Y., yesterday.

Mrs. Smith, with her husband, Gilbert Smith, hurried to Glens Falls, where she consulted Dr. Virgil D. Selleck, health officer. The physician examined the wound and found it practically healed. He warned her that the germs of hydrophobia might be present and advised her to take the Pasteur treatment. She told him she would seek aid.

For several days Mrs. Smith has been in Essex County with her husband, selling religious books and magazines.

Roosevelt to Confer With Smith, Curry

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—Before he goes south for a vacation tomorrow, Gov. Roosevelt will confer with Democratic leaders.

First on the list is former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, whose name has been placed in nomination at each of the last three Democratic conventions by Mr. Roosevelt. Tonight he expects to have at least short conferences with John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, and John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader.

Guard Doukhobors To Prevent Clash

VICTORIA, B. C., April 30.—(AP.)—As a precaution against disturbances growing out of dissension between the Doukhobors and the Sons of Freedom, a strong force of police was at the settlement today by order of provincial authorities.

Fear of a clash between the sects was intensified when the Doukhobors banished the dissenting Sons of Freedom to an abandoned settlement at Porto Rico, B. C.

FAIR RATES AIM OF UTILITIES —PHILLIPS

The Duquesne Light president, in a running fire argument with Harold Evans, former public service commissioner and counsel for Gov. Pinchot, declared there is "no fixed rule, order or law" stipulating that 7 per cent is a fair return of earnings on utility invested capital. He said:

"The conception of modern executives of utilities is to give good service to the public at fair rates, whether the earnings are 1 per cent or 15 per cent."

RESENTS STATEMENT

At one point, when the witness told the committee there is competition between electric lighting and gas companies, even if both those classes of properties are controlled by the same holding concern, John M. Walker, associate counsel, termed such competition "shadow boxing." In a resentful tone Mr. Phillips declared:

"What do you mean by 'shadow boxing?' You say that on the assumption that these public utilities are dishonest."

In emphasizing another point the witness told Evans and Walker that "you don't believe it and don't want to believe it."

Phillips repeatedly denied an implication by Evans that his rate doctrine is to charge "all the traffic will bear." He asserted that voluntary rate reductions were made by his company several times in the past six years.

Phillips said he never heard of a $1,000 payment to James Francis Burke, Pittsburgh, to oppose the giant power plan before the 1926 special session.

Phillips denied any knowledge of a utility survey of textbooks used in the Pennsylvania schools.

VERBAL BY-PLAY

The hearing was enlivened with verbal by-play among its members over the majority and minority reports the committee submitted to the House of Representatives last Monday, when Phillips demanded to know "when the rate payers were dissatisfied."

Representative Ellwood J. Turner, Delaware County, one of the two anti-Pinchot members who signed the minority report, said:

"The jury found by a vote of five to two that they were dissatisfied."

DENIES PROPAGANDA

Mitchell explained his part as disseminator of four pamphlets on the public utilities in the schools, but denied that he knew of the utilities information bureau putting or revising text books in Peabody High School.

He maintained the pamphlets were informative rather than propaganda, and that although he approached principals concerning them, there was no effort to place them in the public schools unless the teachers wanted them.

While he was unable to present the kilowatt hour rates, Mitchell said that his concern in 10 years had made 21 reductions in rates, and none of these at the request of the Public Service Commission. He said there has been no complaint or hearing before the commission for many years.

Asked why, at the present the West Penn Railways was reducing its street car fare, he answered:

"As far as the street cars are concerned, we are making every effort we can in order to attract traffic and provide service and everything else, but practically to no avail."

Kings' Condolences Sent on Reid Death

PARIS, April 30.—(INS.)—The death of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, "Grande Dame" of American diplomacy and widow of the late American ambassador to Great Britain, today brought messages of condolence from kings and presidents alike.

Among the telegrams of sympathy received were those from President Hoover, King George of England and the King of Siam, who is now a guest at the Reid estate near New York.

Alicia Patterson Denies Engagement

TOKIO, April 30.—(AP.)—Alicia Patterson, daughter of Joseph Medill Patterson, publisher of the New York Daily News, emphatically denied here today the report that she was engaged to marry Peter Grimm, Shanghai representative of a New York firm.

In Shanghai Grimm likewise denied the report, but he added that he expected to see Miss Patterson in Japan before she sails for home May 7.

Cincinnati Fills Community Chest

CINCINNATI, O., April 30.—(AP.)—Cincinnati's community chest was filled to overflowing today. At the closing victory dinner of a two weeks' campaign last night it was announced $2,408,000 had been raised, or approximately $8,000 more than the quota sought.

FIGHT PINCHOT POLICE BILLS

HARRISBURG, April 30.—(AP.)—The House Committee on Law and Order reported for final passage yesterday the administration coal police bill sponsored by Representative Wilson, McKean, and replacing the present industrial police system with a "protective service" of 250 state-trained, state-controlled officers to be hired out to companies and unions. The bill was made a special order of business for next Tuesday at noon, with the assurance of a last-stand fight by the representatives of organized labor.

The attitude of the labor group was indicated by John Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, who told the Law and Order Committee:

"We emphatically reject this Wilson bill. It permits the leasing of the police power of the state; it provides for two conflicting forces in industrial disputes."

Phillips added that his organization has been supporting the bill of Representative Musmanno, Allegheny, which reduces industrial police to the status of property guards and watchmen, and which is now in the Senate Committee on Judiciary General. Musmanno, fiery leader of the battle against state industrial police, described the admisistration bill as "vicious legislation" and continued his preparations for the fight next week.

Ohio Electric Line To Be Dismantled

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., April 30.—Spurning the offer of the East Liverpool Chamber of Commerce and other Columbiana County business interests to provide additional freight, Briggs & Turavis, Inc., of Chicago, announced the 38-mile Youngstown and Ohio River Railroad line between East Liverpool and Salem will be junked.

Work will be started dismantling the trolley wires today, General Manager J. D. De Weese said.

British Propose Ship Fare Slash

PARIS, April 30.—(AP.)—A drastic cut in the cost of trans-Atlantic travel was understood today to have been proposed by British shipping interests at a rate conference meeting at the Hotel Astoria, Paris.

The British proposal was said to amount to a 10 per cent reduction in first and cabin class ocean fares and establishment of a $100 steerage rate for the round trip between Europe and the United States.

Home of Former Tax Chief Bombed

CHICAGO, April 30.—(INS.)—A bomb exploded today at the home of William H. Malone, former chairman of the State Tax Commission, in Park Ridge, a suburb.

Malone, whose stormy career as head of the commission ended with his resignation this year, was aroused with his family, but none was hurt.

Wives, Poisoning Husbands, to Hang

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 30.—(AP.)—The court of appeals today confirmed the death sentences of two women, Frau Szabo and the widow Csordas. Convicted of poisoning their husbands at Nagyrev. They will be hanged in Szolnok prison shortly if efforts launched today to have the regent reprieve their sentence fail.

YOUTH JAILED FOR DOG FREED

After serving a day of his 10-day jail sentence imposed in default of the $3 that Alderman Harvey A. Lowry, of Collins avenue, East Liberty, fined him for his failure to get a license for his 5-month-old dog, Albert Kurzawski, of 2836 Mary street, was free today.

Albert, whose mother and small brothers and sisters are largely dependent upon the money he earns working eight days a month, said he was ordered to jail after he informed the alderman of his inability to pay a $3 fine. An acquaintance, who learned of the sentence, paid Albert's fine at the county jail yesterday.

After he was summoned before Alderman Lowry by agents of the Animal Rescue League, Kurzawski secured a license for the dog. He presented the receipt at the hearing, but the alderman ruled the dog was not licensed when the information was made.

REDS TO PRAISE SANDINO ON MAY DAY

Communists Will Urge the Support of Rebel Leader, Congressman Is Advised

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—A nation-wide appeal for support of the Sandino forces in Nicaragua "against foreign oppressors and the rule of Yankee Marines" will be fostered by Communists in May Day demonstrations tomorrow, according to information published today by Representative Hamilton Fish (Rep.), of New York.

Other announcements of Communist preparation for May Day demonstrations received by Fish, as chairman of the House committee which investigated Communistic propaganda, include demonstrations in the principal cities for a six-hour day, higher wages and unemployment insurance.

Reds Here Arrange Three Meetings

Pittsburgh district Socialists and Communists will celebrate May Day with three meetings tomorrow and Saturday. The Socialists will meet at Federal and South Diamond streets tomorrow night and in the Socialist Hall, James and Foreland streets on Saturday night. Communist leaders today were granted a police permit to hold an open air demonstration at East Park at 1 p. m. tomorrow.

N. Y. Police to Guard Churches, Homes

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—Police Commissioner Mulrooney mobilized special police details today in preparation for the May Day celebration tomorrow.

He ordered a police squad for every church and public building and for homes of prominent citizens, and asked every precinct commander, especially those near Union Square, to keep reserve squads ready.

The spotlight will fall mainly on the Communists, Socialists and Veterans of Foreign Wars, all of whom have arranged to meet in Union Square at hours prescribed by the police department, so as to avoid possible conflict.

Moscow Appeals To World Workers

MOSCOW, April 30.—(INS.)—A fiery appeal to the workers of the world to unite in a gigantic attack against the "bloody capitalistic imperialist opposition" with "bread, freedom and power" as the stake was issued by the Communist International today as the prelude to tomorrow's May Day celebrations.

The appeal was directed particularly to the proletariat of Germany, Spain, China and India.

In its vigorous statement, the Communist International declares that the European proletariat "twice saved the U. S. S. R. from military attacks by the big powers."

WRITER FINDS PROSPERITY IN PARIS

Shows Packed, Cafes Busy; All Natives Speak English, Know U. S. Money Value

By WINIFRED BLACK
Universal Service.

PARIS, April 30.—No bread lines in Paris. No beggars—no seedy men with pale, pinched faces stopping you on the street for the price of a cup of coffee.

No thinly clad women, or hungry looking children—at least none that any sharp-eyed traveler can see. The streets jammed with racing automobiles, all in good condition, and many of them looking brand new. Theaters packed to the doors, at $4 a seat. Cafes doing a land office business, day and night.

And the only hungry looking people to be seen are the waiters, and maids, and porters, and the strange creatures who pass as bellboys, and they are not hungry for food, but starving to death for money, in tips—mostly American money it looks to me.

BOULEVARDS RESPLENDENT

The boulevards are as beautiful as ever—the vistas of trees and flowers and fountains are like a homesick Moslem's dream of paradise.

Tulips and hyacinths, gay in all the wonderful parks, and the primroses thick in the country fields.

No hard times in France—that's easy enough for the dullest wit to perceive.

And all the French are speaking English this year, the taxi drivers, the waiters, the salespeople in the shops, they can all tell you the exact value of an American dollar, translated into the franc.

Nobody shrugs an indifferent shoulder and murmurs that he does not "comprehend" when you ask him the way to this bois, or that avenue—he either answers the trusting stranger with a bold stare or tells you what you want to know in English—and waits—for the tip.

EVERYTHING COSTLY

Everything is expensive in Paris today, dresses, hats, shoes—they make the New York prices look like the money at a rag fair. And that's not the only way Paris has changed—a woman can walk on the streets alone without being molested. I can't help wondering if the American doughboys and their friends, the American Red Cross workers, are indirectly responsible for the new idea that a woman can go on the street alone and attend to her own business and be a perfectly nice girl.

The noises are worse than ever—at 4 o'clock in the morning a man passes under my window, and calls in a dolorous voice some mysterious warning of death or pestilence or some other unknown horror — at least that's what it sounds like to unaccustomed ears.

Close on his heels this morning in the dim hours just before the dawn, came the clatter of hundreds of horses with bells around their necks.

CAN'T PURCHASE SLEEP

Behind the horses came somebody on a pair of iron stilts walking in a measured melancholy tread, like a hired mourner at a pauper's funeral.

Sleep is not one of the things you can buy in Paris, no matter how much you try to pay for it.

In the country the little tight-closed French houses are as prison-like as ever, blinds tightly drawn at every window, heavy doors locked and double locked. They look strange to eyes accustomed to the Spanish architecture of California.

On the road from Belleau Wood they show you the crater where 8,000 Frenchmen died in one horrifying minute, and all along the way the crosses that mark the graves of the gallant youth of five great countries stand straight as soldiers.

The wild flowers are all abloom in the fields and woods where the high-hearted boys from America went to death with a song on their laughing lips.

The war is over for 13 long years now—all over and done and business is excellent from one end of France to the other.

Deep down in my sad heart I cannot help wondering what it was all about—really—after all.

'KILLER' OFF TO PRISON

FRED BURKE, MANACLED, READY TO START LIFE TERM

The notorious gunman to whom are attributed a score of killings, including those of the St. Valentine's Day massacre in Chicago, is pictured leaving St. Joseph, Mich., for Marquette Prison, where he was sentenced for the murder of a policeman.

BIRTH CONTROL CLASH SEEN

SLOW TO ACT

Described as "conservative liberals," the prediction was made that the Presbyterian clergymen in Pittsburgh, as a whole, would be slow in advancing the new theories. Nor could any be found who would say outright that they would favor the adoption of the report.

It was learned, however, that the report has a large number of supporters who will exert every effort to win approval of the report when it is represented at the general assembly. Sharp debate is to follow the introduction of the report, but no bitterness is anticipated.

Asserting that thousands of Presbyterians "have read with shame and indignation the published report of the General Assembly's committee, Dr. Macartney added:

"This recognition and practical advocacy of birth control is undoubtedly repugnant to a great number of our ministers and to thousands of our members."

Dr. Macartney, who was a member of the General Assembly's special committee on marriage and divorce in 1927, said that men had a perfect right to recommend pagan and anti-Christian practices, if they desire, but it should not be done under the guise of Christian teaching and faith. He continued:

"It is sad to see the Protestant Church, and especially the Presbyterian Church — even through a committee whose report has not been adopted, and certainly will not be adopted—trying to persuade the public that what is elementary and inherently sinful is no sin."

WARNS OF DANGER

The conservative leader warned that where loose doctrine prevails, dangerous ethical teaching is sure to follow, adding:

"The prominence which some of our ministers are giving to these ill-favored teachings, such as birth control, is an evidence of a fading interest in redemptive Christianity."

Charles N. Wonacott, treasurer of the Board of National Missions, announced the assembly would be told that board showed a deficit of $174,463.68 for the fiscal year ending March 31.

Mr. Wonacott said that expenditures for the year were $4,052,615.64, against receipts of $3,878,071.96.

To offset this deficit, the Jarvie fund, an annual contribution of $140,000 will be turned over to the mission board.

The board, it is understood, will ask the Assembly to discontinue using national mission funds for the support of enterprises in competition with those of other evangical denominations.

COBB DIVORCE CASE DROPPED

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 30.—(AP.)—The marital difficulties of the Tyrus Raymond Cobbs were "straightened out" today.

The former major league baseball star announced that divorce suit filed by his wife, Mrs. Charlie Marion Lombard Cobb, on April 15, had been withdrawn. He said:

"It is Mrs. Cobb's desire that I personally make official announcement that the divorce proceedings have been withdrawn; that her attorney has been advised of this fact; that she took this step on her own initiative, and that no further comment is to be made on account of the sacredness relating to her decision."

Children Think Wax Food Display Real

Hubbard to 'Cross' Buffalo and Cattle

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—Wynant Davis Hubbard is to leave shortly to spend 10 years in Africa cross-breeding wild water buffalo and domestic cattle. The buffalo is immune from many insects and diseases which affect the cattle.

Bootlegger Arrested In Arkansas Capitol

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 30.—(AP.)—A raid by federal prohibition agents on the State Capitol Building yesterday resulted in the arrest of R. F. Williams, 23, and confiscation of a gallon of whisky officers said he was about to deliver.

U.S. DENOUNCED FOR RIVALRY TO BUSINESS

International News Service.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 30.—Government competition with private business was assailed by Fred M. Sargent, president of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company, in an address before the Chamber of Commerce of the United States here today. He directed his talk chiefly at the government's action toward the railroads in competition with inland waterways where, he asserted, "the government is in the transportation business."

Sargent referred to the fear in the minds of the framers of the constitution as a too highly centralized and powerful federal government. He pointed out what he termed the gradual deviation from the strict interpretation of the constitution.

BANKING POLICY

Public opinion demands the assertion of a bold national banking policy by Congress—a policy comparable to that which gave rise to the national bank act and the Federal Reserve act, Comptroller of the Currency J. W. Pole declared in his address today before the chamber.

Pole commended to the business men of the country his plan for extension of branch banking by national banks within economic areas surrounding the home institution as the best plan for the establishment of an independent and well-rounded system.

URGES EFFICIENCY

The next era of prosprity in America will be based on thorough efficiency in plant management and economics of productive processes, according to Rome C. Stephenson, president of the American Bankers' Association, who spoke last night. Stephenson said that industry must seek to produce what people can absorb and must avoid overstimulation of public buying.

He took issue with Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont in stating that the American standard of living does not promise any guaranteed scale of wages. A few hours earlier Lamont had warned business leaders at the convention against cutting wages and said that high wages and shorter hours would counteract depression.

Mexico to Expel 7,000 U. S. Citizens

EL PASO, Tex., April 30.—(AP.)—The Herald Post says that as a result of a survey the Mexican government has decided to expel more than 7,000 American citizens classed as illegal residents of Mexico. The survey indicated a large number of Americans who had obtained temporary passports and had not registered as permanent residents according to Mexican law had overstayed their legal time in the country.

Ohio Slayer Rests Hope With Governor

COLUMBUS, O., April 30.—(AP.)—An appeal to Gov. George White was the only hope of Charles King, 39-year-old Hamilton barber, as he awaited death in the electric chair tonight for the slaying of his wife and four children almost two years ago.

IN THE GOLF SHOP TOMORROW

Johnny Farrell

Former National Open Champion and Golf Instructor Extraordinary

Many Pittsburgh golfers pleasantly remember this highly agreeable and personable young man for the helpful suggestions which he gave them on the occasion of his visit here a year ago. During the past year he has added further laurels to his reputation as a tournament player and enlarged the circle of his acquaintance through radio and motion pictures.

He will be the guest of our Golf Shop again tomorrow to help local golfers with individual problems of their game. In between times, he will demonstrate the different shots, answer general questions, and discuss golf informally.

The presence of this golf celebrity tomorrow from 10:30 A. M. to 1:30 P. M., and 2:30 to 4:00 P. M. should furnish a magnet to the golf enthusiasts of this section, both men and women. Make the most of his presence to gather a few pointers to help better your game.

PAY ROTHSTEIN DEBT, VAN TOLD

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—Supreme Court Justice Collins directed Gus Van, radio and vaudeville singer, to pay the estate of Arnold Rothstein, slain gambler, $9,206 to cover a note given Rothstein for gambling debts incurred in the summer of 1928.

The note was for $10,381, but Van had paid $381 on one occasion and $2,200 on another. The verdict represented $7,800 remaining due, plus $1,406 interest.

Van defended the suit on the ground he had reason to believe Rothstein failed to keep a promise to pay off gambling debts to other persons whom Van owed money. The note to Rothstein represented the debts.

Fund for Flowers On Grave Left By Woman

MOBILE, Ala., April 30.—(AP.)—Flowers that Miss Catherine Murphy loved so much in life will be near her in death, through provisions of her will.

The document, disposing of valuable personal property and real estate in Mobile, instructed a bank, named as executor, "to see that my cemetery lot is planted with flowers and shrubs and that cut flowers are occasionally placed on my grave."

DANCER SLAIN ON JOY RIDE

NEW YORK, April 30.—(INS.)—An Ossining truck driver was sought today by police for questioning in the murder of Virginia Brannen, Bangor (Me.) girl who came to New York seeking gaiety.

He is Rudolph Durniger, who apparently accidentally shot and killed the girl, according to Robert Le Clair, 22, a lather, and Mrs. Mildred Moore, 23.

Durniger's companions early Monday in an automobile ride, which climaxed in the death of the dance hall hostess, were held as material witnesses.

English Visitor Deems Chicago Not So Tough

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 30.—(AP.)—Chicago found a defender in A. Patterson, His Majesty's commissioners of prisoners, who landed here after inspecting 80 American jails.

Patterson said because Chicago criminals got more publicity than those of other cities the world has a notion that they are the "toughest" and that the situation there is much worse than it actually is.

He said he was much impressed by the trusty system in effect in many states.

PATRONS URGED TO CURB STORE 'RETURNS'

Mercantile Leader Cites Immense Expenses in Handling Rejected Goods

CHICAGO, April 30.—Customers of department stores in this country return more than $500,000,000 of merchandise annually, placing the stupendous cost of re-handling the goods on the steadily mounting operating charges of the institutions, D. F. Kelly, president of The Fair, Chicago department store, declared last night in a radio address as guest speaker, of the Halsey, Stuart & Co. program.

Kelly, who is also president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, detailed the efforts of members of that association to supply the needs of the American public at the lowest possible cost to the consumer and with the highest quality of service.

He pointed out the constantly expanding services and conveniences the great majority of stores are providing for their customers. Some of these are directly related to merchandising, but many of them, such as postoffices, gas, light and tax bill receiving stations, travel bureaus and emergency hospitals, he said, are facilities the merchants of our grandfathers' day would not have dreamed of employing.

STANDARDS ELEVATED

All these services and conveniences have played an important part, Kelly said, in bringing the stores to their present high standards in their communities, but they have also been the cause of the steadily increasing cost of doing business. However, he declared, it is the constant aim of the store managements to continue to offer their customers merchandise at the present unusually low prices as calculated on a quality basis.

Retail prices today are at least 20 per cent lower than they have been in many years. The trend from this point, upward or downward, Kelly contends, can be determined to some degree by the great mass of American consumers, particularly the housewife, to whom is entrusted the wise spending of the family budget.

URGES CAREFUL SELECTION

The women of the country, he said, can definitely help in reducing store operating costs, thereby permitting savings to be passed along to them as consumers, by reducing to a minimum to the amount of goods returned annually. Ample time for inspection, more careful selection and trying-on of wearing apparel at the stores were suggested as means of eliminating the possibility of "return."

When it is remembered that an article returned to a store involves an employment of 20 people in handling the original sale and acceptance on return, the annual total of $500,000,000 of merchandise sent back presents itself as perhaps the most important wastage in the entire mercantile field, Kelly declared.

Count von Luckner Mistaken for Bus Driver

WAYNESBURG, Pa., April 30.—Count Felix von Luckner, German naval commander during the World War, was mistaken for just another bus driver as he waited at a bus terminal here for more than an hour, attired in his German naval uniform.

Jerry Nahan, Waynesburg College student and hotel clerk, the only person to recognize the noted visitor, was rewarded with a visit by the famed German seahawk.

JOB AID FUND $1,184,452

TRADE SCHOOL CEREMONY SET

J. Lamont Hughes, president of the Carnegie Steel Company, and Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, will be the principal speakers at the official opening of the Clifford B. Connelley Trade School, Bedford avenue and Fullerton street, at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow. The school, built at a cost of $1,754,096, was opened for school purposes last September. Marcus Aaron, president of the Board of Public Education, will preside.

Second Fire Sweeps Missouri Boom Town

BAGNELL, Mo., April 30.—(INS.)—Fire of undetermined origin again struck this boom town of frame buildings today, completing the wiping out of the North Side business district, which was partly destroyed by a disastrous fire in which two persons lost their lives March 16. No casualties resulted from today's fire.

French Births Top Deaths by 100,000

PARIS, April 30.—(AP.)—There were 100,000 more births than deaths in France during 1930, government statistics published today revealed.

The Paris press hailed the margin of births over deaths as indication that a long period of a declining French birthrate was past.

Socialist to Head Austrian Assembly

MEYER JONASSON'S

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

NEW YORK, April 30.

IT HAPPENED on Broadway, reports Dr. James Burbridge, one night last week. Some of the early theatergoers witnessed a part of it, but only one or two know what really happened. Now I'm letting everyone in on the party. Which shows you what a generous gent I am beginning to be.

Just as the big street was in its glory, a middle-aged man let out a terrible roar. He shouted to the world at large that a thief had snatched his wallet from his pocket. Pointing at a fleeing figure, he screamed that there went the crook. In much less time than it takes to write it a hundred eager mortals were chasing the thief.

"Catch him," cried the victim. "He has my money. Stop thief! I want my money. Catch that man."

Up one block and down another. With the crowd at his heels, he turned a corner. That was the end of the game. The crook fell into the arms of a policeman who hadn't the slightest idea of what had occurred. But he held his man.

The thief attempted to toss the wallet into the gutter. But the gendarme was too quick for him. And the victim pointed at the article in great excitement.

"That's it," he shouted. "That's my wallet. He stole it from me. He's a thief. There's almost $500 in that wallet. Hold him fast, officer. Hold him fast."

The patrolman nodded.

"Don't you worry, mister," he returned. "I've got him right. He's not getting away from me."

A few seconds later a detective stepped into the picture. He flashed his badge, said a few words to the patrolman and began to question the prisoner. Then he shook his head.

"Okay, officer," he said. "I'll take this prisoner off your hands. It's an open and shut case. I'll run this bird right over to the station house."

He turned to the man who had been robbed.

"You'll have to come along, too," he continued. "We'll need you for the complaint and your wallet for evidence. We won't detain you very long over there."

The prisoner thought it was his turn to say something.

"Say, look here," he began. "I don't—"

He got no farther. The detective slapped him smartly across the mouth.

"You'll talk when you're told to talk," he growled, "and not before. Remember that."

As he climbed into the hack, the victim shook his dome in perfect agreement.

"As a rule," he observed, "I don't believe in being rough to criminals. But this man seems to be so desperate that I think severe measures are absolutely necessary. Imagine him stealing my wallet! Of all things!"

Off went the cab in the direction of the station house. When they neared the house in question, the detective suddenly leaned forward.

"Keep going over to Tenth avenue," he ordered.

The victim wrinkled his brow.

"What's the idea?" he asked.

The detective nodded wisely.

"I have a hunch," he stated, "that this crook is much bigger game than he seems to be. I'm taking him into a certain flat on Tenth avenue before I book him in the station house. I think he knows what I mean."

The thief shivered.

"Not that house," he cried hoarsely.

"Aha!" exclaimed the detective. "You know what I mean, do you? I thought you did."

The victim shrugged his shoulders.

"This is all most mysterious to me," he murmured. "But then, I suppose, a man in your business is naturally mysterious."

A few minutes later, the car came to a halt. The detective shook the crook and told him to step from the car. Then he gave additional orders to the victim.

"You'll stay here in this cab until I come down. If everything goes the way I expect it to, this little piece of work shouldn't take me more than 10 minutes. I may have another prisoner when I come back. Don't forget to wait."

The other man smiled.

"I'll wait all right," he asserted. "Not much fear of me leaving while you have my wallet. I'll be sitting right here."

"Good," said the detective. He prodded his prisoner.

"Walk into that house, you bum," he growled. "One false move and I'll plug you plenty."

They disappeared into the house. . . .

If the victim could have looked through houses he would have witnessed a very strange sight. He would have seen the pickpocket and the detective walking through an alley and into the next block. And, one block further, he would have seen the pickpocket splitting the contents of the wallet with his partner, the phoney detective.

But the victim, unfortunately, couldn't see through houses. To this day he has never seen the wallet, the crook or the "detective" again. And to make matters just a little bit worse, the taxi meter registered $9.25 in waiting time before he began to have a slight suspicion that something was wrong somewhere! . . .

A CERTAIN section of New York has been very much excited the past few weeks about Mother's Day, which arrives early in May. Somebody hit upon the brilliant idea that there should be a Mother's Day parade in that section of the town. And the folks have been going at it strongly ever since.

Last week some of the biggest merchants in that portion of New York held a meeting to discuss ways and means. One gentleman spoke his mind very strongly.

"I think," he thought, "that we have overlooked one very important detail in arranging this Mother's Day celebration. We have forgotten to pick a typical mother."

"Who is going to pose for the cameramen? Who is going to speak to the newspapers? It is obvious that all the mothers can't do it. We must select one. And she will be the typical mother."

The other merchants nodded. There was most certainly an urgent need for a typical mother. After some additional discussion, they agreed to look about for three days and then hold another meeting. Each one would search for the most motherly-looking woman he could find. And the best of these would be chosen for the very important post.

Which was exactly what happened. The merchants looked through their stores and searched diligently for a motherly woman who had a great deal of charm and would photograph well.

They finally found such a woman. She was working in the dress department of a large store. They called her in and broke the big news to her. She was to be the Typical Mother from then on.

The woman accepted her new position. Stories were sent to the newspapers and her picture was printed in many places. She certainly looks the Typical Mother.

There's but one flaw—and the merchants are just beginning to find it out. The lady they picked as the Typical Mother has never been married! . . .

MOTHER SICK, MODEL GONE

The mother of Edith Jones, 18, hair-dressing model and beauty-prize winner, who left her home, 369 South Pacific avenue, to attend a theater on April 29, 1930, and never returned, is ill as the Missing Persons Bureau fails to find her after a year, Mrs. Estelle Jones said.

"I feel she is still in Pittsburgh, because a friend saw her on Fifth avenue New Years. I hope if she sees this she will come home."

Miss Jones

Edith had threatened to leave home several times, her mother said. A man she met at a skating rink offered her work in New York as a model, she said.

Duquesne Templars Plan May Dance

Duquesne Commandery No. 72, Knights Templar, will hold a May Day dance and card party Friday evening in the Eastern Star Temple, 325 South Highland avenue. The affair will be held to honor the large class of new members recently initiated.

STUDENT HELD IN EXTORTION

Alderman George J. Anderson late yesterday held Paul Edwards, 28, of Zara and Grimes street, for court on charges of extortion in connection with an alleged attempt to obtain money from J. W. Giles, of Burgettstown. Edwards, who is attending a school of oratory here, admitted writing a threatening letter to Giles in which he demanded $60, but insisted Giles owed him the money. He needed the money to pay for his schooling, Edwards said.

Canuti a Candidate For Office of Judge

Attorney Frank F. Canuti has announced that he will be a candidate for the office of judge of Common Pleas Court in the coming election. In the campaign of 1927, Attorney Canuti was a candidate and received nearly 60,000 votes. He has been a resident of the county 55 years and has been in continuous practice in the local courts for 25 years.

EDUCATOR DIES ON TRAIN TRIP

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., April 30.—The body of Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, 70, president of the University of Virginia, who died in Connellsville State Hospital last night, after being taken unconscious from the Capital Limited of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, was to be sent to his home in Charlottesville, Va., today. He suffered a stroke while the train was passing through Rockwood, 60 miles east of Connellsville.

Dr. Alderman, long recognized as one of the leading educators of the country, was en route from his home to Urbana, Ill., where he was to have delivered a lecture tomorrow night.

He was born in Wilmington, N. C., May 15, 1861, and graduated with the degree of Ph. B. from the University of North Carolina in 1882. He had been connected with the North Carolina State Normal College, being president in 1896; the University of North Carolina; president of Tulane University, and had been connected with the University of Virginia since 1904.

He leaves his widow and a son, Edwin Anderson Alderman.

41 DIE AS FIRE SWEEPS TRAIN

CAIRO, Egypt, April 30.—(AP.)—Forty-one persons were counted dead today, with scores injured, because a hot box set a train afire.

As the Cairo-Alexandria express rolled along yesterday afternoon, laden with a holiday crowd of pleasure seekers, a hot box developed on one of the third-class coaches and set the coach afire.

The train's motion pulled the flames down the length of the coach, and then one by one into the trailing coaches. Passengers were panic-stricken. Some burned to death. Others, preferring to jump from the speeding train, lost their lives as they hurled themselves from coach windows.

Frantic efforts were made to signal the engineer, who speeded up his train, unaware of the tragedy being enacted behind him. Not until he passed Benha, where a signalman saw the flames and flagged him down, did he know what had happened.

Altoona Boy Dies After Auto Crash

ALTOONA, Pa., April 30.—William Hess, 16, Altoona, died at the hospital early today from injuries received last night when the car in which he was riding left the road, hitting an abutment. George Reigard, 16, companion, is unconscious with a skull fracture. The pair rode in a borrowed car.

Looking Over Our Navy

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

We haven't got much of a navy. But we are certainly using it on the point-to-point system.

We just got through rushing 14 Class A rowboats to Spain when we heard that Alfonso had forgotten his 82-year-old Aunt Isabella.

Then we ran smack into a blow-out in Nicaragua and had to countermand the order. Sandino and his enthusiastic pedestrians started trouble so we deployed a Staten Island ferry or the cruiser type to take the boys for a ride.

Next, Honduras popped its lid and that meant we had to raise the Mayflower and replace Bill Taft's marble bathtub with a more reliable catapult.

Thanks to the pennies of the school children of a former generation we still have the old Constitution left for emergencies.

You don't hear much of the small-Navy birds this season. They're probably on neutral territory in their gardens planting pansies and hoping for tiger lilies.

Small Navy talk started around the time the three wise men of Gotham went to sea in a tub. That's why we moved the Capitol to Washington.

International trouble right on your own doormat means there is always work for honest hearts and willing hands. One to do the work and the other to grab at the budget.

But don't let anybody tell you we can defend ourselves throwing scrap iron at our enemies.

We must have those big guns throwing tons of hot knick-knacks at the horizon and churning up the sea-weed in the floating repair docks.

Right now we have 17 different cruisers in 17 different countries guarding Americans and their property from real estate agents.

So that, young people, is why we need a navy. You never miss the springtime until the birds have flown, you never miss the sunshine until the shadows fall and there are some places in this world where you can't take a train when you have missed the boat.

BILLIONS SPENT TO CURB FLOODS

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP.)—With this year's funds of $121,900,000 now being expended, river and harbor improvements and flood control works since creation of the government have cost almost $2,000,000,000.

More than half of this has been appropriated in the last 15 years. Figures compiled by Army engineers today showed Congress has provided $1,004,525,349 for water works since March 4, 1915. Previous to that date, $802,772,723 had been appropriated.

Despite these expenditures, some $562,000,000 will be required to complete existing projects. The most important of these is the flood control program of the Mississippi River and its tributaries, which will take almost $250,000,000.

Blooded Pups Play 'Hounds in Uncle Tom

CHICAGO, April 30.—(AP.)—Every dog has its day, and there were two out at the University of Chicago that had a night as well.

One of them was a giant police dog, the mascot of a fraternity. The other was an airedale.

The University Dramatic Association, not being able to find any bloodhounds to pursue Eliza across the ice in a collegiate version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," used the police dog and the airedale, to put the show across in a big way.

Old Simon Legree, whip and all, trod the boards again, in the person of Fritz Leiber, Jr., son of the Shakespearean actor.

KANE EAGLES NOT ENJOINED

A report that quarters of the Kane Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, was ordered "padlocked" for one year, in a decree of injunction signed by Federal Judge Nelson McVicar, was erroneous. Instead it should have read the Kane Lodge No. 329 of Elks.

The decree against the Elk lodge was handed down with decrees against Eagle aeries at Meadville, Erie, Franklin and Oil City, because of violations of the prohibition law on the premises. In each of the decrees the court stipulated that the properties may be reopened by the defendant organizations in three months by posting bonds against further violations and giving prohibition agents the right to make inspections of the premises.

Plane Crash Kills Girl, Pilot Injured

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., April 30.—(AP.)—Miss Ruth Beaven, 21, was killed when an airplane piloted by George M. Conover, an unlicensed aviator, crashed at the Phillips airport, near here. Conover was slightly hurt.

LEAGUE FIGHTS ANNEXING PLAN

League of Boroughs, Townships and Third Class Cities has petitioned Quarter Sessions Court for leave to intervene in and join in the appeal from the ordinance of the City of Pittsburgh in the matter of the annexation to the city of a portion of Penn Township.

Leave was granted by Judge George V. Moore and five days were allowed in which to file additional reasons why the proceeding is not in conformity with the law. In its petition the league says the success or failure of the Penn Township annexation is a matter of vital importance to the county.

SKINNY MEN

Gain pounds of weight in few weeks with new IRONIZED YEAST—a special combination of dried brewer's yeast plus iron—or pay nothing

Daily the letters pour in telling how new pounds of solid flesh in few weeks. Has given new strength and pep to countless tired people. Has banished constipation, indigestion. Has cleared skin.

Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—special strength building dried brewer's yeast and blood-enriching, strengthening iron. The yeast is the same as used in making malt and which makes them so beneficial. It is specially cultivated and concentrated to give the utmost in flesh producing. Then it is combined for strength with iron. Used by doctors in their private practice.

To this special dried brewer's Yeast is added three kinds of easily assimilated iron to quickly make rich red blood and tone up nerves and muscles. By this special process ironized yeast is made more effective than yeast or iron taken separately. Contains no starches, fillers or gas-forming agents. Pleasant little tablets—no yeast taste, no gas or bloating. Never spoil, safe for any health body.

Don't lose another week but go to your druggist today and get a full size package of Ironized Yeast Tablets. If you do not find that they are not delighting you in every way, return your empty package to the manufacturer.

MUSIC

Dramamount Singers

Schenley Ballroom

Mr. Lissfelt

The Dramamount Singers, a group of madrigal choristers, under the leadership of J. Carl Whitmer, sang again in Schenley ballroom last night. Mr. Whitmer's program is made of very old and very new music, and his project is one of the most noteworthy in contemporary concert planning.

The tendency is nowadays towards smaller ensembles both for singing and orchestral groups, away from volume of tone and back to music where beautiful patterns are not drowned in torrents of sound. Mr. Whitmer is thus again abreast of the times. But his chorus is made of trained voices, each a soloist in its way, and each singer artist enough to contribute his talents to the group effect.

There were fragments of masses and madrigals of Palestrina, Sweelinck, Monteverde, part songs and rounds of old France and England, modern English folk songs, and a chorus of Mr. Whitmer, "When God Laughed," accompanied by the Fillion String Ensemble.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

BIG ORDER GIVEN WESTINGHOUSE

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company has been given an order for about $125,000 by the Central Power and Light Company, of San Antonio, Tex. The order is for three large vertical waterwheel generators. The generators are expected to be completed at the East Pittsburgh plant of the Westinghouse company about August 1. It is estimated that 22,000 man hours will be required to build them.

Reading Declares War On Speeders

READING, Pa., April 30.—(AP.)—Declaring the pedestrian, with rights equal to those of motorists, "Doesn't have a chance," Mayor J. Henry Stump ordered the police force here to enforce the 20-mile speed limit to the letter. Officers will be given stop watches and speed traps will be established.

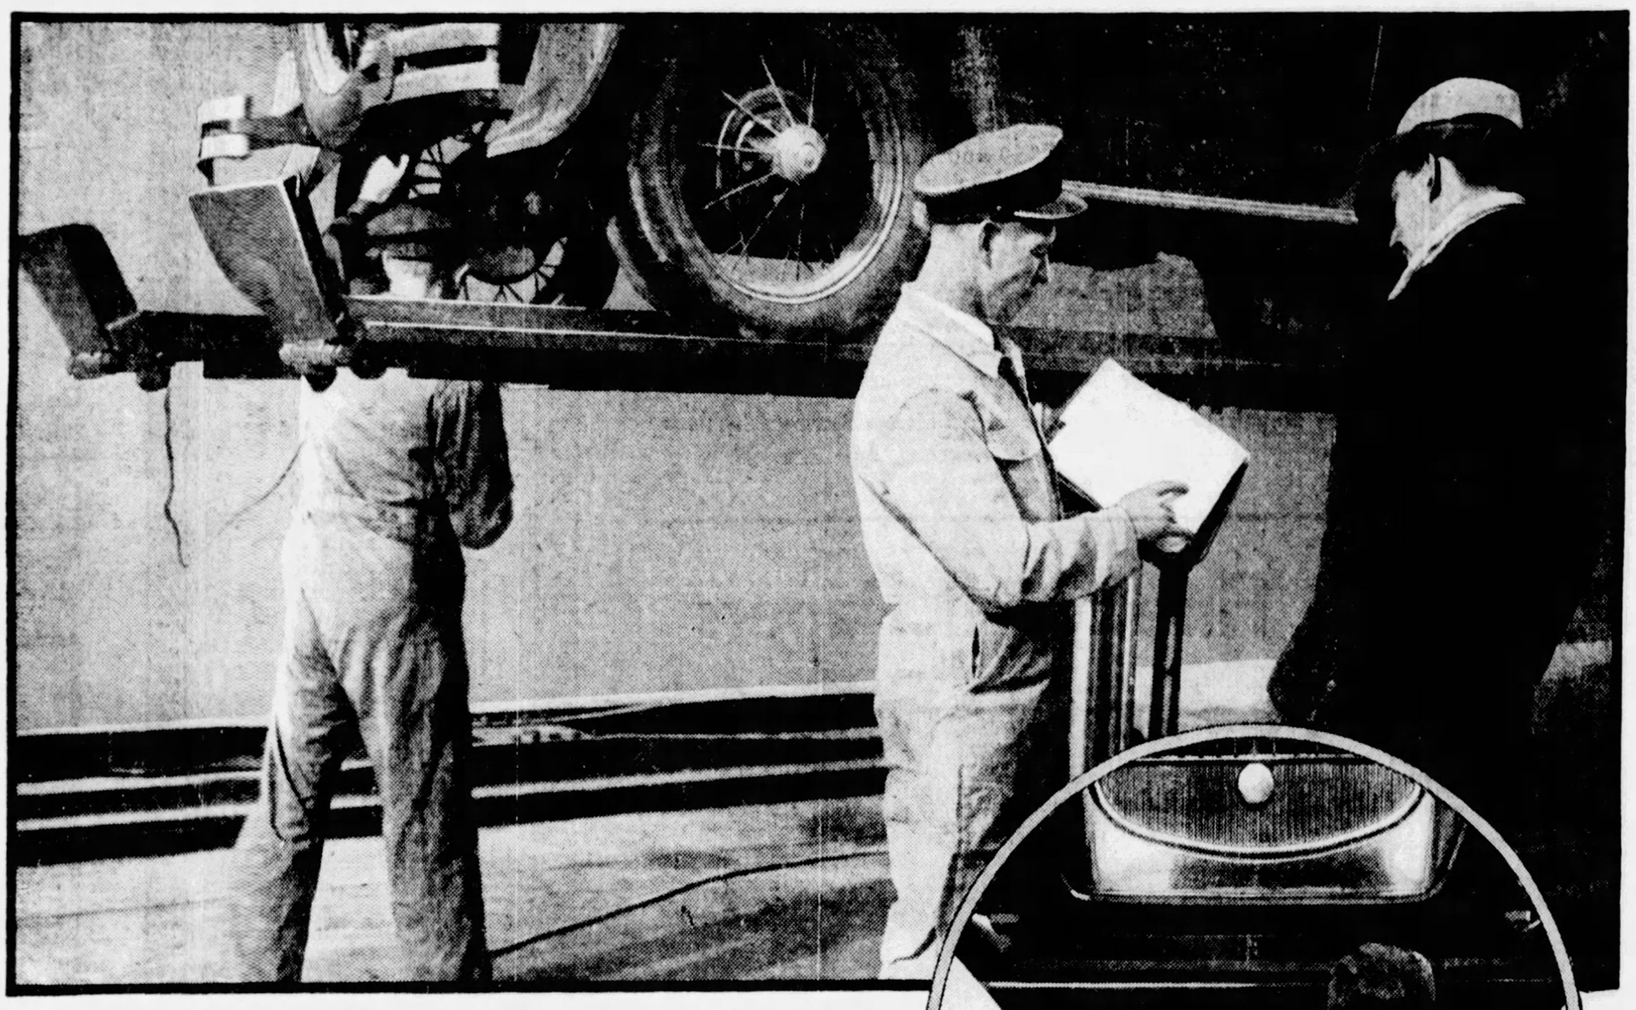
PUT YOUR CAR IN SHAPE FOR SUMMER



LUBRICATE CHASSIS. The lubrication charts used by "Standard" service men show the right lubricant for every cup and friction point on every type of car. To assure thoroughness, every point is carefully checked as serviced. Special greases developed in the "Standard" Laboratories meet every lubrication requirement.

NOW is the time to change to summer grade motor oil—and fresh, new greases all around. Have it done today at your "Standard" station or dealer.

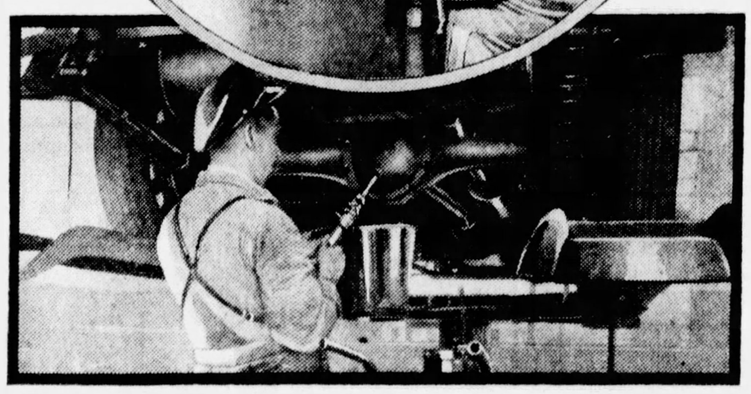
All "Standard" lubricants were developed in the "Standard" laboratories. There is a special grease to meet every lubrication requirement.

Any "Standard" dealer can drain your crankcase and refill with fresh "Standard" Motor Oil of the right grade for summer driving.

The larger dealers and "Standard" stations are equipped to give complete lubrication service—and to supply you with Atlas Tires—the new, economical, first quality tire, guaranteed against all road hazards. Lifts, pits, special lubricating equipment assure rapid, thorough service. Have your car spring-serviced the "Standard" way today. You'll reap the rewards all summer.

AWAY WITH THE OLD WINTER OIL. Remove sludge and dirt from the motor with "Standard" Flushing Oil. Then refill with fresh "Standard" Motor Oil, or Penotol, the new 100% Pennsylvania oil. The "Standard" service man knows the right summer grade for your car.

ATLAS TIRES are economical and insured for one year against all road hazards, by the Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania.



DON'T FORGET YOUR DIFFERENTIAL AND TRANSMISSION. These vital gears must not be neglected. Have these gear boxes flushed, and refilled with "Standard" Leaded Compound—the new special gear lubricant, developed by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. "Standard" service men with special equipment do this job thoroughly and quickly.

Child Terribly Troubled With Eczema. Healed by Cuticura.

"About a year ago my little son was terribly troubled with eczema. The eruptions came in small pimple form, and gradually spread over his body and limbs. The itching and burning often kept him from sleeping and made him fretful. The trouble lasted six or seven months.

"I tried other remedies but the trouble kept getting worse. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after several applications I noticed an improvement. I purchased more and in two months he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. A. F. Hillegass, Berlin, Pa., March 24, 1930.

ARNOLD SCHOOL GIVEN $100,000

A gift of $100,000 has been made by R. E. Withers, treasurer of the Aluminum Company of America, to finance the new gymnasium at Arnold School, Braddock avenue, it was announced last night at a dinner in the University Club, at which plans for a $200,000 campaign for the school were discussed. It is proposed to build, in addition to the gymnasium, an addition providing for nine additional rooms, permitting the expansion of the junior and senior schools.

Friends of the school present at the dinner formed a campaign committee with Withers as general campaign chairman. He is president of the board of trustees. H. V. Blaxter was selected vice chairman. Solicitation, confined to a group of friends and parents of students and former students, began immediately.

Steam Pipe Breaks, Tellers Save Money

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—Tellers stuck by their money piles but every one else fled when a steam pipe burst with a roar in the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company, Madison avenue. A customer and two employes were painfully scalded.

FROST DAMAGES GARDENS HERE

Heavy frost, general throughout Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia, is believed by orchardists and gardeners to have caused heavy damage last night.

While a low temperature of 34 was reported at the local weather bureau, 25 degrees was reported in the Mt. Lebanon section and other districts reported freezing weather. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman reported that near his Brookside Farms home icicles two feet long were formed by dripping water.

Today the mercury is expected to mount to the sixities and tonight cloudy weather probably will prevent a recurrence of the heavy frost, after which more seasonable weather is indicated.

BORAH ASSAILS U. S. WASTE

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP.)—The people have been told by Senator Borah that the federal government is approaching "the most wasteful, the most demoralizing and most inefficient form" yet conceived.

This statement the Idaho Republican made yesterday to answer President Hoover's recent assertion that no tax increase would be necessary if Congress kept expenditures within budget recommendations.

Borah replied that "Congress is constantly being besieged by the executive departments for much larger appropriations than Congress is willing to grant."

Real Estate

A brick house of 11 rooms and two baths, 920 Cedar avenue, Twenty-third Ward, on lot 40x80 feet, has been sold by Mrs. Edna McKee to Mrs. Barbara Loftus for a consideration of $18,000, reports H. C. Mendel & Co., North Side realtors.

A house and garage on lot 50x120 feet in West View avenue, Ross Township, has been conveyed by Newton Cole to Mary E. Yester for $5,000. Another home in West View avenue on lot 40x100 feet has been purchased by Charles Stone from Frank Schuster for $4,900, according to H. C. Mendel & Co.

REALTOR MOVES

Thomas J. Cullen, Jr., head of the Cullen Company, East End brokers, has moved his offices from the Highland Building to a first floor storeroom at 6013 Center avenue. The company was founded by Cullen in 1925.

A modern two-and-a-half-story brick house in the Evergreen Heights plan, Ross Township, has been sold for $9,000 by Frank J. Heintz to Stanley J. Jackson, according to Benjamin B. Moore, realtor.

An improved property in Agnew street, Twenty-ninth Ward, has been purchased by Ralph L. Gallagher from William C. Cornelius for a $7,350 consideration. The lot measures 25x125 feet.

A new six-room brick home, 4317 Haldane street, East End, has been sold by M. A. Paul, builder, to C. O. Best, according to M. J. Sweeney, East End broker. Sweeney has also sold for Paul to James P. Car a new brick home at 4315 Haldane street. Two houses at 3220-22 Beechwood boulevard have been purchased through Sweeney's office. These homes were also constructed by Paul. One was purchased by John P. Smith and the other by William Smith, according to the realtor.

C. C. Hamilton & Co., downtown brokers, have sold for Martha S. Howe to John J. White a hotel consisting of 20 rooms in Deer Park, Md. The grounds occupy 29 acres. The brokers say that the price paid for the property was $15,000.

PLAN TO QUELL HUGE OIL FIRE

GLADEWATER, Tex., April 30.—(INS.)—With the names of eight men on the official death list, the flaming oil that snuffed out their lives continued to spray the countryside today, while Oklahoma fire fighters made preparations to extinguish it.

John Keys was the latest victim of the Sinclair No. 1 oil well disaster, dying last night at the Longview Sanitarium.

Reports that three men were missing in the seething furnace were declared unfounded by Sinclair officials. Frank Feiock, another workman, however, was reported in a dying condition.

Harry F. Sinclair, president of the Sinclair Oil Company, arrived yesterday and offered all the assistance at his command to the stricken families. The Oklahoma fire fighters, M. M. and F. T. Kinley, were prepared to snuff out the blaze with dynamite.

An investigation was to be made of the cause of the disaster, although it is generally accepted that a spark from a drill stem ignited the 20,000-barrel gusher, which was brought in out of control Monday. The well has been a volcano of fiery oil for 48 hours. Great pools of flaming oil surrounded the site of the well.

Lake Crowded, Anglers Invited To Fish Party

LANCASTER, Pa., April 30.—(INS.)—A fisherman's paradise has been found.

The lake in Long Park, one of the city's chief recreation centers here, has become so full of fish authorities have invited all residents to take part in a fishing party tomorrow and haul out 20 fish each—if they can.

The lake will be opened to anglers from 4 a. m. to 4 p. m. Saturday, park commissioners announced.

Eight years ago a similar invitation was issued and 3,000 persons accepted.

MILLIKEN SAYS HE'S 'BROKE'

ST. LOUIS, April 30.—(INS.)—John T. Milliken, Jr., who is being sued for divorce by his wife, the former Mildred McCloy, of Pittsburgh, is "broke," according to the testimony on file in Circuit Court here today which he gave at a hearing on the application of his wife for temporary alimony.

He sold his airplane last summer, he said, and spent the proceeds in a vain attempt to affect a reconciliation with his wife. Since then he has sold two of his three automobiles to pay attorney fees, he said. He also owes his mother $10,500, he testified.

DRY LAW HIT BY CHESTERTON

LONDON, April 30.—(AP.)—Gilbert K. Chesterton, author, told the Society for Preservation of Rural England on his return from the United States yesterday that he felt as if he had "just returned from a different civilization—or barbarism, whatever you call it."

Prohibition, "ugly" buildings and Tennessee's rigorous moral code impressed him strongest on his tour of America, he said, adding that New York was as terrifying to Americans as to foreigners.

In regard to prohibition, Mr. Chesterton said the law was threatening America with disaster. He added:

"There is plenty to drink—far, far too much. Alcoholism has never threatened disaster as it is threatening America today. It isn't normal that girls of 16 should go to dances and drink raw alcohol."

LEAGUE COURT JUDGES LAX IN WORK

Pay Little Heed to Speeches In Strange Languages; Confusion for Kellogg

This is the last of a series of four articles on the League Court, now in session at The Hague. The first three described the court's close affiliation with the League of Nations, sketched the important justices, and told why the League selected them for political reasons. Today's depicts a typical session of the court.

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

THE HAGUE, April 30.—La Cour!

As a hardy Dutchman bellows out these words in French, the audience slowly rises. Necks crane toward a door at the left.

Within an instant the judges of the League Court file through the door. Their black robes flutter and swish as they walk toward the bench. Some whose robes are long have to hoist the skirts to mount the steps. A fluffy lace affair, looking for all the world like a bib, dangles from their collars.

All sizes, all shapes, all colors, these judges are, from the tiny yellow-skinned president, Adatci, of Japan, to the snowy-whiskered Altamira, of Spain. Adatci's bald head glistens under the bright lights overhead.

KELLOGG TAKES OATH

On the president's right sits Guerrero, of Salvador, the vice president, and on his left, Kellogg, of the United States.

The court is meeting to give an advisory opinion for the League Council. It deals with the Polish-German row over the admission of German children to minority schools in Polish Upper Silesia. They've been scrapping over this at Geneva, and now they have come here. The Council shunted the question to the court.

Before the German counsel begins, Adatci announces that Kellogg must take the oath of a judge. Kellogg does the honors alone. The others were sworn at an earlier session.

The speeches are all written down on paper, but the machinery balks. Everybody stands again. Adatci reads a little piece in French. Kellogg, who obviously is confused because he doesn't know French, in which most of the proceedings are conducted, reads the declaration in English. The interpreters get the cart before the horse. They translate Kellogg's piece before they do Adatci's. Thus, so far as the English hearers know, Kellogg takes the oath before the president has even called upon him to do so. The audience smiles. The court appears embarrassed.

KELLOGG CONFUSED

Nobody on the bench appears to be paying attention. Hurst, of Great Britain, doesn't even try to stifle yawns, but just yawns away contentedly. Negulesco, of Rumania, watches the audience. There are some beautiful women present. A pretty girl enters. The eyes of the judges follow her to her seat.

Rostworowski, of Poland, a hulk of a man, glowers as the German counsel, in a black and red robe, warms up. When the Polish lawyer speaks, Rostworowsky appears more at ease. The German judge, Schucking, his brownish face set off by elephantine ears, looks as if he could eat a barrel of nails.

The French is apparently getting too much for Kellogg. He doesn't try any longer even to appear to be attentive. He half dozes, but catches himself and thumbs some papers before him.

The scene is a typical work day of the court.

These men who just a short while ago were politicians or diplomats or law professors are now judges of the League Court—engaged in the League of Nations' work.

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

Every now and then a story will creep into a newspaper which is not based on fact. It is remarkable that this happens so seldom when you realize the hundreds of stories published each day. Needless to say, accuracy is the goal of every newspaper, but there was a day when fanciful legends, albeit harmless, were published as fact.

Hotel reporters, for instance, who also covered the Union Station often invented stories, especially those reporters who were paid not a weekly salary but for the space they filled. A good example was the reporter who, on a dull night, turned in to his city editor a story of the West Virginia mountaineer who was putting up at one of the Pittsburgh hotels at the moment. It seems this mountainer had false teeth, but they were not ordinary false teeth; these teeth, carved by the gentleman himself, were made of West Virginia hickory wood.

The city editor accepted the story in good faith and it appeared in the paper. The following day a newspaper which had employed this reporter several years before dug the same story out of its files and reprinted it, with appropriate sarcasm, forgetting for the moment that its first publication, too, was based on fancy.

Then there was the reporter sent to cover the opening of a new line of tracks for the Pennsylvania Railroad. The railroad's press agent distributed the customary, if dull, report of the program beforehand.

It was an unpleasant day; perhaps a blizzard was blowing, so this reporter accepted the press agent's report, hied himself to the Press Club and telephoned his office intermittently to assure his boss that he was at the scene of the crime, so to speak.

In fact, he sent in a well-done report of the occasion, which his newspaper published, only to discover, after the paper had reached the street, that the weather had been so distasteful that the whole program had been called off.

But the prize story of those days concerns the King of Siam, not the estimable gentleman visiting this country today, but one of his predecessors. Jack Hazlett, Harry Laufman, Bill Beazell, John McKirdy, John Gable and Jim Sansom know the story best.

More than 25 years ago the crown prince of Siam was touring this country. Pittsburgh was on his itinerary. Things were dull in this particular newspaper office on this night, so a copyreader who shall be called Jones, having read of the crown prince's visit, was smitten with a crazy notion.

Five minutes before a deadline (when all news had to be disposed of) Jones turned to a typewriter and wrote:

"The King of Siam was assassinated in the royal palace this morning. He was set upon by soldiers of his bodyguard while ascending the steps to the council room. Members of his retinue who attempted to defend him were cut down. The city is in an uproar and an insurrection is feared."

Quietly, Jones placed his copy where his boss, the telegraph editor, would be certain to see it just before the deadline. Then Jones went out for lunch.

Smith, the telegraph editor, saw the copy a minute after Jones had departed, and let loose an oath of appreciation for such a good story.

He dashed off an appropriate headline, he held up the presses, he barked orders to the printers to speed through this story of stories.

Twenty minutes later Jones was with his coffee and sandwich in a Diamond way res-

2 ATTEMPTS FOILED IN EAST END

Mother Blocks Attempt of Telephone Inquirer to Take Girl from Classroom

East End police today had found no trace of the man who attempted to lure two school girls in the East End yesterday afternoon.

School authorities in that district were warned by Inspector Bernard J. Kirley to release no children from school on telephoned requests when the incidents were reported to him.

The first case was reported by Mrs. R. M. Hamilton, and authorities at the Fulton School, Hampton and North St. Clair streets. Mrs. Hamilton told police, they said, a man, posing as a reporter, telephoned her and expressed a desire to publish a picture of her daughter, Helen, 10, in a newspaper. Learning that the girl was at school, the man asked what school she attended and ended the conversation.

Suspicious, Mrs. Hamilton telephoned the school authorities and warned that her daughter should not be released upon anybody's request. A short time later a man called the school, saying he was going to take the girl home because of the serious illness of one of the members of her family.

Plainclothesmen followed the girl from school, but the man did not appear.

The same man, police said, approached Alberta Hug, 10, of 726 Mellon street, as she was returning from school. Her father, Joseph Hug, reported that the stranger accosted his daughter and attempted to lure her by offering her money, according to police. The girl became frightened and ran home, informing her father.

TECH 'TARTAN' AWARDS KEYS

Twenty-three active keys were awarded for service on the staff of the Tartan, weekly publication of Carnegie Institute of Technology students, at the twelfth annual dinner of the staff in the Commons Annex last night. Belgian King Named By Foch to Command New Allied Attack

In yesterday's installment Marshal Foch outlined the plans that were discussed with Gen. Pershing for the attack of the American forces on the St. Mihiel salient on September 12, 1918, and the subsequent employment of U. S. troops in an offensive between the Meuse River and the Argonne. He told of the victorious drive of the Americans at St. Mihiel. In today's instalment he describes the further drives that were planned against the retreating Germans.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

While the American Army was preparing and fighting in the Woevre region, a battle whose usefulness for the future development of operations was evident to all, the advance of the Franco-British armies between the Aisne and the Scarpe continued without pause.

Shaken by the piercing of the Drocourt-Queant line, driven from the valley of the Somme by the loss of Peronne, hard pressed on the plateau north of Soissons, the enemy, as we have already seen, had been compelled to fall back toward the Hindenburg Line.

This retreat, begun on September 2, 1918, was continued until the 9th, and brought the Allies to the general line Arleux - Marquion - Vermand-Tergnier-Vailly. On this enormous front they had advanced from 12 to 30 miles in a month.

They now had to attack the formidable defensive system erected by the enemy during the winter of 1916-1917 on the front Cambrai-Saint Quentin-La Fere-Saint Gobain. This system proper was prolonged both northward and southward by the positions (since constantly strengthened), in front of which we had been stopped at the end of 1914.

To drive the enemy from this fortified system, to break down this obstacle, we must assail it by continuing and maintaining the attacks of our already victorious armies. But there was a chance that this method might not suffice, for, should we confine ourselves to it alone, we ran the risk

ROBOT TO TALK AT DINNER

"Mr. Vocalite," the mechanical man developed by engineers of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, will make his appearance as the world's first automatic toastmaster at a dinner of the Pittsburgh Advertising Club in the William Penn Hotel tonight. He will preside and introduce the speakers.

The vocabulary of "Mr. Vocalite" consists of numerous adjectives spoken without hesitation. At the dinner he will introduce Ray H. Knight, better known as Ambrose J. Weems, radio artist, and A. K. Rosewell, the speakers.

Burglar Suspect Held for Hearing

Isaac Parker, 29, Negro, of Paulson street, was held in Center Avenue Police Station today, following his arrest in a grocery at 401 Kirkpatrick street, early today. Patrolmen Andrew Purcell and Mike Weitzell, who arrested him, said he had broken open a door leading into the store.

WIFE GRANTED DIVORCE

Her husband lost all his money in the stock market and in a fit of depression attempted to asphyxiate his family, according to the testimony of Mrs. Marion Hahn, 666 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, granted a divorce by Judge Sylvester J. Snee in Common Pleas Court nearly 25 years after her marriage.

Walter Casper Hahn, her husband, a Johnstown storekeeper, turned on the gas through the house one night around Christmas in 1920, and she and her son and daughter, now 24 and 18 respectively, were overcome and spent three days in the hospital, Mrs. Hahn testified. She left him in April, 1921, after he had threatened to put her out for two years and finally gave her two weeks to get out, she testified. They were married in Cumberland, Md., November 12, 1906. Her suit was uncontested.

CITY PRAISED AS INDUSTRIAL WORLD ACME

Rotary Speaker Describes Factors in Modern Life As District Meeting Ends

One thousand Rotarians and their wives heard Harry Nalden Holmes, secretary, World Alliance for International Friendship, give the closing address of the conference of the Thirty-third District Rotary International, last night in William Penn Hotel.

Holmes referred to Pittsburgh as the epitome of industrial world empire and listed three factors which produced the modern world.

Expansion of the West by Europe, the sovereignty of the general public and the industrial revolution. He said:

"The most distinguishing characteristic of our time is rapid transportation; today we have become a neighborhood. We have reached the frontier of the physical world; now we must have a world consciousness."

Harry White, of Indiana, Pa., was nominated district governor. He will take office July 1, succeeding Bert H. Smyers, Pittsburgh.

Others on the banquet program were Albert C. Daschbach, William de Cock Buning, of The Hague; Stanley P. Ashe, toastmaster; Homer Rodeheaver, song leader; the Rev. Robert F. Galbreath, who gave the invocation; the All-Pittsburgh High School Orchestra, the Peabody High School A'Capella Choir and a quartet.

Wister L. Lynch, general chairman of the conference, presided at the banquet.

Judge to Discuss Cases of Children

Two addresses on the work of the Juvenile Court in Allegheny County were to be made today by Judge D. Paulson Foster, of Common Pleas Court. At noon today he was to discuss "The Greatest Cause of Delinquency Among Children," at the meeting of the Bond Club in the William Penn Hotel. Tonight he is to speak before the Men and Women's Bible Class of the Homestead United Presbyterian Church in the church auditorium.

SCHOOLEY CALLS FOR PAYMENT

Plans Drive on Water Rent Delinquents by Shutting Off Supply; Sees Levy Cut

City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley announced today that property owners owe the City of Pittsburgh nearly $7,000,000 in back taxes, which item has been accumulating since 1914. This sum, he says, is equal to 10 mills taxation.

He asserts that property owners who fail to pay their taxes are making those who do carry the burden and it is unjust.

Beginning tomorrow he intends to use pressure to collect the water rents that are in arrears, by ordering the water shut off. The City Treasurer says if those who owe the city money pay up, taxes can be reduced. He said:

TAX CUT PROBLEM

"Lower taxation is the biggest subject of the hour. It is the biggest problem facing the people of Pittsburgh. It has to be reckoned with. The man who fails to pay his taxes this year, makes his neighbor help to pay them next year."

Treasurer Schooley stressed that constructive thought is needed, as well as constructive action in the effort to reduce taxes. He contends that in his judgment, taxation in Pittsburgh has reached the limit.

He believes that it will take constant watching to keep the city's expenditures within budget appropriations for 1931, and that if taxes are to be reduced in 1932, care will have to be increased.

He said:

BURDEN INCREASED

"The nearly $7,000,000 owed the city has been pyramided since the World War. Had these taxes been paid, the city millage would not be as high as it is today. Taxes can, and no doubt will, be reduced. But first of all, those who owe the city must understand that their failure to pay, is only increasing the burden of taxation."

Treasurer Schooley could not give the amount of back water rents that have collected since he started the campaign last year to collect $1,600,000. He says a considerable sum has been paid in.

He said:

"Water users cannot put water in the tax class. Water is not a tax. It is a service for which the public obtains value received."

Police Aid Asked In Hunt for Girl

The assistance of city and county police has been asked in the search for Mary Fitch, 14, of Rural Ridge, near Tarentum, who disappeared from her home Friday. The girl, a pupil at the Russellton No. 1 public school, left her home at noon Friday.

Persons who know the girl have told her parents that they had seen her in Sharpsburg on Saturday and in the East Liberty district Monday. It is believed that the girl may have come to Pittsburgh in search of employment as a domestic.

Gasoline Demanded As Pastor's Ransom

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Chinese bandits holding captive the Rev. Bert N. Nelson, American missionary, are now demanding 30 cans of gasoline before they effect his release, the State Department has advised.

The bandits previously asked for tennis balls, golf balls and other sporting goods before they released their captive. The department was unadvised whether these demands were met.

New Laws Would Widen State Auto Inspection

(This is the first of a series of articles on proposed changes in the Pennsylvania Motor Code, now pending before the Legislature. The stories were prepared by the Pittsburgh Motor Club for the Sun-Telegraph.)

Three changes in the state's compulsory inspection of motor vehicles are planned in laws now before the State Legislature, inspired by statistics which show only 85 per cent of the autos in use last year were examined under the present inspection regulations.

These changes are:

1. Requirement that a certificate of inspection and approval must accompany any renewal application for license plates. The sticker now in use would be attached to the inspected car's windshield and the certificate given to the owner.

2. Arrest of all drivers operating cars without the state sticker for 60 days after the inspection period ends. Drivers now are arrested if their car appears without a sticker within 30 days of the period's end. Many legislators think the present time limit is insufficient.

3. Requirement that new cars be inspected and approved before plates are issued for them.

If these changes are effected the state plans to install permanent inspection stations throughout the state, supplanting the privately-owned ones now used each year.

FOOD, CLOTHES FOUND IN ROOM

Man, Woman Say They Were Employed by Agency, One 'Aide' to 'Buck' Crouse

Two men and two women were arrested early today by North Side police and charged with stealing food and clothing from the store of Father James R. Cox relief agency in Old St. Patrick Roman Catholic Church, Seventeenth street and Liberty avenue.

One man and one woman said they were employed by Father Cox to aid in the distribution of the relief materials.

They gave their names as Anthony O'Donnell, 35, who said he lived in the church parsonage; Thomas Conley, 33, of 213 Voighly street; Della Malloy, 28, who also claimed the parsonage as her residence, and Mrs. Elizabeth Weisfoot, 21, of 1604 Howard street.

All four were arrested in a luxuriously furnished room in Voighly street, maintained by O'Donnell. Arresting officers said the room contained a piano, a victrola and a radio in addition to much other furniture.

A large amount of clothing and foodstuff from the relief agency was found in the room, police said.

O'Donnell said he was an assistant to "Buck" Crouse, former prize fighter, who now has charge of the distribution for Father Cox. He told Magistrate Schneider, in North Side Police Court, where the four were arraigned on larceny charges, that Crouse had asked him to store the material in "some safe place."

Crouse was unable to attend today's hearing, so Schneider continued the case until tomorrow morning when the relief director said he would appear.

HUNGER FAKER GETS 30 DAYS

Somebody told Marie Gilson, 33, of 214 East Parkway, North Side, that firemen were big-hearted.

So, she told Magistrate Schneider in North Side Police Court, she decided to find out for herself.

She went to Engine Company No. 3 and told the firemen there she had no food for her four children. The firemen gave her $7.50.

Capt. Edward Kerr, a suspicious man, followed Marie. He testified before Schneider this morning that Marie, instead of going home to her children, picked up another woman and they went on a spending orgy in a downtown confectionery store.

The woman admitted to the magistrate that she had no children and was sentenced to the workhouse for 30 days on a charge of vagrancy.

15 Merchants Held In Homestead Raids

Fifteen Homestead merchants face hearings tonight as a result of a cleanup by borough police of stores in which vending machines were found. Police reported the destruction of 25 machines.

The merchants, arrested after raids yesterday and charged with violation of a borough ordinance, were later released on their own recognizance. The hearings will be held before Burgess John Cavanaugh.

Police Arrest Two In Stolen Auto

Eugene Palmer, 22, of McKees Rocks, and Anthony Ponklaus, 22, of 409 Tabor street, were arrested by county motorcycle police in the Liberty Tubes early today and held in Mt. Washington Police Station on suspicious person charges while police investigated them. It was said they were driving an automobile belonging to J. F. Myers, of 603 Gearing avenue, reported stolen by the owner last night.

P. R. R. to Retire 18 Employes Here

The Central Region of the Pennsylvania Railroad, of which Pittsburgh is headquarters, will retire 18 employes on pension tomorrow. Two of them, Charles L. Hagerty, conductor, 110 West Oliver avenue, Duquesne Pa., and David Cashman, engineer, of St. Marys, Pa., have more than 51 years' continuous service to their record.

Hebrew Relief Body Marks Anniversary

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Hebrew Ladies' Sick and Relief Society was observed last night with the presentation of a play in Adath Jeshurun Synagogue, Margaretta street. The play was entitled "Something Different." Rabbi M. S. Sivitz was the principal speaker and Mrs. Max Danovitz presided.

Plan Fashion Show In Munhall School

Members of the domestic science and art classes of Munhall High School will present a fashion show in the high school auditorium tomorrow night. The show will be under the direction of Mrs. Anna Johnson, art teacher, and Miss Helen Schermer, teacher of domestic science.

DRY AGENTS CARTING AWAY EVIDENCE OF THEIR RAID

Three men were arrested, equipment valued at $20,000 was seized in this raid on what dry agents termed a liquor and beer manufacturers' supply house. Six truck loads in all were removed.

3 MEN SEIZED IN DRY RAID

Three men, arrested by prohibition agents yesterday in a raid on what they described as a distillers' supply store at 1703 Penn avenue, were awaiting a hearing today before the United States Commissioner.

Those arrested were Ben Goldberg, 39, the alleged proprietor; Samuel Perlman, 40, of 1528 Center avenue, and George Davis, 22, Negro, said to be employed in the place. Goldberg and Davis were released on $1,000 bail each and Perlman, who suffered a heart attack during the raid in which more than $15,000 worth of alleged distilling supplies were seized, was released on his own recognizance.

Several stills were reported confiscated in the cellar of the store, the walls of which were lined with five-gallon cans.

Brentwood Schools Plan May Pole Dance

A parade of school children and a May pole dance will feature the program of Child Health Day in the Brentwood schools tomorrow. The children will parade from the school to Brentwood Park, where the health demonstration will be staged.

The pupils will sing, and Leo Herrold, physical instructor, will direct the children in their exercises. Mrs. James Soukup, district chairman of the Child Health Council of Allegheny County, will direct 30 children in a May pole dance.

1 HURT, 3 HELD IN FIGHT

One man was in South Side Hospital and three others in South Side Police Station today as a result of a fight in Bigham street. The injured man is John Kedlish, 41, of 77 South Eleventh street, cut on the face and held for observation.

Following the fight police raided a house at 1210 Bigham street and arrested William Claypool on a charge of keeping a disorderly house; Harry Hoerr, 30, of 429 Sweetbriar street, on a charge of disorderly conduct, and William Price, 23, of 1210 Bigham street, charged with being a visitor. Police said they found three gallons of moonshine in the place.

Kedlish and Hoerr were said to have quarrelled in the house and later went into the street, where they staged a fight in which the former was injured.

Boy and Man Hurt In Auto Accidents

George Bohoric, 5, of 5135 Kent way, suffered a compound fracture of the left leg when he was struck by an automobile in Fifty-second street last night. He was in St. Francis Hospital today.

Charles Dohman, 22, of East street, West Tarentum, was injured when his automobile ran off the roadway of Route 22 between East Deer Creek Township and Tarentum. He was taken to Valley Hospital, Tarentum.

taurant when he heard the newsboy's yell:

"King 'er Siam 'sass'nated! Extra!"

Meanwhile, the opposition papers were up in arms. They had been scooped, and scooped soundly. Telegraph wires carried the story over the nation, cables whisked it to London, Paris, Berlin. In each dispatch the Pittsburgh newspaper was credited with its exclusive story.

At Washington, the Siamese minister was puzzled, but silent; he knew nothing. Siamese agents over the world were in mourning.

By a coincidence, the cable lines to Siam were out of commission, for some reason or other. For 48 hours the story was printed and reprinted. Jones' editors enjoyed the spotlight of achievement.

Not until Jones' editor had read countless stories of the purported assassination in other papers did he realize that each story quoted his paper as the source—the only source. Finally, suspicious, he dug out the original story written by Jones. He noted the absence of typical symbols on the copy.

His heart turned figurative somersaults. He found out that Jones hadn't returned from lunch that night. The castle of fancy collapsed into ruins of humiliation.

What happened to Jones? Fired? No. A philosophical soul, the editor consigned him and his fanciful mind to the finance department to deal with cold, uncompromising, unchangeable annual reports and such.

Washington Awaits Philippine Chief

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP.)—Filipino officials in Washington are awaiting the arrival May 4 or 5 of Manuel C. Quezon, president of the Philippine Senate and independence advocate.

Quezon, who has been in Monrovia, Cal., several months recuperating from an illness from which he suffered even before his departure from Manila to participate here in the independence campaign, expects to remain a month.

Traffic Association To Pick Candidates

Candidates for office of the Traffic and Transportation Association of Pittsburgh will be announced by the nominating committee at the monthly meeting of the association tomorrow night. The meeting is to be held in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. The election will take place in June. After the nominating committee has announced its list each candidate will present his plea through his campaign manager.

2 LOAN HEADS HELD FOR COURT

Managers Waive Hearing On Charge of Collecting Illegal Interest Rate

Charles Jennings, Jr., manager of the Fulton Loan Association, 326 Fourth avenue, and J. A. Hasenauer, manager of the Daily Loan Service, 41[illegible] Fourth avenue, waived hearings and were held for court when arraigned today before Alderman George J. Anderson on charges of violation of the small loan act by alleged collection of illegal interest on loans.

The charges were filed yesterday after Special Investigator George H. Slaine of the State Banking Department took information gleaned from examination of the companies' books to Assistant District Attorney Ralph E. Phillips. The men were taken into custody by Private Detective Frank Corwin, later released under $2,000 bail each.

It is charged that the two companies charged 10 per cent instead of the legal 3½ per cent on small loans. The investigation resulted when extortion charges were filed against C. D. Dorsett, of West View, who, Corwin said, had received money from the accused men in return for failing to file charges with the Banking Department about interest rates. Dorsett was refused permission to plead guilty to the charges by District Attorney Andrew D. Parke yesterday.

Annual Feast Held By Retail Grocers

The twelfth annual banquet of the Retail Grocers' Association of Allegheny County was held in [illegible] Creery's last night, with more than 900 present. Speakers were Judge J. P. Egan, of Common Pleas Court; Attorney J. Howard Devlin and Charles Kolb, president of the Pittsburgh Association of Manufacturers' Representatives. J. V. Loughran, secretary of the grocers' organization, was toastmaster. Following the dinner there was a vaudeville performance.

CITY OFFICIALS STUDY PLANS FOR STREET REPAIRS

HOPE TO AVOID CESSATION OF WORK

Herron, Kerr to Attend Parley Caused by Trolley Firm's Inability to Pay

Plans to speedily complete repairs started on streets used by the Pittsburgh Railways Company were being discussed by city officials today. Due to the company's inability to pay the last quarterly street improvement assessment for 1930, a cessation of work loomed. It is to prevent this that city Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt called a meeting.

The parley is separate from a public hearing to be held soon at the request of the Allied Boards of Trade.

Those who will attend, Waldschmidt said, are President John S. Herron, of Council; Controller James P. Kerr and Charles Finley, of the Traction Conference Board.

A short conference was held in Waldschmidt's office yesterday. Finley was absent.

The city must decide about contracts now under way and those that might be awarded in the future.

GYPSIES LEAVE CAMP SITE

More than 100 gypsies today packed their belongings, broke up their camp near Olympia Park, near McKeesport, and were leaving the county. A squad of detectives had plannd to see that the gypsies kept their promise to Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren that they would be out of the county within 24 hours.

On complaint of residents of the McKeesport district, county detectives yesterday visited the gypsy camp. Two women were arrested and lodged in the Turtle Creek police station for fortune telling. Chief Murren told the gypsies that if they would leave the county he would have the young women released from jail.

The women, Magdalena Caprello and Madam DePulaski, were given their freedom and the party planned to break camp this morning.

DOWNTOWN FIRE LOSS $2,000

Fire on the second floor of a four-story brick building at 820 Fifth avenue shortly after 2 a. m. today did damage estimated by Battalion Chief George Spaar at $2,000.

The first floor is occupied by the I. Dinovitz wholesale clothing company; the second by the M. A. Berman Comany, wholesale clothiers, and the third and fourth by a pattern concern.

United States Railway postal clerks, sleeping in a dormitory over the Uptown Postoffice, next door to the burning building, were awakened by firemen, but were not forced to leave their quarters.

LEGISLATOR'S FATHER DIES

Charles Steedle, 79, father of Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, Allegheny County member of the House of Representatives, died last night at his son's home, 1037 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks.

He was born in Baden, Germany, and came to the United States at the age of 20. In addition to Dr. Steedle, he leaves a daughter, Mrs. Mary A. Heiser. His wife died two years ago. Funeral services probably will be held Monday, with interment in St. Mary's Cemetery, McKees Rocks.

110 Pittsburghers To Sail for Poland

One hundred and ten members of St. Joseph's Union, Polish organization of Pittsburgh, were to sail today on the S. S. Koscinszko under the leadership of Prof. J. Przanowski, 213 East Ohio street, for a tour of Poland. The group left Pittsburgh last night on a chartered coach for New York, where they will join about 400 others to make the trip.

The tour is the first of its kind to be taken by the organization.

Lutherans to Aid Jobless by Concert

A benefit concert for the aid of the city's unemployed will be presented tonight by the Pittsburgh Lutheran Choir in Carnegie Music Hall. The choir is composed of 200 voices and is directed by Homer Ochsenhirt. The singers will be aided by a 60-piece orchestra from the Pittsburgh Musical Society.

M'KEES ROCKS PLANS SCHOOL INQUIRY

Taxpayers Stirred by Teachers' Salaries Cuts; Questionnaire Compiled

Taxpayers of McKees Rocks, inquiring into the borough's financial condition, today said they would ask the school board for an accounting because of the drastic reductions in the salaries of school teachers.

The taxpayers are being represented by a citizens' committee, organized last month, when it was charged the political machine of the borough had led the borough into financial difficulties.

H. D. Hewlett, chairman of the committee said its members will attend the regular monthly meeting of the board in Hamilton School, Monday night, and try to get answers to the following questions:

Why were the teachers' salaries cut $10 a month, some of the teachers having been in the borough service for 35 and 38 years?

Whether one or two school jobs could be eliminated without injuring the service?

With the school treasury so nearly depleted, why was a piece of property adjoining the Curtin School purchased when one member of the board admitted that the price was exorbitant?

Why the grounds of the Miles Bryan School were not beautified after a bond issue was passed recently for that work?

15 Pc. Green Glass BRIDGE or LUNCHEON SET

4—8½-inch Luncheon Plates
4—Cups
4—Saucers
1—Creamer
1—Sugar
1—Sugar Cover

NOVITE is a mild, pure agent—improved over the old type of washing soda by a special process. It acts on a base that makes dirt stick so stubbornly—grease—and saponifies it; that is, changes it into soap. It is absolutely free from caustic lye, grit or other foreign substances—is quickly soluble in water. NOVITE is not a substitute for soap. Use always WITH soap. NOVITE helps greatly in washing dishes, clothes, woodwork and floors. Try it in the bath water. It makes the water soft and is refreshing to the bather. NOVITE is on sale at your Grocer's. Tell him to include a package with your next order.

No luncheon or bridge table service is complete without this beautiful and serviceable set of glassware. You may easily obtain the set by saving either the coupons to be found in the package of NOVITE or the top flap of the box where no coupon is contained in the box. Send 5 coupons or 5 top flaps and 80c to cover cost of postage and packing and you will receive, postage paid, a set of this glassware.

ALL-VICTOR HERBERT CONCERT FEATURES RADIO PROGRAM TONIGHT

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor

Were Victor Herbert living today he would be to radio what Mussolini is to Italy . . . beauty, charm, romance all have been captured with his facile pen so that his compositions virtually bone of the best of enchanting music . . . we are glad to recommend the all-Herbert concert on WCAE at 9:30 tonight . . . They say that Rudy Vallee's guest — Helen Rowland—is unchaperoned by Helen Rowland . . . modern convention runs about the house in bare feet (ugh!), eats peanuts in bed and plays 18 holes of golf in a day less than it takes Percy Boyd . . . The CBS sketch, "Midnight Alarm," on WJAS at 8:45, may be deucedly exciting . . . Anna Case, who made her debut at Philadelphia in a borrowed gown and played her own accompaniment, later rising to great fame, sings "The Night Wind," "Claire de Lune" and "Just A-Wearyin' for You" on KDKA at 9:30. Don't overlook Irene Beasley in a new WJAS feature at 10:45.

The old saying, "You can't fool a red-head," holds true at KDKA. Zoel Parenteau, musical director, puts the fate of aspiring artists in the hands of three sorrel-tops, Aneurin Bodycombe, Ed Harvey and Miss Margaret Pursell.

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, April 30.—Advising youth in its sad and wistful moments to look for the silver lining has ever been a practice of those melody men who write the hymns of Broadway. Today they have need of their own advice.

The music men today are without a doubt the most melancholy people who inhabit the amusement realm, and all because of radio and its vast hold on the public. They dare not predict what will be the future of their business. They dare not even consult the soothsayers for fear the worst is yet to come. They are chanting blues and meaning it.

In the privacy of their offices they are considering possibilities. Come upon them suddenly and they are apt to tell you that music publishers will probably abandon their business and songwriters will compose exclusively for radio stations which will pay fixed salaries for talent and weigh genius by the pound.

Jack Robbins, head of the Robbins Music Corporation, is one of the most outspoken of the music men, and he speaks with the authority of one who has published such country-sweeping crazes as "Singin' in the Rain"—remember "Singin' in the Rain?"—and "Pagan Love Song." Robbins is perturbed, and no two ways about it. He told us something of the situation as he sees it. It seems to us worthy of recording.

According to Robbins, the music publisher's product—the very thing which feeds and clothes him, is used willy-nilly by broadcasters and sponsors with never a thought to the damage that is being done. A shoe or toothpaste manufacturer, he says, pays for the use of the air, but he doesn't pay for the use of the most important ingredient of his program—music. And he adds:

"Radio folk made $22,000,000 last year, on which they paid music publishers $70,000. When one considers that 90 per cent of their entertainment consists of popular music, one stands aghast at the state of affairs and observes that either the music publisher is sadly lacking in business sense or else is generous to the point of insanity."

Robbins not only declares that radio has ruined the music business, but that it has also sounded the death knell to phonograph records and piano rolls. The piano role of "Dardanella," you might like to know, brought its publisher a $15,000 royalty; today he would be lucky to get $250 from the same source. Record royalties at one time comprised 25 per cent of a publisher's revenue; today they do not achieve the 5 per cent mark.

* * *

"What are the writers to live on? How are the publishing companies to continue existing? How can we expect to encourage talent? Instead of teaching music by radio—a half-hearted attempt at best—why not teach it in the schools and make it a part of every child's curriculum as is the practice in Europe."

* * *

There is no denying the fact that music business is in a bad way and publishers are helpless to cope with the situation, for there is little unity in the industry. Orchestra leaders insist on fees for playing the very tunes that make their existence possible. Radio sponsors appropriate their product to their personal gain without adequate compensation, while the industry grows lean and gasps for breath.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Sees Mask, Wig Players

One of the cleverest, funniest college shows I've ever enjoyed was that last night of the University of Pennsylvania Mask and Wig Club in Syria Mosque, and judging from the applause and the laughter of the audience, everyone felt as I did.

There was just one intermission, a long one, for folks to promenade in the corridors, greet friends, and chat about the musical comedy, "East Lynne Gone West."

Chatting with Mrs. T. M. Jones, III, who wore a satin gown in that new shade of blue with a dash of purple, was Mrs. T. J. Hilliard in a printed lemon yellow chiffon gown with a jacket of the same material.

In another group was Mrs. Henry Mason Reed, in white satin, chatting with Elizabeth Jenkins in red crepe and Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins in cream lace and a wrap of seafoam green velvet. Jane Sloan chose a green chiffon frock, and Suzanne Trimble was in black chiffon and lace.

With his mother, Mrs. Mortimer Miller, in garnet red velvet and cream lace, was G. Torrence Miller. And I saw Elizabeth Braun in black lace and Sarah Cosgrove Sheekey in apricot satin, with Peter Westervelt.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Margaret Elsa Lindquist, of Ivy street, East Liberty, to Robert Eton Wood, of Ellsworth avenue, which took place in St. Luke's Protestant Episcopal Church, Tuesday afternoon. Officiating was the Rev. L. Herdman Harris, III, rector of the church. Mrs. Melvin Harris, of Tarentum, was her sister's matron of honor, and Clarence W. Wood, of Avalon, was his brother's best man. Guests included immediate friends of the bride and bridegroom.

The wedding dinner was given that evening in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association by Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Harris.

Club Notes

The College Club will hold a special meeting on Saturday morning, May 9, to vote on the proposed increase of the authorized indebtedness of the club from $13,000 to $100,000 and the proposed creation and issuance of bonds to that amount. Other meetings on the May calendar are the regular Friday afternoon programs which this week will be by Mrs. Roy A. Hunt, Elinore Cowan Stone, Pittsburgh author, who will read from her own stories, and Dr. H. M. Johnson, whose subject on the 22nd will be "The Immortality of Fatigue." The entertainment on May 15 is to be a musicale, and on the 29th a bridge party will be held.

College Club

The house committee announces that the clubhouse will be open for dinners from 6 to 7 o'clock daily except Sunday, beginning May 1.

"The What and How of Sex Education" will be discussed by Dr. Auleen Marley Jamieson at the Pennsylvania College for Women on Saturday afternoon at 2:30. The lecture, which is under auspices of Decade V, is a benefit for the scholarship loan fund.

Movies to Feature Medical Lecture

Motion picture studies of the behavior and structure of living tissue cells will be shown by Heinz Rosenberger of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in connection with his lecture Wednesday night in the auditorium of the West Penn Hospital nurses' home. He will speak on "Microcinematography as an Aid to Medical Research." The pictures also will show the flow of blood in arteries and veins.

95 Congress Affiliates Register

Representatives of 95 clubs registered yesterday morning for affiliated club day at the Congress of Clubs, an annual occasion with the parent organization and one which Mrs. R. W. Johnston, Congress president, referred to as "another milestone."

The reports one hears at these all-day sessions are more than sufficient proof that women's clubs are worth while. Their activities range all the way from merely social meetings to one of the worthiest club movements and one in which nearly every club has some part—scholarship aid. In between come travel study, student aid, classes in parental education (the South Hills College Club), community children's parties, family care and other altruistic work of a wide variety, worth while lectures, hospital aid, movie censorship, making and mending garments for the poor and aid to service men's families.

In one club where some of the members do not play cards and no benefits are held, the women are taxed per capita to finance their philanthropies. The Ambridge Woman's Club employs a community nurse and welfare worker and sponsors a fund for the undernourished children of the town. During the past month 543 children were in the "milk class." The Woman's Civic Club of Wilkinsburg has solicited from property owners the use of vacant lots for gardens for the unemployed.

The meeting closed with a summing up by Miss Miriam Schonfield, of the Congress board, and a few observations by Mrs. J. G. Chalfant, chairman of education in the State Federation. Mrs. Chalfant suggested flexibility in club programs so that at least 10 minutes would be left at the end of each session for any unexpected things that might arise.

The Pittsburgh Young Women's Christian Association has inaugurated a city-wide department to handle vocational guidance and has engaged Miss Helen Marshall Woodward to begin work on Friday. Miss Woodward, who will have offices at Central Branch in Chatham street, has had a wide training, having studied at Harvard and Columbia. She has done special work in mental hygiene at Swarthmore. The department will be conducted on a non-fee basis.

J. Fred Lissfelt, music critic of the Sun-Telegraph, will give a lecture-recital before the Woman's Club of Beaver tomorrow afternoon, speaking on "Rebels—Modern Tendencies in Music." Mr. Lissfelt's talk will be illustrated by Henry Harris, pianist.

Two of the club's returned travelers, Miss Marie McSwigan and Mrs. Joseph Collins, will address the Women's Press Club at the regular meeting Monday in the Woman's City Club. Miss McSwigan has just returned from a Mediterranean cruise and Mrs. Collins is back from Florida. At the close of its own meeting, the club will join several other organizations at tea in honor of Miss Caroline Bauer, of Princeton, winner of the $1,000 art in industry essay prize.

The Southern Club is to have its annual luncheon at the Shannopin Country Club on Friday, May 8. The program, as arranged by Mrs. John Ray, will be presented by Miss Charlotte Shallenberger, soprano; James Achtzehn, baritone, and Mrs. Freeman Hammond, violinist, with Miss Jane Spauch accompanying. Mrs. Stanley Crawford is taking reservations.

EMPIECEMENTS ADD CHARM AND BEAUTY TO GARMENTS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, April 30.—The nicest frocks still go to pieces. For empiecements are still of the greatest importance, with good frocks of the dressmaker type, many of the best models using pieces for the entire scheme of the garment. There is no gainsaying the charm and appeal of this form of ornamentation. It is most attractive, without being in the least ostentatious, and is a most expensive form of trimming, which of course adds to its attraction. For this type of trimming cannot be duplicated in an inexpensive copy, and this one reason alone sets it above all others as a dress detail. The simple afternoon frock, made entirely of piecings, is to be seen wherever smart women foregather and nearly every house is showing its own version of this little frock that has gone over so big.

THE HOUSE of Lucile is also responsible for the suit sketched. It is a colorful affair of bright red woolen and has a beige georgette blouse. The coat is most intricately cut with a short bolero and flaring elbow pieces. There is a scarf of the fabric cut in one piece with the collar. A slight blousing at the waistline tempers the tailored effect, making the suit quite suitable for all but most formal afternoon wear. A hint of fulness is found in the lower part of the skirt.

Reymers' Oliver Building Tea Room

AT REYMERS'

There is pride of achievement in every meal served at a Reymers' Tea Room. You seem to feel the difference even before the service begins.

The increasing popularity of the noon day plate luncheons served at all Reymers' Tea Rooms is due not to the popular prices but more particularly to the appetizing goodness of the food—There are plates at 40c, 50c, 65c and 90c, in addition, of course, to the order-at-will bill of fare.

In the evening it is a joy to dine out at Reymers' Clark Building and Oakland Tea Rooms, where special dinners are served at $1, $1.25 and $1.50.

Light lunches, hot and cold drinks, ices and ice creams at all Reymers' Fountains, where new price schedules are also in effect.

There May be Poison in your Intestines!

STEP out tomorrow morning with the fresh buoyancy and briskness that comes from a clean intestinal tract. Syrup Pepsin—a doctor's prescription for the bowels—will help you do this. This compound of fresh, laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other mild ingredients will clean you out thoroughly—without griping, sickening or discomfort.

Poisons absorbed into the system from souring waste in the bowels cause that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition: coat the tongue: foul the breath: sap energy strength and nerveforce. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that, gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The great difference it will make in your feelings over night will convince you of its merit.

Dr. Caldwell studied bowel troubles for forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription just what men, women, old people and children need. Its natural, mild, thorough action and its pleasant taste commend it to everyone. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," as it is called, is the largest selling laxative in drugstores everywhere.

MEAT DEALERS ARE ALWAYS OFFERING SPECIAL BARGAINS

Cheap Cuts of Meat Can Be Made Delicious When Seasoned With Sugar

The housewife who takes a moment these days to look over the meat counter invariably saves money. For there are generous cuts of beef and lamb which can be bought at surprisingly low prices.

In braising, or cooking these meats pot-roast style, sugar should be used as well as salt. These two ingredients combine ideally with the flavor of the meat. The same holds true in the seasoning of meat and vegetable stews, soups and vegetables cooked individually.

It is a good rule to have a sugar shaker within reach, or a small dish containing a mixture of sugar and salt. Salt by itself overcomes flatness. When a dash of sugar is added the natural flavor of the food is "brought out." Most foods are more delicious with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Now Whiten Teeth a Shade a Day

Do This to Remove Yellow and Stain, Prevent Decay—Teeth Whiten 3 Shades in 3 Days—Breath is Sweet

HERE'S a new and utterly different technique—recently perfected—that removes the real cause of stain, ugly yellow, decay and gum diseases—and makes it easily possible to whiten teeth a shade a day—3 shades whiter in 3 days.

Just do this: Morning and night, give teeth and gums a Kolynos ANTISEPTIC FOAM BATH with a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush.

Then note the day-to-day improvement. Very soon teeth look cleaner and whiter than in years. Gums feel firmer and look healthier. The mouth and breath are sweet and fresh. Here's the reason:

Kolynos is unique. It succeeds where ordinary preparations fail because it becomes an antiseptic foam the very moment it enters the mouth. This foam gets into and cleans out every pit, fissure and crevice. It kills the millions of germs that swarm into the mouth with every breath, defy ordinary toothpastes and cause 95% of all tooth and gum troubles—190 million are killed in the first 15 seconds.

Gently this exhilarating, antiseptic foam bathes the teeth and gums—erases tartar and the mucoid coating—stimulates the gums—purifies the oral cavity—CLEANS TEETH AS THEY SHOULD BE CLEANED, RIGHT DOWN TO THE BEAUTIFUL, NAKED WHITE ENAMEL WITHOUT INJURY!

Thus stain and ugly yellow are removed. Decay is prevented. Teeth are kept sound and gleaming white. And gums are safeguarded against insidious disease.

Try the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique. Start giving teeth and gums a Kolynos ANTISEPTIC FOAM BATH morning and night. You'll be glad you did. Teeth will be whiter than ever. Gums firmer and healthier. The mouth tingling with a clean, fresh taste. Buy a tube of Kolynos.

AT A WORLD YOU'VE NEVER SEEN!

Unsuspected Forms of Life Swarming in Water Are Revealed by Being Enlarged a Million Times.

UP to now only a privileged few ever beheld the almost invisible creatures and plants that live in water. But a powerful microscope is no longer necessary to view a tiny aquatic wonderland with its grotesque animals and picturesque plants.

This microscopic phenomenon has been made visible to the naked eye by a group of patient scientists and artists of the American Museum of Natural History in New York. It took them seven years to complete their work. And you, in a few minutes, can learn what these geniuses ascertained only after years of persistent labor and study.

Find out what they learned about the lowest forms of life; the biggest barely as large as a small speck of dust. See their magnified reproduction of an enchanted forest within half an inch of pond water. Read the fascinating facts they gathered while engaged in this painstaking research. You will find them, all explained in understandable language, in The American Weekly next Sunday. Don't miss this absorbing article!

Now polish silverware without rubbing

BY MARY LEE WORK

A new quick way to CLEAN silver; to make two other jobs easy

There is now a simple new way that cleans silver without rubbing—and yet makes it look as if a professional silversmith had cleaned it! You don't even touch a cloth to it—just immerse it in a pan of water a few minutes.

In this way, you clean all your table silver in an instant—clean a complete silver service just as quickly. It is a preparation called Climalene that you get for 10c a package (12-oz.) at any grocery store. Use according to directions below.

It makes many other hard jobs easier—removes bathtub ring without rubbing—cuts dishwashing time in half.

Thousands of women are using it now. It saves hours of work for them every day. Try it—these three ways.

To Clean Silver Without Rubbing

Add one teaspoonful of Climalene to 2 qts. of water in an aluminum pan. Immerse the silver—bring it to a boil. Then rinse silver and wipe it dry. That is all. All signs of tarnish disappear. Even the most intricate and highly embossed silver patterns are perfectly cleaned.

To Avoid Faded, Gray Washings

Use 2 tablespoonfuls of Climalene and ¼ the usual amount of soap. Clothes emerge soft spotless, utterly without fading. For soap fade and soap eat are ended this way. In recent tests, men's blue shirts were washed 75 times, without noticeable fade; sheerest French hosiery 100 times and more—to prove the blandness of this way.

Banish Bathtub Ring

Add a tablespoonful of Climalene to your bath water. It makes the water soft as summer rain. Soap makes a quick, rich lather. After the bath—just rinse the tub. That is all. There just isn't any "high-water" mark. No scrubbing; no rubbing.

Why It Cleans

Climalene instantly takes all the harshness out of Lake water, medium hard water, and hard water. Makes it soft and gentle as rain water. So soft it does the work with ¼ the soap you now use. At the same time, due to certain bland cleansing agents, it instantly DISSOLVES all grease, dirt and grime, and thus cuts your working time ⅓ or more, in washing, cleaning and in the dishpan.

Ibsen and O'Neill Prove No Obstacle to Our Little Theaters

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Our Little Theater groups are nothing if not ambitious. Here the Playhouse of the "Y" on Bellefield avenue is putting on Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts" next Monday and Tuesday. It will be the closing performance of their fifth year—and is the first time they have tackled Ibsen. But after Shaw, Tolstoy, Andreyev, Capek, Galsworthy, Pinero and Eugene O'Neill they need fear no dramatist.

George Seibel

The performance of "Ghosts" is being staged by Frank and Helen Stout, who are leaving the Playhouse for a year on the Balearic Islands, where Frank intends to paint. Majorca and Minorca have been famous for their pottery and their chickens, also for the best slingmen in the Punic wars. And now they will have a dramatic revival, for the Scouts just can't help staging something.

Alma Lind will play Mrs. Alving in the production of "Ghosts," a play that has not been seen here since Mrs. Fiske played it some years ago. Philip Greenwood is to play Oswald. Milton Brauman, Alfred Smith and Helen Sisenwain are the other members of the cast.

Usually a spectacular drama has been chosen to close the season, but there have been spectacles enough this year, with "The Adding Machine," "Credentials" and "Around the World in 80 Days." So the Playhouse turns to the most somber of emotional tragedy. And if past performance is any criterion, they will give a good account of themselves.

DRAMA CONTEST GOES ON

Bearing out the remark that our Little Theater groups are ambitious, the second evening of the Drama League's one-act play contest brought one O'Neill drama and two original playlets by Pittsburgh authors among the four bills last night.

The O'Neill play was "In the Zone," presented by the dramatic club of the downtown Y. M. C. A., directed by H. Ward Ewalt and staged by Clare Cummings. The players were Stephen C. Grayves, Bud Cobbett, I. A. Arenson, John K. Richards, H. Leslie Parlette, Jr., R. C. Sauer, Karl F. Roschy, E. Kimball Gay and George L. Townsend.

The Thiel Players offered "Jazz and Minuet," by Ruth Giorloff, directed by Signe I. Swenssson. In the cast were Martha Clare, Margaret Ernst, Robert Knopp, Leola Price and George Daum.

From the Pennsylvania College for Women came one of the original plays—"The Misses Biffin," by Beatrice Lewis. It was directed by Vanda E. Kerst and staged by Mary Margaret Robb. The players were Ruth Ludebuehl, Ruth Nirella, Ann Bateman, Adelaide Lasner, La Verda Dent, Sara Miller and Evelyn Hays.

The other original play, "Mistakes," was written by Gaylord Gene Whitlatch, who also directed and staged it for the Troupets. It was played by Carl Swartz, George Taylor, Cynthia Dean and Edward Boas.

THEY STILL CARRY ON

The contest continues tonight at the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Theater with four more plays. The young people of the Emory Dramatic Society will put on "The Bishop's Candlesticks," and the Taylor Allderdice High School "The Hand of Siva." The Perry High School will present "On the Lot," and the Woman's Club of Mt. Lebanon "Men Folk."

Most of the actors in the contest are young people, and they are entering into the spirit of the thing with as much enthusiasm as if it were the Olympic Games—which, after a sort, it is. For there were always dramatic contests at the Olympic Games.

But the significant part of the business is the fact that these amateur groups are recruited from everywhere, churches, schools and clubs. It evinces a widening interest in dramatic art.

Prominent

Jean Harlow has a prominent role in "Iron Man," a film of the boxing ring, which opens tomorrow in the Stanley.

will be seen on the screen in his first starring role in "Shipmates."

The midnight show in the Warner this Sunday night will be Lew Ayres' latest picture, "The Iron Man."

"The Millionaire," George Arliss' film, opens a second and final week in that theater on Monday. It also will open a week's engagement in the Enright tomorrow.

LEW AYRES IN FILM

Lew Ayres, youthful star of "All Quiet on the Western Front," is featured in "The Iron Man," film of the prize ring, which opens in the Stanley tomorrow. Dick Powell, now back from his vacation, will present "Westward, Ho," on the stage.

Constance Bennett, oldest of Richard Bennett's three daughters, is featured in "Born to Love," which will open a run in the Fulton and Sheridan Square theaters tomorrow.

Charlie Chaplin's first comedy in three years, "City Lights," a silent photoplay, opens in the Harris for one week on Saturday.

NEW GILBERT PICTURE

Burnt sugar was used as makeup by John Miljan for his Italian role in "Gentleman's Fate," starring of John Gilbert, which comes tomorrow to the Aldine. Since grease makeup was not dark enough to supply the depth of tone desired for the characterization, Miljan, a veteran of the stage, went back to the old trick of burning sugar and smudging the residue on his face with a mixture of almond cream.

The Davis, beginning tomorrow, will inaugurate a Friday opening policy. The first attraction to be offered under this policy will be "Kiss Me Again," based on Victor Herbert's immortal composition.

Joan Collette again will be featured in the new show opening in the Academy Sunday midnight. It is titled "The Devil's Darlings."

NOTES ABOUT COMING STAGE AND SCREEN ATTRACTIONS

Seats go on sale at the Pitt box office today for the engagement of "Dirigible," Columbia Pictures' film spectacle. Jack Holt, Fay Wray and Ralph Graves appear in the leading role. Matinees will be given daily, beginning Tuesday, and the engagement opens Monday night.

Seats for George Sharp's presentation of "The Play's the Thing," which opens in the Alvin Monday night, are now on sale in the Pitt box office. Beginning Monday the ticket sale will be at the Alvin. Matinees will be given on Thursdays and Saturdays, as has been the custom in the Pitt.

STAR MONTGOMERY

Dick Leibert, popular organist in the Penn, makes his bow as conductor of the Penn Orchestra on the new program opening tomorrow. He will play the organ as usual also. Robert Montgomery

Studio Drops Three Well Known Actresses From Contract Roster

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 30.

Spring cleaning at Paramount brings some startling results.

After long associations with the studios, Mary Brian, Fay Wray and Jean Arthur are to be dropped from the list of contract players. This is a real puzzler, for all of these young actresses have followings, particularly Mary Brian. A possible solution might lie in the fact that the three girls are well into five-year contracts, which means pyramiding salaries.

It will be hard to think of Mary Brian as anything but a Paramount player. She has been with them ever since she was Wendy in "Peter Pan." And a mighty fine little actress she is, in my opinion.

Mary Brian

Fay Wray also has been loaned to United Artists to play Ronald Colman's leading woman. That ought to raise her stock.

Maybe Paramount feels it needs new faces in its pictures. There's no reason, though, why these girls shouldn't be snapped up by other studios. No doubt they will be, in short order.

HE STILL SMILES

On the golf links this week, Maurice Costello and a companion stopped to allow a foursome to play through them. One of the other party recognized the former matinee idol.

"How do you do, Mr. Costello," he said. "Can you tell me why you aren't working? Here you were the first picture star. Why, you are a truly finished actor!"

Costello nodded, smiling.

LATEST GOSSIP

People I envy. Ann Harding and Harry Bannister pay cash for everything they buy. This includes their home and their airplanes... People I don't envy, Lilyan Tashman and Edmund Lowe, who are 6 a. m. risers... Someone writes me that John Drinkwater's "Life and Adventures of Carl Laemmle" already has gone into its second edition. No. 1 simply won't make any cracks about there being enough relatives... In all likelihood M. G. M. will succeed in persuading Jack Dempsey to makes a series of boxing shorts... Incidentally, Lloyd Hamilton is to return to the screen in two-reelers for Universal... After that crack I made about hoarding paper clips, Sam Holland sent me a special delivery letter bulging with them... Studio sound technicians may have grumbled about the rain, but Actor-Farmer Gary Cooper is beaming. It did wonders for his Imperial Valley alfalfa crop.

OH, FOR A PINEAPPLE

Maybe you haven't heard the Scotch gangster's song: "Would You Like to Take a Walk with Me?"

HOOT MON!

Good M. G. M. money is on its way to Scotland to entice Sir Harry Lauder to come to this country and make a series of one-reelers for his fans the world over.

A deal has been arranged and the famous Scot plans to sing some of his best known numbers for the talkies.

There is a bare possibility of his coming to Hollywood, but the films are much more likely to be made in New York.

Mask and Wig Club PRESENTS 'East Lynne Gone West'

The Mask and Wig Club of the University of Pennsylvania brought to Syria Mosque last night another of its marvelous shows, "East Lynne Gone West."

J. Fred Lissfelt

The audience entered into the spirit of the mid-Victorian piece with real fervor and understanding, hissing the villain, weeping for and with the heroine, and roundly cheering the racing cyclists.

Of all the college shows, Pennsylvania is just likely to run away with the laurels. In scenery "East Lynne" is one ahead of its Brueghel cream-puff clouds, its primitive drops in daring and equally primitive colors, as background for the most stunning costuming in any play of its kind is most satisfactory to begin with.

This year's music is as tuneful as ever before, and chorus and soloists in the dancing sets have all gone mad with tap dancing. The fun of the show lies not in puns and jokes my mother taught me, but in the exceedingly clever parodying of a melodrama, some 50 years of age, and the excellence of costuming to further the atmosphere of that original thriller.

To enumerate the good players is beside the point, but Shay's modest and repressed acting of the heroine does really call for special comment. The funeral quartet, singing between scenes and holding the show to its line of assumed depression, sang many a sob-filled chord to the delight of everyone.

WALTER WINCHELL
On Broadway

(Copyright, 1931, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

That was a terrible thing to do to Heywood Broun's old mother a few days ago . . . Some clunk phoned her and said her son had just been killed in a speakeasy . . . His own newspaper phoned everywhere for confirmation, but to the right place—the broadcasting station where he was microphoning . . . And now the Stem hears that I was bottled on the conk Saturday night in a speakie. . . . Ah, the legends! . . . So many people will be terribly disappointed . . . Poor Walter Marshall of the staff . . . Not only does his name sound like mine, but he looks too much like me for his own good . . . But the irony of it! . . . The night of the alleged assault was the first night in my Broadway career that I went home early . . . 7:45, as a matter of record . . . Home with the bride and the pickaninns! . . . After a 30-hour stretch without slumber! . . . And I slept until Monday afternoon late, only to be aroused by Bide Dudley, Variety, Zit's and other news-collectors who wanted to check on the report that had part of the street gabbing . . . How humiliating and embarrassing it would have been for me to have been scooped on my own story! . . . Reminds me of the time when Dick Watts, Jr., heard a lad say: "I know somebody who is going to kill Winchell' . . . "Oh!" groaned Dick, "I'm so tired of hearing about the people who are always GOING to do it!"

So this is what it feels like to be 34! . . . I could have murdered that woman the other night who said she thought I looked more like 40 . . . Is that so? . . . Well, I don't . . . I mean, I don't think I do . . . Gee, maybe I do . . . Forty, eh? . . . That's six years from now . . . Gloria will be 13 and Walda will be 10 . . . Wonder what I'll be doing then . . . Not this, I hope! . . . That would mean 16 long years of work . . . Woollcott thumbed his nose at the daily grind after 14 years . . . Nathan socked away a mess of sugar so he could quit having to go to the Mercury office every morning . . . Smart guys, them . . . Me, too, I hope . . . There must be a time in your career when you do not have to do things. . . . I'm a loafer, at heart, I know . . . But you can't be a professional loafer . . . Not in this town, sir . . . Unless you never get hungry.

You meet the funniest types . . . The chap who introduced himself in that cabaretty, frinstance . . . "I'm here with my two wives," he said, "my first and my second. Showing 'em the town. Ja ever hear of a man taking out his first and second wives?" . . . He thought he was doing something daring, I'll bet . . . I know men who take out their wives and their honeys—simultaneously, I mean. . . . And how about John P. Medbury, the humorist? . . . Who is so comical he once had a cottage where he lived with his three divorced squaws! . . . You get so dizzy sitting in those places night after night and sunup after sunup looking at the Parade of Woodenheads.

After reading Disraeli you discover that the Orientalists were not without their Literary Follies . . . I had been under the impression that the gay banter with the vitriol around the edges was strictly Modern Stuff, but no . . . It seems a Persian poet read to the celebrated Jami a gazel of his own composition, which Jami did not appreciate . . . So the writer replied that it was notwithstanding a very curious sonnet, for a certain letter was not to be found in any one of the words! . . . Jami sarcastically snapped: "You can do a better thing yet; take away all the letters from every word you have written!" . . . Shades of Dreiser and "Red" Lewis! . . . Yet you never hear of those biggies swapping flippancies with smallies. . . . They wait for each other to go get a rep, and then when they sizzle over something they clash . . . It is an even bout from the start . . . And it is fair fighting . . . Never bring yourself down to the level of a guy you do not consider a contender . . . For what have you to gain if you trim him? . . . But if he trims you, you lose your self-respect.

Gotta get Ruth to frame that Bruce Barton story on the wall. . . . The one Grantland Rice told him, I mean . . . About the cub reporter on his first story, sitting at his desk and inserting fresh copy paper and struggling for the first word or two, and then destroying the paper, and starting all over again until his head ached and it felt like it would explode . . . And, all the while the editor was standing behind the kid, watching him grope for the words or ideas that wouldn't come . . . "You just put down one word after the other, kid," said the editor, "just one word after the other" . . . What cruel sarcasm . . . My first boss back in 1921—or was it 22?—merely took my copy, crossed out almost every line, inserted his own wordage, and then tossed it back to me, saying: "This is how you should have written it!" . . . It used to make my face get so red! . . . But it was a priceless apprenticeship, so love and kisses to Glenn Condon, one of Tulsa's favorite sons, whose patience, tolerance and schooling did so much to make the "words jot themselves down one after the other" . . . If they only would stop trying to arrange themselves in your head when you are trying to get some sleep! . . . When you're too weary to look for a pencil to make notes . . . And then after you've tossed and tossed . . . Or smoked and smoked . . . And you finally go numb—then when you get up—where do those words go to, you couldn't get out of your head a few hours before? . . . Ah, precious sleep—better than all the words in the dictionary . . . Sir Philip Sydney knew . . . "Sleep," he said, "the poor man's wealth, the prisoner's release."

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND ON ROAD

HARRISBURG, April 30. — (INS.) — Believed to have been murdered, "taken for a ride" after death and thrown from an automobile, the scantily clad body of an attractive young woman was found lying along the William Penn highway, about five miles north of here.

State police, who hurried to the scene, estimated the woman's age at 35. On her left hand was a wedding ring and a diamond engagement ring. Diamond earrings were suspended from her ears.

The body was clad only in a black silk dress and underclothing. No shoes nor stockings were found on the woman and state police said her bare feet showed no indication she had walked far, leading to the theory her body had been tossed from a speeding car with intent to drown it in the bed of the old Pennsylvania Canal, which parallels the William Penn highway at that point.

WHAT SKINNY MEN OUGHT TO KNOW

Because it contains more vitamins than any food you can get.

You'll be glad to know that Cod Liver Oil comes in sugar-coated tablets now, so if you really want to put 10 or 20 pounds of real healthy flesh on your bones and feel well and strong ask your druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets.

Only 60 cents for 60 tablets and if you don't gain five pounds in 30 days your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

It isn't anything unusual for a person to gain 10 pounds in 30 days.

Finds Quick Relief From Gastritis Pain

"I was troubled with gastritis. I would be in such pain and misery could not sleep or lie in bed. Then I tried ACIDINE," says H. W. Bushnell, of Detroit, Michigan. "It is doing wonders for me. I would not be without ACIDINE. I work every day and must eat heartily to keep up in this game of life."

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way this modern prescription ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy, starchy foods. ACIDINE neutralizes burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, helps end acidosis.

Eat, drink all you want. When sour stomach, gas, pain, heartburn, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, belching, nervousness, colds, gassy headaches and sleeplessness from excess acid trouble you, take ACIDINE. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money. Get it from your druggist today.

10 Driven from Beds, Fire Sweeps Home

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., April 30.—Ten members of the Albert Collins family were driven from their beds when fire destroyed the home at Pennsville. Mr. and Mrs. Collins and seven children, ranging in age from 3 to 17 years, fled down the stairway as flames enveloped the house. Fred, 19, leaped from an upstairs window after he had shattered the glass with his fist.

Two Men Killed, 1 Hurt in Mines

SHENANDOAH, Pa., April 30.—(AP.)—Two men were killed and a third injured yesterday in mines near here.

John Surcavage, 45, was instantly killed when trapped under falling timber. John Gober, 28, caught under a coal fall, was fatally injured. He died while being taken to a hospital. Joe Gormus suffered an injured back when hit by a falling post.

REBUILD YOUR STRENGTH

. . . particularly is this IMPORTANT in the spring, after colds, flu and sickness

MANY are weakened by the epidemics of colds and flu in winter and the body therefore has less resistance against further disease attacks.

When your vitality is low—you feel weak—have lost your appetite, the chances are that cold or the flu or some other sickness has destroyed many of your red-blood-cells and your body has not the strength to properly assimilate and use the food you eat.

When your red-blood-cells are reduced to 80% you are not yourself. 60% is dangerous. Your body may be demanding more red-blood-cells. You need these health-building and health-sustaining cells to build and repair tissue and give you strength.

S.S.S. is famed for its ability to increase the red-blood-cells. This is why for over 100 years it has been popular for toning up the system—especially in the spring. And being purely vegetable, S.S.S. has no harmful effects upon the system.

Every spring countless thousands take S.S.S. to build back their red-blood-cells so that they may have that new strength which makes for a keen appetite, firm flesh, a clear skin and greater resistance against infection and disease. You, too, will want to take S.S.S. for this very reason. Select the larger size as it holds double the quantity and represents a price-saving.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Even Husbands Get Tired Of Being Neglected

She was plumb full of "Love and Pity" for Poor Mamma—so every night she told her new husband to "go out with his boy friends"—while she dashed over to help Mamma with the dishes.

And now? Well, now she would like to stay at home and enjoy some of the Big Boy's society . . . but he can't be bothered. So—one more marriage is tottering on the brink of ruin.

"Dear Sally: I must pour out my trouble to someone. Maybe some other wife can tell me what to do—and maybe my story will help some other wife to do better than I did.

"About four years ago I married a fellow whom I loved deeply, and whom I still love. Both of us were very poor, so we both worked. Well, my mother works, too, and I felt such love and pity for her that every night after dinner I would dash out immediately for her home to help her with her housework, telling my husband to go out with his boy friends.

Realizes Mistake

"At first he'd call for me about 8:30 and take me home. Then he kept coming later, and finally not at all. And he wouldn't come home himself until 12:00 or 1:00 in the night. But I was still so blinded with love and pity for mother that I let his attentions slip from me completely.

"I know that it is all my fault for whenever he'd ask me out with him, I'd think 'mother will be alone,' and refuse. Oh, what a fool I was. Girl friends used to tell me about not letting their husbands run around loose and I'd boast of the fact that I didn't believe in apron strings for mine.

"Now, I'm expecting a baby in August, and so I felt I would like my husband to stay home a few nights to talk things over and go out walking, like we did when we were single. But would he do it? No. He said 'Go to your mother's. I want to see the boys!' Well, that opened my eyes. I realize my terrible mistake and it breaks my heart. But what must I do? How can I bring Bill back to me again? I can't bear to think of spending lonely evenings by myself when the baby comes . . . and I know I will have to—unless I can do something to interest him in me again. JENNY"

Must Face Things

You have gotten yourself into a jam, haven't you, kid? And now, as most of us do, you're trying to lock the barn door after the horse has been stolen.

What'll you do about it? How'll you get him back? Well, you're starting in pretty late . . . but the chances are that if you prove you've waked up at last . . . and show a little genuine interest in him, he'll be glad to be sweethearts again. For I suspect that he said what he did, not because he was anxious to "be with the boys" . . . but because he felt neglected and angry and hurt, and he wanted to give you a taste of your own medicine.

And you had it coming to you, girl. Love and pity for mamma are admirable things—but a married lady is a married lady, and she'd better act the part.

So face things squarely. Go to him like a good sport, and tell him that you see your mistake and that you're sorry. Ask for a new deal, not only for yourself, but for the little one who is coming . . . ask it with your arms around his neck, and your eyes lit with the old love light—and I'll wager you'll get it.

Man Usually Weds for Home and Family, Not for Pal-Wife Only—Fay King

By FAY KING

Some wives who have no children and do very light housekeeping go about visiting their married friends who have little children and homes, stressing the point of how much it means to be footloose and free, so they can be pals to their husbands.

A man need not marry to have a pal. He usually marries to get away from them and have something more in life—a home and a family.

A man who is happily married to a real homemaker, with a growing family, does not envy his single friends who still play around, or his married friends who have nothing more than pal-wives.

They have very little in life compared to what he has.

Dicky Discovers That His Revolver Is Missing

"There's not much to tell anybody," Dicky said when asked why his sister, Mrs. Braithwaite had sent Mary's three brothers to us. "She hasn't written any explanation. All I know I gleaned from a hurried long-distance telephone conversation with her. She said that an emergency had arisen which necessitated her going away from Detroit with Edwin immediately and that she would like us to take the boys until after the Christmas holidays. She said they were ready to start, so what could I do?"

"Do you think I would have had you do anything else but tell her to send them along at once?" I asked reproachfully.

"No. I knew that little thing knowing you." Dicky answered and there was that in his voice which made my pulses quicken.

"I am afraid something's very wrong though." I said worriedly. "I never saw Harriet appear hurried in a telephone conversation or anywhere else. And it isn't like her not to write an explanation to you."

"I know," Dicky admitted. Then his careless optimism asserted itself. "But I'm sure there's nothing to worry over. Edwin probably got a summons to go to some big hospital for an operation or a lecture and of course she'd have to go along."

"Yes, he'd be lost without her." I acknowledged, remembering how my stately sister-in-law always "cushioned the corners" for her distinguished surgeon-husband. I knew that she had abjured motherhood because of her desire to let nothing interfere with her devotion to her husband's career, and that her welcoming of her dead sister's four children into her home had been prompted by the realization that her big bluff husband had a thwarted fatherhood complex and needed children around him.

That the three boys had received real affection, kindly treatment and the most modern physical and mental care, I knew. But from the little I had seen of them, I had concluded that all three of them, especially Henry, were not as high-minded—as I should like my own boy to be. I dreaded the association of Junior with his cousins, and foresaw a strenuous two weeks of watchfulness on my part.

"By Jove," he said, "you don't suppose that by 'playing' Junior meant—"

He broke off abruptly, and caught me by the hand.

"Come over to my room," he said imperatively, and I almost had to run to keep up with his hurrying footsteps. We dashed into his room as if we were called to a fire and Dicky stopped only to close and lock the door before rushing over to the little wall safe where he always keeps his service revolver, unlocking it and throwing it open. The next instant he swung round to me with a face drained of color and I saw that the compartment behind him was empty.

"They've taken that loaded revolver away," he gasped. "But how. Come on. We can't lose any time in rounding them up."

I caught him by the arm as he stooped to the lock of the door.

"Don't you remember, Dick, that the day after the boys came, you put the revolver into the drawer of your desk because you were afraid the boys might have seen the wall safe?"

He whirled and started at me, then struck one fist into the other.

"By Jove, I'd forgotten everything about it," he said. "I've been so busy with other things that I haven't opened that desk since that day. This isn't the first time I've had occasion to bless your memory, old dear. I wondered how they could get at the lock of that wall safe unless they're a quartet of precocious second story workers. Well! We'll take a look here, to make sure the thing's safe."

But I was not blessing my memory as he unlocked the desk. I was remembering the day when Dicky had put that loaded revolver in it, angrily denying my plea that he unload it—an old controversy between us. In desperation at the thought that Roderick and Junior might have seen it when they came to the door of the room as Dicky was putting it away, I had waited until Dicky had gone, taken his key, unlocked the desk, removed the cartridges, and put the empty revolver back. During the busy days which had come to me since, I had had little time to wonder why he had not called me to account for the deception. This, then, was the explanation, and I waited miserably for him to take out the revolver, sure that he would examine the loading the first thing.

But when he opened the desk, looking first casually then frantically, through its contents, he slammed down the lid and again turned a white, stricken face to me.

"They've been here, too," he said. "It's gone. And I wouldn't unload that thing when you asked me! Come with me! Quick!"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Backache May Indicate an Underlying Ailment

Ever since man first walked erect he has been subject to backaches. Backaches may be caused by a variety of things, all of them related to our present mode of living.

Dr. Copeland

The most common cause of this annoying complaint is an injury of some sort. Most of these cases are seen in industries where the posture assumed at work produces a back strain. Occasionally backache may result from a heavy blow or fall in which the back is injured.

Frequently backache is caused by an "arthritis" of the spine. By this is meant an inflammation of the joints of the spine. The localized condition is usually associated with arthritis elsewhere in the body.

In case the backache is due to arthritis, it is necessary to find the cause of the infection. This is usually found in the teeth, tonsils or sinuses, or is due to some other localized infection in the body.

Many causes of backache are due to constipation. Improper posture, family diet and overweight are other factors to be considered.

As a rule, the chief treatment of backache consists of rest in bed and the application of heat. If not due to an organic disorder, recovery is rather prompt. Strapping the back with adhesive plaster usually gives immediate relief.

In cases of weak back, where the slightest exertion causes pain, mechanical support of the back is required. This may be accomplished in various ways. There are almost as many appliances and devices for the relief of backache as there are cases of complaint. A simple corset or abdominal belt, giving support to the lower back usually is as beneficial as the most expensive brace.

If your work requires marked straining of the back, try to work in as comfortable a position as you can find. The back requires care and rest just as does any other part of the body.

Where pain is persistent and does not respond to any form of treatment you have tried, it is essential that you have your back X-rayed. This is important, because as a result of a fall or blow injury may have been done to the bones.

Never neglect this condition. Cases of backache, when treated early, clear up rapidly. Neglected cases take more time to be cured. If too long neglected, the pain may go on for years.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Formal Day Attire in the Formal Day Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the proper outfit for a groom and best man to wear at a 5 o'clock church wedding? The bride will wear a white dress and hat. S. G.

The gentleman at a formal day wedding—and a 5 o'clock wedding is a day wedding—should wear formal day clothes, cutaway coat and dark striped trousers, with accessories that carry out this formal attire.

"Parking" the Guests' Wraps

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Which is correct: When we are having guests, where should their wraps be put, on the bed, as the bedroom is off the small entrance of our apartment, or in the guest closet, which is being used for my husband's clothes, and is also off the same hall. MRS. B. L.

Since the guest closet is being used for your husband's clothes, it would seem best to use the bedroom for the place to leave the guests' wraps and have them leave them on the bed.

It's the Young Lady's Place

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If a young man takes a girl to a costume ball should he supply the costume for her? GIP.

No. It is taken for granted that the girl will supply her own costume.

The Visit of Welcome Is Very Important

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Which is correct, when a boy is engaged to marry? Should he take his parents to visit the girl's parents, or should he invite his fiancee and her parents to meet his parents? CHARLES.

The minute the young man tells his parents of his engagement, they begin to plan to make their visit of welcome to his fiancee and her parents. Most important, most significant, is this visit, too. For it shows their eagerness to welcome her into their family, and their wish to show the right social point of view, the right traditions. After this visit, the parents of the bride-to-be may plan any kind of entertainment for the parents of the groom-to-be, or his parents may plan to entertain the parents of his bride-to-be. But this first visit must be made first.

Wear the Wraps to the Ballroom

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to go from your room at a hotel where the banquet is given to the ballroom without a wrap? E.M.P.

No. It is best to wear your wrap.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

The letter:

"Dear Miss Allard: This is an answer to the woman who forgave her husband when he stepped out, and told her about it the same night. Anyone can see that the reason she forgave him was so that she wouldn't lose him, as she says she isn't very strong and of course she don't like the idea of going to work.

"I have no respect for a husband who steps out and then comes blabbering to his wife and tells her. I would surely forgive a husband for stepping out if I found it out myself and he asked for forgiveness. But never for being such a weakling as to tell me himself. If he does make a misstep and wants to go straight after that, why bother his wife about it? No use causing her all that extra suffering.

"The woman says plenty of them step out and don't tell. I say plenty of them tell AND THEN STEP OUT AGAIN. They use that as a blind. Forgiving or scolding won't keep a man straight. Only his conscience can do that.

"I read in a recent column of another wife boasting that she forgave. My, my, what a lot of forgiving wives. Where are the forgiving husbands, Leola? This wife should take first prize for being the world's biggest sap. In the first place she wants us to believe that the women told her about her husband. I never yet heard of a person who would tell a wife about her husband cheating."

(Boy, you ain't heard nothin' yet. They do it. Plenty of them. They say they feel it is their duty, but we know that isn't it.)

"She says she told her friends that the woman involved was her cousin, and they kept still after that. That story is as old as the hills."

(Yah, and still in good use. All these stories are as old as Adam and Eve, Lady.)

She's a poor fish to try to explain her husband's shortcomings. Nothing is so foolish as either a husband or a wife trying to explain a mate's shortcomings. She says after that they didn't talk. She may not have heard it but you can bet they talked plenty."

(Pleasant little pessimist you are!)

"She says this happened four years ago. Then why does she bring it up now, because it is still sticking in her craw? And she says that she is 'terribly happy' since she forgave him. If forgiving a stepper makes her so happy, he better step again, and keep her terribly happy.

"Really happy people don't go around telling about their happiness, but the minute something is wrong, they tell how happy they are to throw dust in the eyes of the onlookers. You print only letters that agree with you. Don't you print the others? We like all sides to a question. It seems to me that with you the men are always right and the women to blame. Yet when I read your column to our men folks they say 'She's only a woman, she doesn't know anything.'"

(Yet the men write constantly to protest that I always side with the women! When your business is to hand out slippers at the fireside you hear yawps only from those who get slippers that PINCH.)

I believe with you that its better to reform without paining the wife with confessions, but it's forgiveness I advocate, in wives who care to go on living with their husbands. I still think forgiveness is a sweet thing. I also advocate forgetting, but I can't force either.

And lady, the husbands don't confess to ease their wives' minds, make no mistake about that. They confess so that they will feel easier. It's a selfish impulse to lighten a heavy conscience.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Pursing the lips, shrugging the shoulders, rolling the eyes. You see 'em done every day—one or the other, or still the third. Mannerisms they are, and not to be countenanced, considering that they are silly affectations. The grand girl of this day is real. She is as she is. No fake element in the composition of complexion, hair or figure. Aye, nor affectations in her manner. Counterfeit makeshift has gone into the discard, along with factory hair, corsets, cherry-red lips and fainting spells.

Restful sleep knits the body elements all together again, and chases away fretfulness and spleen, puts one right in the world. Let the little flip-flaps keep this thought in mind when, after an active day, they trail out for the merry evening, to drag home worn and weary in the gray hours of dawn. You can't fool Mama Nature. Break her laws of health and the penalty will have to be paid. Late hours are the arch foe of good looks.

Dry hair should be brushed vigorously every night. It perishes for lack of oil. The brush will extend the natural lubricating element the entire length of the hair shaft. After the shampoo, a small quantity of white vaseline should be rubbed into the scalp.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, May 1

The sidereal operations on this day point to great liveliness and activity, but these may be confronted by stubborn obstructions and perplexities. It is likely that postponements may be in order, although good initiative, especially with new projects, may be inaugurated for successful future development.

Depressed physicial condition may be contributing factor to these temporary frustrations, or the good health of some elderly person.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a peculiar year and a perplexing one, in which there will be much predisposition to activity and enterprise, with this thwarted by tenacious obstacles, dissappointments and postponements. These may be inspired by physical depression or that of some elderly person.

A child born on this day should be versatile, active and enterprising, but should be trained to meet difficult places in life, with frustrations and disappointments, possibly through its physical condition. Its determination to overcome and its diligence and talent may pull it through triumphantly.

In your own Bath Tub

To yourself you are as old as you feel; to others you are as old as you appear. There is no need to allow fat to destroy the graceful curves of a beautiful body. Two or three invigorating Fayro Baths a week will remove this excess immediately. More than that these healthful mineral salts will bring a new texture and glow to your skin.

No other method of banishing surplus fat is so simple, so certain, or so rapid in action without the least danger of imperiling your health. Fayro Bath Salts, dissolved in water, reproduces the invigorating mineral baths of world famed watering places.

Fayro opens clogged pores and allows the excess fatty tissue to disappear while you relax in the privacy of your bath. Physicians have voluntarily *written to us to testify to the certain, immediate results which have been obtained through its use. Among the hundreds of letters on file for your inspection, is one from Dr. C., of Marshall, Minn., saying "I have tried Fayro in a couple of cases I am attending now with very good results. One patient lost two pounds in two baths and four pounds in one bath. I think it very good."

Miss C., of North Bergen, N. J., is even more enthusiastic, she writes: "I am one of the millions who use Fayro for reducing with satisfactory results. Fayro not only does away with excessive fat, but leaves a smooth skin. My skin is so smooth and light that I don't use much powder."

You risk nothing in giving Fayro a free trial. It is sold only on an unconditional guarantee that if you are dissatisfied for any reason your money will be refunded instantly. More than a million and a half treatments have been sold on this guarantee.

COLDS saturate handkerchiefs with germs

Self-infection certain when you carry germs back to mouth and nose

Don't Risk Health

Use Kleenex and destroy

WHEN health authorities recommend Kleenex instead of handkerchiefs during colds, you may be sure they have excellent scientific reasons for doing so.

Here's what laboratory tests now prove: during colds a single handkerchief teems with as many as 4,170,000 living germs! These germ-filled handkerchiefs self-infect the user every time they're carried back to the face. That means colds have a better chance to hang on . . . to develop into flu, grippe, pneumonia.

Kleenex prevents self-infection from handkerchiefs. You use it only once and discard.

Kleenex is safe

Kleenex is a soft, super-absorbent tissue. So inexpensive that you use each tissue only once. So gentle that irritation is impossible.

You buy Kleenex in Cellophane-sealed packages. Each tissue that touches your face is completely sanitary . . . as clean as clean can be. Kleenex will materially reduce your laundry bill. It is perfect for children.

Kleenex has many other uses. Beauty experts say these absorbent tissues are the safe, sanitary way to remove cold creams and cosmetics.

Ask for Kleenex at any drug, dry goods or department store; 25 cents, 50 cents and $1. If you have not tried Kleenex send for a free trial package to The Kleenex Company, Lake Michigan Building, Chicago, Illinois.

Bacteriological tests show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 germs per handkerchief. The organisms included are those associated with colds.
2. That organisms associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and soap water, were not killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

FERRELL IS NO. 97 IN HALL OF FAME

WHEN WESLEY FERRELL, Cleveland hurling ace, pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the St. Louis Browns yesterday to climax the remarkable record he had placed to his credit during his short but brilliant career in fast baseball company, he became the ninety-seventh moundsman to enter the sport's hall of hitless-pitching fame and turned in the one hundred and tenth achievement of that sort that has been recorded since the first major league was organized 60 years ago.

Wesley Ferrell

Only 11 men ever pitched more than one no-hit game in the big show, and only two pitched as many as three such exhibitions. The latter two hurlers were the original Cy Young and Larry Corcoran. The nine others who accomplished the feat twice were Jimmy Galvin and Bill Terry, afterward Pittsburgh pitchers; Frank (Nig) Smith (a Pittsburgh resident); Addie Joss, Albert Atkisson, Theodore Breitenstein, Christy Mathewson, Tom Hughes and Dutch Leonard. Only Young ever did it in two different leagues. He achieved it once in the National and twice in the American.

JUST SIX GAMES in the lot were perfect ones—that is games which were not only hitless, but in which not a batter reached first base on a walk, an error or in any other manner. Two of these were pitched in the National League by John Lee Richmond and John Montgomery Ward, and four in the American by Young, Joss, Ernie Shore and Charley Robertson.

Four hurlers went beyond the length of a regulation game and pitched no-hit ball for 10 innings. They were Sam Kimber in the old American Association, and Harry McIntire, George Wiltse and Fred Toney in the National League. Toney's game marked the only time both contending pitchers twirled no-hit ball over the full route of nine innings. His opponent, Hippo Vaughn, did not allow a hit for nine innings but was defeated in the tenth. McIntire's 10 hitless innings were pitched against Pittsburgh in 1906 and he lost out in the thirteenth.

ONLY TWO MEN pitching for a Pittsburgh club ever got away with the no-hit feat. Nick Maddox accomplished it for the Pirates against Brooklyn on September 20, 1907, at Exposition Park, and Frank Allen did it for the Pittsburgh Federal League team against St. Louis in the latter city on April 24, 1915.

The Pirates were the victims of the no-hit game in the majors prior to yesterday, having fallen before Carl Hubbell in New York on May 8, last year. Other Pittsburgh clubs were held hitless in the American Association by Guy Hecker, Albert Atkisson, Ed Morris (now an Allegheny County employe), and Matty Kilroy; in the National League, besides McIntire, by Bumpus Jones, who did it in pitching his first game for Cincinnati; Theodore Breitenstein and Tom Hughes, and in the Federal League by Claude Hendrix.

IT WAS APPROPRIATE that Ferrell should do something extra yesterday in observance of a special occasion, for his no-hit game was his fiftieth victory in the majors, an amazing mark to be reached by a young pitcher in a little more than two seasons. He lost the two games he pitched for Cleveland in the fall of 1928, won 21 and lost 10 in 1929, won 25 and lost 13 in 1930, and his fourth victory yesterday in five starts for 1931 brought him to the half-century line in wins. He is the first big league pitcher to win four games this year. Since he joined Cleveland he has won seven games and lost only one against Washington, won nine and lost three against Philadelphia, won nine and lost six against Detroit, won seven and lost three against Chicago, won seven and lost five against Boston, won six and lost four against St. Louis, and won five and lost four against New York —50 victories and 26 defeats.

Pete Bowen

PETE BOWEN, former Pitt track captain, and holder of the 440-yard championship in the I. C. 4-A., as well as in the N. C. A. A. and A. A. U., is taking up a new role this spring. He is going to act as starter for both the W. P. I. A. L. track meet and the Pitt interscholastics.

Bowen plans an innovation in starting methods. He has observed starters the world over, and may be considered quite an authority. This spring Pete will carry two guns. One he will use to start the runners with, and the other to recall them in case of a false getaway.

ANOTHER PROMINENT BASEBALL figure of earlier days has gone in the death of Jimmy McAleer, 66, in his native city of Youngstown, O. He was the first manager of the St. Louis Americans, serving from 1902 until he resigned near the end of the 1909 season, and in 1912 and 1913 he was president of the Boston Americans, but it was as a player in the National League that Pittsburghers knew him best.

As a member of the Cleveland National League club from 1890 until 1898, McAleer was one of the most popular visitors to old Exposition Park here. He never made the .300 class as a hitter, but as an outfielder he was one of the greatest of all time, his sensational fielding in the center pasture having been a regular feature of the Cleveland club's games. At going four ways for a ball, and going far, he was the Tris Speaker of his day, and only Mike Griffin even approached him at that time.

M'ALEER WAS CONNECTED with one of the most colorful and scrappiest clubs in baseball history in Cleveland's famous old Spiders. He was flanked by Jess Burkett in left field and by Harry Blake in right. Manager Pat Tebeau played first base, Cupid Childs second, Ed McKean shortstop, and Chippy McGarr third, a sweet gauntlet for a baserunner to get by. The catchers were Chief Zimmer and Jack O'Connor, and the main pitchers were Cy Young, Nig Cuppy, Jack Powell, and Bobby Wallace for a time after the latter broke in. In 1897, the team introduced Outfielder Sockalexis, the first Indian ever in the majors.

GETTING AN EVEN break against the champion Cardinals in four games at St. Louis wasn't doing so poorly on the part of the Pirates, but the hitting and run-getting record wasn't anything to rave about.

In the four games the Bucs scored only nine runs and made only 27 hits. There will have to be a big brace in the Cincinnati series starting here today if the locals are to improve their standing to any extent before the hard eastern trip begins on May 10.

BERT METZGER, star 149-pound guard at Notre Dame last year, and who is now assisting Dutch Bergman in the spring coaching at Catholic University, is pointed out by Bergman as the greatest example he has ever known of what hard work, application to a given purpose, and studious attention to details can accomplish.

Bergman declares he has never seen, and doubts if there ever existed in football, a guard equal to Metzger in carrying out the details of fundamental defensive and offensive line play, or at doing in a line of scrimmage everything that a guard is supposed to do.

Bert Metzger

"ROCKNE TOLD ME last winter that in all his coaching experience he had never had another man so willing as Metzger to put in loads of extra time to learn the fundamentals of line play," Bergman says. "As soon as Metzger began to work with us this spring I readily saw why he had been a great guard. It was simply a case of his being able to do things so much more proficiently and expertly than his opponent that he offset any weight advantage his foeman had. At that, in spite of his weighing only 149 pounds, Metzger really is big, as I have never seen a man of 180 pounds with a better pair of hands or more superbly developed arms and shoulders. Physically, he is one of those chaps that you find only once in a great while."

UNIONTOWN BOXER LONE W. PA. BET

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—Rallying to the challenge of the first National Amateur Athletic Boxing Union championships here in 26 years, New York's young mitt slingers have qualified for five places in the semi-finals tonight.

Chicago put four men into the semi-finals, Cleveland, New Orleans, St. Louis and Boston, three youngsters each; San Francisco landed a pair of places, and Oakland, Cal.; Detroit, Philadelphia, Lancaster, N. Y.; Uniontown, Pa.; Kansas City, Mo.; Reno, Nev.; Minneapolis, and Grand Rapids, Mich., one possible titlist apiece.

As the batting reached the do-or-die stages, the last of the Hawaiian team of six that traveled 5,000 miles to the fray disappeared from the tournament along with the last of the Canadian contingent of two. The sole defending titleholder, Jack Pallat, Cleveland heavyweight, easily qualified for the semi-finals in his division.

LOCAL BOXERS BEATEN

Pittsburgh district punchers fared poorly, six meeting defeat. Paul Monar, forced to fight twice in the 112-pound class, won his first bout, defeating Isadore Caplan, of Baltimore, but lost to Andy Ceresole, of Oakland, Cal. Eddie Zivic was beaten in a tough tussle that went an extra round by Steve Salek, a clever Boston lightweight.

Sam Julian was defeated by Mike Belloise, of New York, in the 118-pound division. Max Elling lost to Mark Hough, of New York, in the 160-pound class and Leslie J. Schulte, of St. Louis, trimmed Edward Sago, of McKeesport. Another 112-pounder, Tony Gamble, of Pittsburgh, was elimiated by James Perrin, of New Orleans.

HAWAIANS OUT

The last of the Hawaiians, the team of six that came 5,000 miles and failed to put a man in the semi-finals, disappeared early in the eliminations of the 112 pounders. John Keller, featherweight internationalist from Canada and the last half of a two-man team from the dominion, went down to defeat. And the only full blooded Indian in the meet, Doc Anderson, Navajo from the Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kan., was thoroughly eliminated by Joe Pacino, of Boston, in the 126-pound division.

The knockout boys were busy in the light heavyweight quarter-finals. Joe Melham, of Kansas City, Mo., split Bishop Haht's lip so badly that the bout was stopped in the third round to save the Philadelphian from further injury. Antone Poloni, a socker from Reno, Nev., wore down Ray Tumioli, of Fort Howard, Md., with a continuous fire of heavy punches and finally knocked him out in the second round. The summary:

112-POUND CLASS.

George Warner, Grand Rapids, Mich., defeated Phil Collura, Newark, N. J., decision (extra round). James Perrin, New Orleans, defeated Tony Gamble, Pittsburgh, decision. Paul Monar, Pittsburgh, defeated Isadore Caplan, Baltimore, decision (extra round). Eddy Ceresole, Oakland, Cal., knocked out Charles Collura, Newark, N. J., in 1:47 of the second round. Louis Salica, New York, defeated Leroy Landrigan, Indianapolis, decision. Charles Jenkins, Kansas City, Mo., defeated Joe Thomas, Buffalo, decision. Babe Triscaro, Cleveland, knocked out William McShea, Fort Eustis, Va., in 1:25 of the second round. Henry Burns, Boston, defeated William Silva, Honolulu, decision. George Warner, Grand Rapids, Mich., defeated James Perrin, New Orleans, La., decision. Andy Ceresole, Oakland, Cal., defeated Paul Monar, Pittsburgh, decision.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE DOOR OF DEATH—Every three years about 2,000 applicants enter the Examinations Hall in Pekin, China, to take the competitive examinations for civil service. These examinations consist of physical, mental and spiritual tests, usually lasting from 48 to 72 hours, during which time students are under constant strain. Usually a few competitors collapse during the ordeal, and, as they are carried out, an intermission is announced to witness the ceremony as their bodies are carried through the "Door of Death." (See "Hall for the Pursuit of Wisdom," by Kang Yu-Wu, or "Imperial Academy in Pekin," by Prof. Schmidt.) THESEUS—FATHER OF BOXING—"Pugilism" comes from the Latin of "pugil," and means fighting with clenched fists. But the game is presumed to have been originated in Greece by Theseus, son of Argus, King of Athens, about 900 B. C., and gets its first mention in Homer's Iliad. Theseus is pictured as a youth who was the patron saint of the undertakers' and embalmers' union of Athens and vicinity, and the game as invented by him was fought with gloves studded with spikes, resulting in the death of one and sometimes both of the participants. (Reference: "All Sports Record and History Book," by Frank G. Menke.)

TOMORROW: TWO FACE-SLAPPING CHAMPIONS.

ACADEMY GOLF TEAM VICTOR

Shady Side Academy's crack golf team, one of the favored entries in the newly formed Interscholastic Golf Conference, won its second match yesterday by defeating Langley High's linksmen, 15-10, on the Academy links. Last week Shady Side inaugurated play in the conference by toppling Allderdice.

Curry, Shady Side, set a new medal score for the course when he turned in a card of 36-39—75. Langley was out in front after the first seven players had finished, but Goldsbury and McLaughlin came through with 3-0 wins over Reale and Schmidt to turn the tide in Shady Side's favor. The scores:

Shady Side—15.		Langley—10.
Succop	0	S. Musico	2
Marks	2	J. T. Ragazzo	1
Oppenheimer	2	Ambrose	0
Myers	1	W. Watson	2
Bauer	0	J. Ragazzo	3
Curry	3	A. Watson	0
Goldsbury	3	Reale	0
McLaughlin	3	Schmidt	0
Miller	0	J. Musico	3

Tomorrow in a Section I match, Allderdice meets Langley, the match to be played over the Thornburg links. Saturday, play will get under way in Section II with McKeesport clashing with Bellevue.

Mountaineers Down Western Maryland

WESTMINSTER, Md., April 30.—(AP.)—West Virginia University yesterday defeated Western Maryland College, 12 to 8, in a game called at the end of the seventh inning by agreement. The Mountaineers play Mount St. Mary's today.

HOYLE BANQUET TONIGHT

The W. D. Hoyles of the West Penn League will hold their annual basketball banquet at Blue Ridge Inn. Dr. H. C. Carlson, head coach at Pitt, will be the principal speaker.

GRID GAME ARRANGED

OAKLAND, Cal., April 30.—(INS.)—Two of the most colorful football teams of the country, St. Mary's and Southern Methodist, will clash at San Francisco on December 5, it was announced here today by St. Mary's authorities.

Angels' Pitcher Breaks Jaw Eating Chili

LOS ANGELES, April 30.—(INS.)—Two athletes on the Los Angeles baseball team were laid up today because of unusual mishaps.

Leroy Hermann, pitcher, broke his jaw while eating a bowl of chili. The chili had a rock in it. Vincent Barton, outfielder, cut his hand while handling his cat's milk saucer. The saucer had a crack in it.

U. S. NET ACES SAIL TONIGHT

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—A journey born of the usual confidence that the United States will sweep through the American Zone Davis Cup play, is to begin this evening when John Van Ryn and George M. Lott, Jr., of Philadelphia, star tennis players, leave for Europe.

The two young internationalists are not yet official members of the United States Davis Cup team, which starts its first round matches against Mexico at Mexico City tomorrow, but they probably will be named for the team before it goes abroad. In the present journey they are official representatives of the United States Lawn Tennis Association in the French championships. They also will play in the British championships at Wimbledon.

LOOP CONFAB TOMORROW

There will be a meeting of the Morning Baseball League at Honus Wagner headquarters Friday morning. The following teams are requested to be on hand: Railway Mail, Ferry Street Monarchs, B. & O., Pittsburgh Postoffice, Exhibitors Service and Western Union.

PINMEN DINE TONIGHT

The Bowlers League of Chartiers Council, Knights of Columbus, Crafton district, will close its season with a banquet at Fort Pitt Hotel this evening at 6:30.

SCOTT PASSERS FETE GUESTS

The tri boroughs of Braddock, North Braddock and Rankin last night paid tribute to the state scholastic basketball champions, Coach Johnny Reed's Scott High School aggregation, of North Braddock, with a capacity turnout at a banquet in the Edgewood Country Club.

A burst of oratory revealed the thoughts and feelings and appreciation of the townsfolk for the fighting team that carried on to win the highest honors within its grasp over a strenuous season.

A ringing and laudatory address by Congressman Clyde Kelly on the subject of "Sportsmanship" was the high spot of the program. The inimitable Luke Barnett, thinly disguised as Dr. E. D. Nobraranski, "president of the Polish National University," denounced all and sundry in a typical outburst as the climax of the program.

Dr. H. Clifford Carlson, Pitt basketball coach, proved an able toastmaster. Other speakers included O. J. H. Hartsuff, of the Edgar Thomson works; I. Lamont Hughes, president of the Carnegie Steel Company; S. R. McClure, president of the Board of Education of North Braddock; Coach Reed and D. De Witt Zuerner. The Rev. Guy D. Wallace said the invocation.

The members of the Scott team received gifts of pens and pencils, traveling cases and knives and chains to go with watches previously presented.

Fairfield Captures Local Cue Tourney

Fairfield defeated Pete Kalmeyer, 15-8, in the final round. A third tournament will be played May 6.

SHIKAT WINS BOUT HERE

Four of the five wrestling bouts at Motor Square Garden last night were decided on falls, with Ivan Vacturoff winning the decision over Karl Pojello in the sole event that went the limit. It was a 30-minute time limit affair.

Dick Shikat threw Jim Clinstock in 14 minutes 8 seconds of the main bout with a head scissors. Jim McMillan tossed Don Delaun, winning by a flying tackle and body hold after 18 minutes 26 seconds. Wladek Zbyszko threw Tony Felice with a headlock after 8 minutes 39 seconds, and Mike Romano pinned Jack Wilcox with a cross arm and body lock after 18 minutes 25 seconds.

A small crowd witnessed the bouts, which were marked by the usual spectacular work. Another show was announced for one week from next Wednesday night.

BILLIARD STAR HERE

Charles C. Peterson, the trick shot king of billiards, will provide some novel entertainment for local cue fans at the Ellis Recreation Parlors, Diamond street, at 3 o'clock this afternoon and 8 o'clock this evening. Peterson will perform on an oval table. He is the fastest shot maker in the game. His collection of fancy shots is second to none.

SENTMAN CRIPPLED

URBANA, Ill., April 30.—(INS.)—Lee H. Sentman, champion hurdler of the University of Illinois track team, probably will not compete in his favorite event at the Ohio State Relays Saturday, it was learned today. He is suffering from a game knee and inflammation of the tendons. He may be able to run on the relay team.

The Pirates came back home this morning after partaking of a four-day 50-50 party in St. Louis with the Cardinals sharing the joys and sorrows of the occasion. The first two days of the festivities brought nothing but gladness to the Freebooters, but the last two afternoons saw the Redbirds fluttering about with the unmistakable signs of victory in their wings.

The Ensmen are due to meet the Reds in the Oakland Orchard this afternoon. Dan Howley's last-placer has not yet been seen in Pittsburgh, but Daniel and his men will be guests of the Pirates for the remainder of the week. The battle of this afternoon will start at 3:30 p. m.

MEINE TO HURL

Manager Ens announced today that he would assign Heinie Meine to the mound in the first engagement with the Rhinelanders. Meine pitched a masterpiece Sunday in St. Louis as he blanked the Cards. Naturally the Buccos hope for a continuance of Meine's brilliant form. Larry Benton or Ray Kolp will perform for the invaders.

The Pirates sustained a 7-1 jolt at the hands of the Cardinals before they hustled to their sleepers in St. Louis last night. Jess Haines held the Pittsburghers to four hits, while the Cardinals made an even dozen off Remy Kremer and Bob Osborn. Osborn pitched one round as he made his debut in a Pirate uniform.

Kremer's pitching was not nearly as ineffective as the score would indicate. His support was atrocious. George Grantham fell as he tried to field a hit-and-run grounder in the fourth and a moment later he made a wild throw to second as he tried to start a double play. The inning brought three runs for the Redbirds and put them out on Easy street.

LOW TOSS COSTLY

A low throw by Gus Suhr helped the Cardinals to three safety runs in the eighth. Suhr, however, was trying to make a great play as he let fly to Traynor on a bunt. Runners were on second and first at the time and Gus had the head man stopped had his throw been better.

Haines pitched hitless ball against the Pirates through six rounds. The fans were buzzing about the possibility of a no-hit performance, in the seventh,

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, April 29.—This year lady fans are twirling past the turnstiles all around both circuits. Us ball players must be showing more sex appeal or something. I expect to be getting mash notes next. Most magnates make every Friday Ladies' Day on account of the girlies only have to cook fishballs. And it's a big kick to look up in the stands and see rows of chiffon stockings instead of blue serge pants. You can always tell from the box score when it's Ladies' Day because more guys get caught off first base from rubbering at the wrens. If girlish interest in baseball gets any hotter, we'll be playing exhibition games at Vassar.

"Yeah, if it wasn't for us hitters, where would we be? We wouldn't be riding out in front of the American League if we had waited for you guys to get going."

Anyway, young Wes Ferrell took it upon himself yesterday to uphold the honor and dignity of the Tribe's curving corps. Any future insinuation that the club's batting order is carrying all the load will fall pretty flat.

FERRELL FANS EIGHT

Wes went the limit to prove his point. He pitched the first no-hit, no-run game seen in the major leagues in nearly two years to lick the St. Louis Browns, 9 to 0. The star righthander, starting his third campaign in the big show, allowed only six men to reach first—three on walks and three on errors by Bill Hunnefield—and not one of them got as far as second base. He struck out eight and, incidentally, won his fourth victory of the young season.

Ferrell further repudiated the swatsmiths by driving in four runs with a home run and double. Earl Averill also cracked one into the outer stands to help hand the Browns their sixth straight reverse and send them into a tie with the Red Sox at the bottom.

The last previous no-run, no-hiter was pitched by the Giants southpaw, Carl Hubbell, who victimized the Pittsburgh Pirates on May 8, 1929.

The victory kept the Indians a game and a half in front of the Washington Senators, who took undisputed possession of second place by thumping the crippled Yankees again, 9 to 5. The New Yorkers have dropped four of their last five, with only a 14-inning tie to break the monotony.

SOX WIN AGAIN

Chicago's White Sox tied their previous ninth run for the year by making it two straight over Detroit, 3 to 0. They grouped their five hits off Whitehill, while Thomas kept seven Tiger blows well spaced. Inclement weather stopped the Athletics and Red Sox for the fourth straight day at Boston.

St. Louis and Chicago continued their red-hot argument over the leadership of the National League, and it is still a dead heat. Both won their eighth victory in 11 starts, the Cardinals taking Pittsburgh, 7 to 1, and the Cubs downing Cincinnati, 3 to 1. There were only the two games, rain preventing play at New York and Philadelphia.

The Cubs nicked Red Lucas for only seven hits, but bunched four of them in the fifth inning to score all their runs. Riggs Stephenson rapped a double and single.

Cervantes was walking with his fiancee when the man stepped up to them, struck him with his knife and escaped in a crowd.

MAXIE GIVEN ULTIMATUM

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—(AP.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion, has been ordered by the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission to defend his title against an outstanding contender within 60 days or forfeit his crown.

It was announced here Tuesday that Rosenbloom had agreed to meet Billy Jones, Philadelphia, in a title bout provided a suitable promoter was obtained and that he would post a $2,500 forfeit with John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing Association, if Jones would do likewise. Jones' manager, Frank H. Fowles, Jr., mailed his check for $2,500 to Clinnin last night.

Robert North, of New York, manager of Harry Blitman, was suspended indefinitely by the Pennsylvania board for "conduct detrimental to the sport of boxing." Chairman Frank Wiener explained that North had insinuated that the decision on Blitman's fight with Lew Massey at the Arena here Monday night was "not on the level."

Other indefinite suspensions announced by the commission yesterday included Pal Silvers, boxer, Brooklyn, N. Y., for unsatisfactory services at Moose Temple, Pittsburgh; Jack Washburn, wrestler, New York, for failure to honor contract at New Castle, Pa.

The commission revoked the license of Mickey Fedor, boxer, of Donora, Pa. Jackie Wilson, Negro boxer, of Pittsburgh, was reinstated.

A new ruling by the commission stated that "no license will be granted by the commission to a woman, in any capacity whatsoever."

Sasse, Army Coach, Visits in Wheeling

WHEELING, W. Va., April 30.—(AP.)—Maj. Ralph Sasse, head football coach at the United States Military Academy, West Point, was in Wheeling yesterday visiting friends.

He told newspapermen that he was returning from an extensive trip through the southern part of the country "looking over football teams." Speaking of the forthcoming game which the Army team will play with the University of Pittsburgh this fall, he said that it was almost certain the entire cadet corps would make the trip to Pittsburgh to see the game and pass in the customary review before the spectators.

CHARLEY RUFFING ILL

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—(INS.)—The New York Yankees arrived here today for a series of three games with the Athletics without Charles Ruffing, star pitcher, who was taken ill with influenza in Washington yesterday and may be out of the game for more than a week.

SHADY SIDE WINS

The Shady Side Midgets defeated the Sacred Heart Midgets, 18 to 8, in a six-inning game at Shady Side yesterday. The game was featured by Arensberg's pitching and Flinn's batting.

BLUFFITES BOW TO GENEVA, 4 TO 3

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The Geneva jinx once again proved potent over Duquesne fortunes as Grant Siverd's Hill racqueters dropped a hairline 4-3 verdict to the Gold and White net host on the Bluff asphalt yesterday in a torrid fray that marked the inaugural of the 1931 tennis campaign for both contenders. The Covenanter advantage was gleaned in the singles, which, quite remarkably, saw the entire five contests go to extra sets. The doubles tilting resulted in a split, Geneva copping the number two event and allowing the number one joust to ride by default.

While the Dukes were losing here, Carnegie Tech's varsity squad traveled to Bethany, there nosing out the Green Bisons by a 5-to-2 count, Bethany won one singles match and one doubles.

DICK CAMPBELL STAR

Slender Dick Campbell, kid brother of "Howdy" of College Hill fame, proved the Geneva hero of the occasion. The hard-driving Beaver Falls leader battled from the rear to overcome his namesake, Jimmy, of Duquesne, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3, in singles and later teamed with Littell, a steady and promising freshman, to trim Casey and Campbell, veteran Bluff pair, 6-0, 7-5, in the vital dual fracas. Early and Manning grabbed off the remaining Covenanter wins at the expense of Frank Casey and Joe O'Neill, respectively.

Capt. Andy Smeaton, of the Siverd delegation, resumed his triumph streak where he left off last June and ran his total to 13 in a row through 6-4, 5-7, 6-3 victory over Stewart Snodgrass, top man of the Valley force and a really powerful performer. Regis Bullion, Homestead luminary, landed the other Red and Blue singles success after wobbling back and forth with Littell, 6-4, 5-7, 8-6.

Neither team flashed much in the line of brilliant tennis, both being in typical early-season form. Play was generally slow and overcautious—and when it wasn't it was very wild indeed. Volleying and overhead work were especially off color, and not a consistently effective backhand was in evidence at any stage of the proceedings.

The summary:

Singles—Smeaton, Duquesne, defeated Snodgrass, Geneva, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3. R. Campbell, Geneva, defeated J. Campbell, Duquesne, 4-6, 6-2, 7-5; Early, Geneva, defeated Casey, Duquesne, 6-4, 5-7, 6-0; Bullion, Duquesne, defeated Littell, Geneva, 6-4, 5-7, 8-6; Manning, Geneva, defeated O'Neill, Duquesne, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Doubles—Smeaton and Boland, Duquesne, won from Snodgrass and Early, Geneva, by default; R. Campbell and Littell, Geneva, defeated J. Campbell and Casey, Duquesne, 6-0, 7-5.

The Carnegie Tech-Bethany summary:

Singles—Dueger, Tech, defeated Dallas, Bethany, 6-3, 7-5; Cowdery, Bethany, defeated Morris, Tech, 6-1, 6-0; McCloskey, Tech, defeated Beekman, Bethany, 6-2, 6-0; Berghane, Tech, defeated Nelson, Bethany, 6-4, 6-3; Gesling, Tech, defeated Barclay, Bethany, 6-2, 6-3.

Doubles—Dallas and Cowdery, Bethany, defeated Morris and McCloskey, Tech, 6-2, 6-1; Dueger and Berghane, Tech, defeated Beekman and Nelson, Bethany, 6-3, 8-6.

PITT IN EAST

The Pitt tennis host is in Washington, D. C., today, there to encounter George Washington University this afternoon and Georgetown University tomorrow. On Saturday the Panthers will tangle with Navy at Annapolis. Duquesne is idle today, but will entertain Coach B. P. Hoover's well-balanced Carnegie Tech contingent on the Bluff tomorrow. Grove City College will provide Saturday opposition for the Hilltoppers, the debate being billed for the Duke lot.

JUNIOR TEAMS CLASH

The lid will be pried off this evening in the American Legion Junior Baseball League, of Swissvale, with the Giants meeting the Pirates on the Swissvale High School grounds, where all of the contests are scheduled. After the opening ball, play will not be resumed until next Monday.

BABE RUTH GIVES OWN VERSION OF INJURY

Track Stars Prep for Week-End Card; Geneva Meet Draws Record Entry

HIS TOUGHEST TRIP AROUND PATHS--BAM

By BABE RUTH
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player

After a fellow has scored a great many runs or made a great many hits, or played a lot of ball games, they all seem pretty much the same to him. He does not remember each one of them. I guess that is true of all ballplayers, and also true in other lines of work or play. Now and then I meet somebody who recalls a home run I hit off George Dauss in Detroit several years ago, or one I hit off Eddie Rommel six or seven years ago in Philadelphia, or one I hit somewhere else.

Babe Ruth

The particular game, for some reason or other, stands out in the memory of this fan, but to me most of the home runs do not come back to my mind so clearly. I recall certain homers, it is true, but a good many more have been forgotten.

I mention the things that a player forgets and the things that stand out in his memory because I am quite likely to remember a run I scored the other day, even if I live to be 100. It was just an ordinary run, no homer at all, but I am sure I will never forget it.

It was up in Boston in that opening game of the season against the Red Sox. I was telling Joe McCarthy when he came to see me the next day in the hospital that it was probably the toughest run I ever scored and I have crossed the plate more than 1,700 times since I played my first major league game. Every base but one was tough, and the run finally landed me in the hospital.

Durham was pitching for the Red Sox and Lyn Lary had opened the sixth inning with a double to left center. I swung at a fast ball on the outside and hit it into left field, between Russ Scarritt and the foul line. There is a fence in left field at Fenway Park, which slows up hits, so I couldn't loaf a step of the way if I wanted to get more than one base on it.

CLOSE PLAY AT SECOND

So I tore down the base line to first, and swinging around just as fast as I could I raced toward second and saw Scarritt's throw buzzing toward Rhyne, who was covering the bag. I had to slide, and it was a close play, but I got the decision. Another half step and I would have been out. I had to swing away from the bag to escape being tagged, and I finished up the slide in a half upright position, resting on one knee.

Then Lou Gehrig hit down between third and short, where Pickering made a clean stop and a stab at me as I ran toward third. I had to wiggle away to pass him, but not enough to run out of the line. He threw to first after I went by him, and then with clear sailing ahead, I stepped into a little rut that somebody's spike had torn in the turf and my left ankle turned. It was painful, but one of those things that you can shake off in a minute or two. I had to call time, but the pain wore out soon and I was able to keep on playing.

COLLIDES WITH BERRY

Then Tony Lazzeri hit a fly to Earl Webb in right field, and I figured I could score. So I raced in, and as Charley Berry stood over the plate waiting for the ball I crashed into him and went spinning over to the other side of the plate. My left leg hit his left hip and it didn't hurt much at the time. But before the inning was over I tried to chase a ball that Tom Oliver hit to the left field, and I went down in a heap. Then the hospital and the layoff.

But I scored the run, and I'll say right here that it was the toughest run I ever carried around the bases. All I needed was a fall when rounding first base to make it spell trouble at every corner. Maybe it would have been a good break for me if I had fallen, or if the ball had been where Scarritt could catch it, then I would not have run into all that trouble.

So I guess I won't have any difficulty remembering that particular run. If some fan should come up to me 20 years from now and mention that he saw me take that tumble at the plate I think I will be able to tell him all about it from the time I swung at that wide pitch until they let me leave the hospital. It is just one more run in the record books, but it is one I won't forget.

Equipoise Reported Fit After Workout

BALTIMORE, April 30.—(AP.)—Equipoise, Preakness and Derby favorite, was worked out at Pimlico yesterday and pronounced in fine fettle, as the announcement was made that one of his strongest rivals, Vanderpool, was definitely out of consideration for the two $50,000 stakes.

Vanderpool, owned by the Tennessee stable, which as a 2-year-old won every one of his 11 starts, has recovered from an attack of pneumonia but will not be put back in training for six weeks or more, Dr. Henry J. McCarthy said.

Adventures of Policy Pete

Pepper Martin timed one of Kremer's pitches for a three-bagger to center at the start of the third. The Pirate infield elected to play deep for Jim Wilson and Thevenow had to be content with getting the catcher at first on his grounder as Martin scored. Haines and Adams followed with a single and a double, but there was no more scoring in the inning.

One was out in the fourth when Watkins singled to right. Grantham fell as he attempted to field Gelbert's hit-and-run grounder and Watkins took third on the scratch hit. George could have made a force play or perhaps a double play on the grounder if he had fielded it. Martin grounded to Grantham, who threw low to Thevenow in an attempt to start a double play. Watkins scored and when Wilson singled to left Gelbert carried over another Redbird tally.

Suhr's low throw in a smart attempt to get a head runner at third opened the way for a big Redbird round in the eighth. Bottomley greeted Osborn with a single to right and Watkins came through with a single to center. Gelbert tried to sacrifice, but Suhr wanted to get Sunny Jim at third. He threw low and Bottomley and Watkins scored. Gelbert reached third and he counted on Martin's long drive to P. Waner.

RUTH PREDICTS EARLY RETURN

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—His 226 pounds draped in a pale green bathrobe, George Herman Ruth reclined on a pale green divan in his sumptuous Riverside Drive apartment and talked of many things, but mostly of baseball and his ailing left leg.

"Yeah, I ought to be back in there Sunday" the Babe said as he caressed the bruised left thigh injured in a collision with the former football player, Charles Berry, of the Red Sox, in Boston a week ago yesterday.

"I can stand on one leg and hit 'em.' It's been coming along fine the last 48 hours. If it keeps on improving the Doc says he'll probably let me go out to the stadium Sunday. Say, wasn't that terrible at Washington yesterday? I laid awake until 4 o'clock thinkin' about that one. A three-run lead in the ninth and then they blow it."

U. S. Ryder Cup Team Is Selected

CHICAGO, April 30.—(AP.)—Any question as to the eligibility of Leo Diegel, San Diego (Cal.) golf professional, to represent the United States in the Ryder Cup competition was dispelled yesterday when he was given a clean bill by the executive committee of the Professional Golfers' Association.

The committee's investigation revealed Diegel is a citizen of the United States and maintains residence at San Diego.

Players definitely selected to represent Uncle Sam in the Ryder Cup competition at the Scioto Country Club, Columbus, O., June 26-27 are:

Walter Hagen, captain, Detroit; Leo Diegel, San Diego, Cal.; Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Gene Sarazen, Great Neck, L. I.; Horton Smith, Detroit, and Al Espinosa, North Brook, Ill.

Two regulars and two alternates will be selected after 72 holes of medal play at Scioto June 22-23.

SHARKEY SIGNED

Walter Sharkey, former pitcher of the Canonsburg club of the old Inter-County league, has been signed by Manager Harry Craft of the Homewood-Brushton City league club.

PFAFF IN RACE

Ed Pfaff, of St. Michaels, Pa., has entered the National A. A. U. marathon to be staged in Baltimore on May 16.

BUCS TOURNEYS SET AT SHANNOPIN

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The Shannopin Country Club has announced its men's and women's competitions for May, and the lists are marked by a big jubilee party which will mark the formal opening on Wednesday, May 13. The men's schedule:

May 2, four ball medal play, under seven-eighths of individual handicaps; May 9, individual match play against par, under seven-eighths handicap; May 13, formal opening day; May 16, four ball match play against par, under seven-eighths of individual handicaps; May 21, mixed foursome tourney for club members; May 23, four ball match play against par, under seven-eighths of individual handicaps and best ball foursomes; May 27, Grogan Cup match with Highland, at Shannopin; May 30, best ball medal play, under seven-eighths handicap, partners, to be played morning or afternoon.

The women open their season May 12, and have three other club events on the books, as follows:

May 19, 18 holes medal play, full handicap; May 21, mixed foursome for members; May 26, Up-and-in Contest.

Prizes for these events, including putting contests on the practice putting green, will be donated during May by the chairmen of the women's golf committee, Miss Sara Robb and Mrs. Mahlon E. Lewis.

Johnny Farrell, said to be the best dressed man in professional golfdom, will make his second appearance here tomorrow when he gives an exhibition and demonstration at Joseph Horne's store, under the direction of Vance Smith. Farrell will explain his own strokes, give his impressions of the game, and otherwise assist those who visit him by answering any questions they may direct to him. His former buddy, Charley Manning, pro at Shannopin, will luncheon and spend several hours with him.

Dr. J. H. Euwer, chairman of the golf committee at Alcoma, has announced the schedule for this year at that club, beginning with a fine formal opening Memorial Day. The card follows:

May 30, qualifying round for Murrell Trophy; 18 holes medal play under full handicap; women's putting contest. (The Murrell Trophy tourney will be completed before July 4.)

June 6, medal play; June 13, Learn to Know Our Members Day; foursomes; June 20, match play against par; June 27, medal play; July 4, qualifying round for club championship; medal play; men's driving contest; August 8, medal play; August 15, match play against par; August 19, Gelbert and Son tournament; August 22, medal play; August 29, medal play; September 5, medal play; September 7, medal play, morning and afternoon; qualifying round for Silver Putter; October 3, match play against par.

Dates for junior and caddie tourneys, to be held late in the season, will be announced later.

This year's women's golf committee at Alcoma includes Mrs. H. P. Roth, chairman; Mrs. H. T. Patton, vice chairman; Mrs. George Stengle, chairman handicap committee, and Mrs. J. H. Euwer, secretary and treasurer. They plan a most active season.

Joe Wagman, chairman of the golf committee at the Thornburg Country Club, has announced that that club formally will open its season Sunday. During the year past, Thornburg has improved its course to make it harder by five to seven strokes. Wagman says, having added eight traps and enlarged its greens. The clubhouse has been renovated and improved, as well. Jack Stewart remains as the club pro.

The Western Pennsylvania Caddiemasters' Association will hold its annual meeting tonight in the Longue Vue Country Club. Officers will be elected.

KAYOS FEATURE M'KEESPORT TOURNEY

Seven knockouts, five of a technical nature, featured the opening of the two-day Greater Pittsburgh amateur boxing tournament last night at the Palisades, McKeesport. Nineteen bouts in all were put on before a fair turnout of fans, most of which were chuck full of fighting action.

Several more preliminaries, together with the semi-finals and finals, will be staged tonight when the tourney is concluded and the champions in the eight classes, from flyweight to heavyweight, are crowned.

William Ely, Negro scrapper of the Pleasant Valley A. C., of New Salem, scored the quickest knockout of the evening when he put Nick Wargo, of the McKeesport A. C., away in 55 seconds. Walter Marm, of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, also chalked up a quick kayo, ending his scrap with Frank Bento, of the Pleasant Valley club, in 1 minute 5 seconds.

One of the best fights of the evening was staged by Sam Whyte, of the Superior A. C., and Tom Daniels, of the Alexander A. C., a pair of Negro scrappers. Daniels got the judges' decision at the conclusion of a three-round slugging bee.

135-pound class—Steve Nickiach, Boylestein A. C., defeated Al Conrad, McKeesport A. C.; Tom Daniels, Alexander A. C., defeated Sam Whyte, Superior A. C.; Chink Rosana, Uniontown A. C., defeated Bill Drake, New Kensington; Walter Marm, Pittsburgh Lyceum, defeated Frank Bento, Pleasant Valley A. C.

Heavyweight class, Dutch Weir, McKeesport A. C., defeated James Snell, Superior A. C.

St. John's to Quit Football, Baseball

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—St. John's College, of Brooklyn, has decided to abandon football and baseball as intercollegiate sports at the end of the present schedules, it was announced yesterday. The action was taken by the board of trustees because of disappointing gate receipts. The football team will play the games scheduled for next fall.

The loss on the 1930 football season amounted to about $10,000, most of it due to a trip to Chicago to play De Paul.

BRODERICKS IN TIE

The D. J. Brodericks and Stowe Independents battled to a 6-6 deadlock at Marshall Field last evening. The game was called on account of darkness.

RIFLE SHOOT CARDED

The Fort Pitt Rifle Club will open its 1931 season next Saturday with a 200-yard off-hand match, open to all shooters in the district.

Battling Gizzy, Donora whirlwind club fighter, who has been on the sidelines for several months, is about to break out in a rash of bouts to make up for lost time. He is training daily in Ross' gym, in the East End, and is in fine fettle for the campaign.

Battling Gizzy

The first of these engagements will be with one Windy Meyers, of Cincinnati, in the eight-round semi-final to the Eddie Shea-Steve Smith bout in Motor Square Garden next Monday night. On the following Monday he is carded with Young Chiodo at Johnstown, and he will appear at Wheeling, W. Va., on May 18, against an opponent to be selected.

The Garden card for Monday night has been completed with the signing of Benny Goldstein, of Baltimore, and Angelo Vergione, of Swissvale, for the second bout, and Johnny Haggerty, of Lawrenceville, and Sammy Paris, of the Hill, for the opener.

Between Rounds

Benny Goldstein plans to make his home here if he gets off to a good start. He is a pleasing youngster of 19 who has had some 40 professional bouts and drawn big gates in his home town, fighting as a welterweight. He looked five times in Florida during the past winter and also appeared in the semi-final to the Mickey Walker-Paul Swiderski battle at Newark, N. J., where he also appeared two other times. He is managed by Benny Franklin and Lou Fisher, of Baltimore, but will be handled here by Al Suttle. He was attracted to Pittsburgh by the fact that he has cousins residing on the South Side.

A Tony Herrera-Johnny Jadich match is in the making for the opening windup of the season at Rickey Park, Millvale, May 21.

Henry Firpo, of Louisville, and Sam Bruce, of Buffalo, will box the main bout of a show in the Castle Bowl, New Castle, Monday night. Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, will be one of the principals in the semi-final. In three four-round preliminaries, Marshall Coquette boxes Bus Hardy, Ray Ritchie meets Young DiMuccio and Dick Gruber tangles with Warren Farrow.

TRADERS DEFEATED

The Duquesne Traders were defeated by the North Bessemer nine last night in a closely contested sandlot tussle, 7 to 6. The game was played at North Bessemer.

PERKINS GAINS SEMI-FINALS

HOT SPRINGS, Va., April 30.—(AP.)—T. Philip Perkins, of England, former British amateur champion; Winfield Donham, of Montclair, N. J., Washington and Lee University student; Billy Howell, of Richmond, Va., Middle States champion, and E. H. Bottitt, of Hot Springs, won their matches in the Old Dominion golf championship round yesterday.

JONES HURT, BOUT OFF

CLEVELAND, April 30. An airplane crash near here injured Gorilla Jones, Negro middleweight boxer of Akron, flying here from Kansas City, to box Madison Dix in the main bout of a show last night, to such an extent that the card had to be called off. Jones had boxed in Kansas City on Tuesday night. He suffered a sprained back in the accident.

DUKES ELECT M'GEEVER AS FLOOR CAPTAIN

By JESS CARVER

One more day and another week-end of track up and smacks us in the kisser. There is a whale of a lot doing this week, too, what with the annual Ohio State Relays at Columbus, the Carnegie Tech dual meet with the University of Cincinnati here, the annual Geneva Interscholastic championships at Beaver Falls and a dual engagement between Wash-Jeff and Allegheny at Washington.

This section of the woodlands will be well represented at Columbus, Pitt, West Virginia, Bethany, Geneva and Westminster will have men on hand. The Panthers, Genevians and Bisons will be represented by relay teams, or what we laughingly use for relay teams hereabouts, while the remaining schools will have individual performers skipping about.

RECORD ENTRY ASSURED

Geneva's interscholastic carnival takes the cake in point of interest and importance in the tri-state district. A record entry list is assured, with over 1,000 school boy hopefuls from more than 60 schools booked for competition. The schools will be registered in three classes.

East Palestine, Ellwood City and Lisbon, champions in their respective classes, A, B and C, last year, will be on hand to defend their laurels, if possible. The young men of East Palestine figure to have the toughest assignment in retaining their laurel wreaths, with strong squads from Youngstown Rayen, Strong Vincent, of Erie, Connellsville and Uniontown, waiting to grab off the Class A cloak.

McGEEVER CAPTAIN

Another Homestead High graduate has been elected basketball captain at Duquesne. Bunk McGeever, in more polite society, John, was elected leader of the Duke squad for next season at the annual banquet for the varsity and freshmen performers in the school cafeteria last night.

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—(INS.)—Big Bill Tilden, Philadelphia's own one-time king of all tennis players, has agreed at last to meet Vincent Richards, Westchester County star, on a local court in the final game of a series of battles for the professional tennis crown. The first two matches will be held in New York, while the third will take place here the night of May 14.

Take Baseball Lessons From
Babe Ruth
$80,000-a-Year Professor

EVERY boy will agree that Babe Ruth—famous King of Swat—knows baseball, expertly and intimately. No player is better qualified to help young amateurs put the "big league touch" to their playing, which may lead to the thrills and big salaries of a major league berth.

The Sun-Telegraph has inaugurated a series of lessons by Babe Ruth on "How to Play Baseball." These articles are simple, interesting, and well-illustrated with special pictures of the Babe instructing young sandlot players in the technique of the game. The fine points of every department of baseball will be fully and helpfully explained by the Babe himself.

Even if you prefer to take your baseball from the stands, these instructions will add greatly to your understanding of what is happening on the diamond, and increase your enjoyment of the dazzling plays.

Watch for the second baseball lesson in the series, which will appear on the Sport pages.

FOCH OUTLINES NEW DRIVES BY ALLIES

of seeing all the enemy reserves massed to meet the onslaught of our armies, and aided by a powerful system of fortifications, in a position to frustrate our efforts.

If we were to continue our plan of rapidly exploiting the enemy's disorganization we must launch as soon as possible new attacks in new directions, joined to the attacks already under way—and which must be maintained—other attacks capable of absorbing a part of his forces, and, by their convergent directions, make them concord their effects with those produced by our already successful enterprises.

In short, it behooved us to extend the front of our offensives while keeping it always headed in the same general directon. This was to be the task of the American Army on the right, of the Belgian Army on the left.

U. S. SOLDIERS INTRENCHED ON THE WESTERN FRONT DURING THE 1918 OFFENSIVES

Americans Get Orders

Having settled, on September 2, as has been stated, that the Saint Mihiel operation would take place with limited objectives on September 3, I sent to the British, French and American commanders-in-chief a general instruction having for its purpose to hurl the mass of their forces against the line Cambrai - Saint - Quentin - Mezieres, where it would reach the principal German transversal railway line. This meant the launching, west of the Meuse, of a new and powerful American attack. The instruction stated:

"At present, the Allied offensive is being developed successfully from the Scarpe to the Aisne and is forcing the enemy to fall back all along that front.

"In order to develop and increase the scope of this offensive, all the Allied forces are being thrown into the battle; they are following converging directions along those positions of the front promising favorable results.

"With this in view, and while:

"(1) The British armies, supported on the left by French armies, continue to attack in the general direction of Cambrai-Saint Quentin, and

"(2) The central units of the French armies continue their efforts to throw the enemy across the Aisne and the Ailette.

"(3) The American army will carry out the following operations:

"(a) The offensive decided upon for the Woevre region reduced to occupying the line of Vigneulles-Thiaucourt - Regneville, which suffices for insuring the results in view, viz: disengaging the Paris-Avricourt railway line and securing a satisfactory base of departure for subsequent operations.

"This attack is to start as soon as possible—on September 10 at the latest—in order to allow the enemy no respite.

"(b) An offensive in the general direction of Mezieres, as powerful and violent as possible, covered on the east by the Meuse and supported on the left by an attack of the French 4th Army.

Opportunity in Belgium

"The last-named offensive will be prepared with the greatest rapidity in order that it may be launched, at the latest, between the 20th and 25th of September.

"Its first objective will be to force back the enemy, by operations on each side of the Argonne, to the line of Stenay-Le Chesne-Attigny, and afterwards to occupy the region of Mezieres, maneuvering to the eastward, so as to overcome the resistance of the Aisne.

"The successive stages of this operation are marked by the lines: Dun, Granpre, Challerange, Somme Py, Stenay, Le Chesne, Attigny.

In tracing this outline of operations, I by no means gave up the idea of urging vigorous and direct action by the British armies against the Hindenburg Line. On September 8, I wrote Sir Douglas Haig "to undertake at once the preparation of an offensive having for its purpose to capture this line and push on beyond it toward certain indicated objectives (Valenciennes, Solesmes, Le Cateau, Wassigny). In order to catch the enemy as ill-prepared as possible, it is advisable to launch this offensive without delay."

With the object of increasing to its extreme limit the scope of the operations, I went next day, September 9, to La Panne, the residence of the King of the Belgians.

I pointed out to His Majesty how, owing to the fact that the Germans were shaken and exhausted and that their forces were largely concentrated in France, a most favorable opportunity was presented for defeating them in Belgium and reconquering the province north of the Lys.

King Given Command

King Albert was in full accord with these views and gave them his approval in principle. I then went to Cassel for a conference with Field Marshal Haig, Gen. Plumer and Lieut. Gen. Gillain. I now discussed the project more in detail and we worked out a plan of operations suitable for giving its effects.

The first operation would require nine Belgian and two British divisions; the second would be executed by the bulk of the Belgian army, the British 2d Army, three French infantry divisions and three French cavalry divisions.

The King of the Belgians having come to Bombon on the morning of September 11, I requested him to take the command, not only of the Belgian army, but of the British and French forces designated for these operations. He agreed to do this and personally asked that a formal order to this effect be made out.

Since His Majesty also requested that a French general be assigned to him, Gen. Degoutte was definitely detailed for this service and immediately assumed his duties as chief of staff of the Allied army in Flanders, under the orders of King Albert.

Marshal Haig had thoroughly entered into my views, for on the 14th he answered my letter of September 8 by stating that it was his intention to shortly launch a heavy attack between Vermand and Gouzeau court so as to capture the enemy's defense west of the Saint Quentin Canal and the River Scheldt, thus bringing the British 4th Army within assaulting distance of the Hindenburg Line.

On September 18 the British 4th Army, supported by the left of the French 1st Army and the right of the British 3rd Army, successfully attacked the line Holnon - Fresnoy - le - Petit - Hargicourt - Lempire - Gouzeaucourt. Every objective was reached, more than 10,000 prisoners and 150 cannon fell into his hand.

Near Hindenburg Line

Above all, the principal result aimed at was accomplished, for the army was now within attacking distance of the Hindenburg Line. This became all the more important in that Marshal Haig's intention was to direct his main attack precisely against that portion of the line which lay between Saint Quentin and Cambrai.

Preparations were at once made with this in view. On September 22 Sir Douglas gave orders to his 1st, 3rd and 4th armies for a general attack on the Hindenburg Line, and, though he still refrained from communicating the date for this attack to his subordinates, he decided, in his own mind, to start it around the 25th.

Meanwhile Gen. Petain had been appraised of the intentions of the British commander-in-chief and asked to reinforce without delay the First French Army, especially in artillery. For this purpose he was instructed to obtain what was necessary chiefly from the center of the reserve group of armies, "where no operations of importance are contemplated for the time being."

While the Allied forces designated to make the breach in the German fortress were being concentrated, and to conceal these movements as much as possible by turning the enemy's attention away from the storm preparing on our left, I made a tour of inspection, from the 19th to the 22d of September, along the Lorraine and Vosges front.

I stopped successively at Chaumont, Saint Mihiel, Nancy, Lure, Massevaux and Belfort, inspecting our advanced positions and prescribing the preparation of important attacks along this front, as well as the execution of movements preparatory to them.

Offensive Planned

Having returned to my headquarters at Bombon, and after a conference with the commanders-in-chief, I definitely fixed the time schedule for the general offensive from the Meuse to the North Sea:

September 26—A Franco-American attack between the Suippe and the Meuse.

September 27—An attack by the British 1st and 3rd armies in the general direction of Cambrai.

September 28—An attack by the Flanders group of armies between the sea and the Lys, under the command of the King of the Belgians.

September 29—An attack by the British 4th Army, supported by the French 1st Army, in the direction of Busigny.

The plan for this offensive comprised:

(1) An operation denominated "B," to be carried out between the Meuse and the Argonne by the American 1st Army, in the general direction of Buzancy-Stonne.

(The Woevre operation—reduction of the St. Mihiel salient had been denominated "Operation A".)

(2) An operation denominated "C," to be carried out between the Aisne and the Suippe by the French 4th Army, along the general axis of the Chalons-Mezieres road.

A mixed Franco-American detachment was to maneuver on the right bank of the Aisne, to insure the liaison between the two operations.

Meanwhile Gen. Petain had decided to extend westwards the front of attack of the central group of armies. This was to be effected by "Operation D"—prescribed for the 5th Army "for the purpose of capturing the Rheims forts and the Monts de Champagne in conjunction with the lateral exploitation of the first success of the 4th Army."

Operations "B" and "C" were scheduled for September 26, operation "D" was to be ready for noon of the 28th.

Finally, in order to profit by the eventful success of the last-named operation and dislodge the enemy from the Chemin des Dames, where he might decide to re-establish himself, the 10th Army had received orders to "prepare an action of its right wing in the direction of Chavignon and La Malmaison."

Return to Fundamentals Urged by President Of Duquesne

Even the leaders of education are hopelessly bewildered today, the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan asserted today in his inaugural address as he was installed as president of Duquesne University.

His speech in part:

"There is certainly a necessity for returning to fundamentals in education. The immense efforts that have been expended on various educational theories in our days is largely energy dissipated. Modern education has lost its way and is wandering in the swamps and brushlands of a terra incognita. Even its leaders have lost control and are hopelessly bewildered. There is no common concept of what education is, nor what the college and university should do.

"In many places, it is true, there is still a tradition of what we may call classical education, held to strongly through a sense of conservatism and a certain appreciation of its value, but apparently the key that should open up its riches has been lost or thrown away and its owners are only guarding locked and hidden treasures that are musty through disuse. The classical education actually employed is but a poor paste imitation, and hence is only a makeshift ornament in modern culture. There is not even agreement as to its precise purpose.

DOUBT FALLS

"The doubt in modern education falls not only on what the chief purpose of a university should be, but on the methods by which that purpose, whatever it is, is to be attained. There is a welter of opinion and hesitancy on this question at the present day. Take this statement of President Hutchins, of the University of Chicago, in an address to the Association of High School Principals at the University of Illinois, as appearing in the Educational Record of January, 1931. 'The college faculty is charged with discovering what a general higher education is and ought to be, for none of us is so bold as to say he knows today. All that we know now is that a student leaves the junior college after he has passed 18 courses with the minimum scholastic average. If we are asked whether he has a general education, we can only reply that we hope so, even though we know that as he passed course after course he forgot the one he had passed as he passed on to the next. The first duty of the college faculty is to attempt to formulate a somewhat more adequate and satisfactory definition of a general education.

"'What the college course of study will be, we do not know. All that we know, is that it will probably be very different from what it is today.'

"This is at least a very frank statement from the head of one of the great educational institutions of the country, and it shows the darkness in which the question of education is involved, even in its most fundamental consideration. Whether or not the colleges educate today, a university president and his colleagues do not know; they do not know what a general higher education is or ought to be. 'None of us,' says the Chicago president, 'is so bold as to say he knows today.' The main duty of a college faculty is to begin at the beginning and formulate a definition of this education, just as if we were only starting our educational experience. What the college course will be that will realize the conditions marked out by this definition, is further unknown. We must begin here also at the beginning.

"It is not the purpose of a university to reshape the world, but to shape the students entrusted to it for the world. Parents are not handing over their sons and daughters to schools and universities as cogs, wheels and mere parts of a machine to whose building they are subordinate. They do not want them made part of something else, but they want them made something in themselves.

"There is also another misapprehension as to the scope of university agencies. The university cannot do everything. There is only one university capable of doing this, and that university is the world itself. The college or university as an institution can only prepare for the larger university of life by properly preparing the men and women who are to assume the burden.

AIMS PERSONAL

"The purpose of a university is not the advance of science as such, but the advance of the individual; its aim is in respect to persons, not knowledge. The question presents itself how is this purpose to be attained, and here again there is doubt and diversity of opinion. In a sense this question has become more complicated in modern times than it was at any previous period in the history of education by the multiplicity of studies, branches and courses that offer themselves as objects of intellectual training. The modern university must necessarily teach many more subjects than a mediaeval university or the schools of Greece and Rome. Courses submitted for training are not limited of themselves as in previous ages, but cover so vast a field that it is impossible for a single individual to embrace them all. Of necessity then a choice has to be made. This is one of the reasons why educators and education became so confused: the advance in knowledge has been so rapid that educators were unsettled in trying to keep pace with it.

"The question naturally arises, since the student cannot undertake all knowledge, can he be trained in certain branches which may be freely chosen, so that there may be several parallel systems of education? There are two main streams of thought in modern times in regard to this matter. There are those who hold to the traditional system of classical education as the only real fundamental education. There are others, and they seem to be in the majority, at least as far as concerns American education, who hold that there are other educational courses just as useful and even superior to the classical. The extreme of this theory has given us the elective system. This leaves the student free not only to choose the courses but the very subjects to which he will give attention. But experience showed the evil here to be so great, that educators had to limit the choice to certain consecutive studies forming a course divided into majors and minors, with the pure elective subjects considerably reduced."

THE PIANO

Altar of Family Love and Harmony

—By—

Harry Edward Freund

WHAT wonderfully happy memories come to me as I recall the times in our home when my accomplished mother played at the piano those beautiful melodies of the old masters, and we children stood around her and joined under her loving guidance in the singing.

The picture of the family gathered at the piano is still vivid in my mind, and reminiscences of those hours are a tower of spiritual strength through our lives of struggle.

The piano in the home is not merely an assembling of materials, but is really the altar of family harmony and unity, and blessed is the home where from infancy the children have the radiant and vibrant sentiments of music aroused in their minds and hearts, for its influence means so much in the building of character.

A home may have most artistic furniture, paintings, decorations, rugs and setting, but without a piano and the ability of a member of the family to play, much of the real home atmosphere is lost.

With the unprecedented and unequaled growth and increase in the material prosperity of the United States, there is gradually, even if slowly, in evidence a deep longing and desire for spirituality. For, after all, without such a living force we merely exist and do not live. In the much-to-be-hoped-for higher purpose of life, good music brings into our consciousness the spirit of harmony and love.

The psychology of the piano and its use in the home will be recognized more and more as families devote greater attention to making home life attractive, in keeping the family circle together in a bond of mutual consideration.

Having been blessed with a mother and wife who were cultivated musicians, even though they have passed on, there will be with me fond memories of their playing at the piano those soul-inspiring melodies of the old and new masters that fortify me in the complexity and strenuosity of these days of speed and rush.

In married life, the young man or woman who has been reared amid a musical home atmosphere and then chooses a mate who has not had that supreme advantage, will soon realize, after the first ecstasy of love's youthful passion, when even conversation is beginning to show limitations and little frictions in daily life appear, the absence of a musical home with its relief from the day's labors.

Without a piano in use, a mansion is not even a home. A modest apartment can be made a haven of happiness with entrancing strains of good music from the piano that enchant the ear and enthrall the heart and soul.

The piano in the home, with the interpretation of fine music, is evidence of a love for beauty in life, for inspiring things that make life worth while, as thoughts are things enabling us, as the years go by, to engender kindness, sympathy, appreciation, helpfulness and service . . . bringing out the best in each one of us.

A free course in piano instruction is being printed every Sunday in the Sun-Telegraph.

It is the W. Scott Grove Music Simplifier Course in Piano Playing. This course is so comprehensive that even a child can learn the fundamental principles in only a few lessons.

George Scott will serve as master of ceremonies on a program of stage, radio and concert performers of the Pittsburgh district. Edward Strauss is general chairman. His committee includes Lou Robins, Saul Rubin, Ben Giffen, M. Rubin, Sam Blank, Max Greer, Dr. J. A. Mervis, I. A. Melnick, Rueben Caplan and Dr. S. J. Rosenberg.

A feature film and short subjects will compose the screen presentations.

Church Arranges Tom Thumb Nuptials

Thirty children of the Mt. Washington Presbyterian Sunday School will take part in a "Tom Thumb Wedding," which will be presented in the church auditorium, Grandview avenue and Kearsarge street, Friday night. Shirley Wagner, 8, will take the part of the "bride," and Robert M. White, 8, will be the bridegroom. Miss Alice McCormick is directing the production.

TRADE HELPED BY GUARANTEE OF WORK

Men Assured of Employment Do Jobs Better, Head of Proctor & Gamble Says

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Business is contributing to its own troubles by keeping wage earners uneasy as to the permanence of their jobs.

In this respect, management has been falling down. Part of the instability of trade results from lack of application of the newest and most scientific methods of manufacture.

Mr. Rukeyser.

The Proctor & Gamble Company has pioneered in guaranteeing employment to its workers for 48 weeks a year. Accordingly, the men know how they stand, and are disposed to live normally and to spend within their means, rather than hoard money. The time has come for other large employers to take a leaf from the Proctor & Gamble book of experiences, and thus break the fear waves which are influencing employes to hoard resources, rather than to spend in normal amounts.

AFFECT ON PRODUCTION

R. R. Deupree, president, Proctor and Gamble Company, in an address before the convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at Atlantic City yesterday, very properly pointed out:

"No one questions the value of guaranteed employment to the employe, but I wonder if you have thought about its effect on production. A man who does not know where he stands from week to week in regard to his income is bound to live in a state of anxiety, fear and unrest. He is unable to plan his life as a human being is entitled to plan it. Even if he wished to work he cannot be sure he will have a job and a steady income.

"A man in this frame of mind is not capable and is not willing to give the best there is in him in his daily work, and it is my belief that, if no one can reverse the picture, the security of the job will have an effect upon the employe that is rather startling in his production.

"If a plan could be worked out, even though it is not 100 per cent of your shop, wherein you can guarantee steady employment, you will find that management is benefitted, at least as much, if not more, than employes.

GOOD ADVICE

This is good advice from a practical executive. The threat of breadlines puts a worker in a constructive frame of mind. Fear waves interact upon one another and continue the vicious circle of depression. As Mr. Deupree suggests, the way out is for employers courageously to guarantee employment for at least part of their workers for a period of months ahead. Let's stop drifting and wondering, and begin planning in accordance with the successful experiments of a number of progressive corporations.

A hopeful phase of the current business situation is the marked improvement in the textile trades. Textiles, incidentally, led the way to recovery in 1921.

McKesson & Robbins Earnings Higher

NEW YORK, April 30.—F. Donald Coster, president of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., said profits for the first three months this year were slightly above those of the first quarter last year, despite the fact that the dollar volume of sales was 11 per cent less than last year, indicating that the reduction in expenses has kept pace with the general decline in business.

Drop in Steel Profits Exceeds Predictions

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

QUARTERLY EARNINGS STATEMENTS of steel companies have been even less satisfactory than was expected. For several weeks it had been freely predicted that a sharp decline in profits as compared with the first quarter of last year and the final three months of 1930 would be reported. But it was not generally known that the slump would reach the proportions shown by the statements released during the past week.

Out of nine leading steel companies which have published their statements for the first quarter, five operated at a loss, three failed to earn common dividend requirements and only one showed a surplus after dividends.

Reports of several additional steel companies will be issued within a short time. Among these will be Bethlehem Steel, American Rolling Mill and Youngstown Sheet and Tube.

Outlook Unchanged

LITTLE HOPE FOR any change in steel company earnings can be seen for the second quarter. April has been marked by a steady although not violent decline in operations. Production has slumped from a point above 55 per cent of capacity to about 48 per cent.

Attempts have been made to increase steel prices, but little ground has been gained so that the return per ton for steel products is not likely to be any greater in the current three months than in the first quarter.

Summer months are usually marked by a period of decreased activity in the steel business so that the coming two months do not hold out any particular promise for higher rates of operations.

Transportation Income

THE EARNINGS OF SOME of the larger companies which own their own shipping facilities through subsidiaries may be helped during the summer months to some extent. Ore from mines in Michigan and Wisconsin is moved by boat through the Great Lakes during the months when navigation is not obstructed by ice. The profits of these subsidiaries add to earnings of the parent companies. In addition to this, the United States Steel Corporation has its own railroad from the Pittsburgh district to Lake Erie. This line is busiest in summer when ore is being moved.

The directors of United States Steel Corporation have declared the regular dividend on the common stock but considerable apprehension has been aroused over the prospects for the next quarterly payment. Steel was compelled to dip into surplus to the extent of $14,017,785 to pay dividends in the first quarter. In 1921, the last really bad time for the industry, $14,763,240 was taken out of surplus over a full year. The fact that the deficit for a single quarter this year was nearly as great as in four quarters of 1921 has been responsible for considerable speculation as to the willingness of directors to continue to draw on surplus for such large amounts.

Earnings Reported

THE RESULTS OF STEEL companies which have reported earnings up to the present time follow:

United States Steel earned $6,765,057 or 5 cents a share on the common stock compared with $12,366,088 or $3.44 a year ago.

Colorado Fuel and Iron reported a loss of $247,214 for the first quarter as compared with a profit of $1,294,157 a year ago.

Jones & Laughlin lost $190,982 in the first quarter against a profit of $3,555,009 or $4.38 a share on the common last year.

Inland earned $633,873 or 52 cents on the common against $2,721,318 or $2.26 a year ago.

National Steel earned $1,926,000 or 89 cents a share. It has been the only large steel company to cover dividend requirements for the first quarter.

SEES GAIN IN COPPER USE

NEW YORK, April 30.—The probability of future expansion of the electrical manufacturing, automotive and building industries, in the opinion of the New York Trust Company, foreshadows increased consumption of copper.

In an article in the Index, published by the trust company, it is also stated that the inroads being made into the surplus stocks, together with the trend toward co-operation shown by leaders of the industry and an open market reflecting supply and demand, "should materially aid in maintaining a closer balance between production and consumption in the future."

Large world copper stocks offer a problem, and the trust company estimates that, assuming present conditions continue, it will take nearly two years before the world supply is reduced to what might be regarded as a normal level.

FOX MEETING SCHEDULED

NEW YORK, April 30.—Stockholders of the Fox Film Corporation may meet tomorrow to elect representatives of new banking inerests to the board. Inquiry at the general offices today indicated, however, that another postponement might be taken.

Auditors have been working on the 1930 annual report for the corporation and this already has necessitated one postponement.

No official comment was available on reports in Wall street that an attempt may be made by some of the new directors to cut the $500,000 annual salary of William Fox, founder and former president of the corporation, when control of the vast amusement enterprise passed from Fox to the General Theaters Equipment, Inc., headed by Harley Clarke, of Chicago, two years ago, an agreement was made under which Fox was to continue as a director and chairman of the advisory board for five years at an annual salary of $500,000.

MARKET SHOWS 2 TO 5-POINT ADVANCES

NEW YORK, April 30. — (AP.)—The stock market ended its gloomiest month so far this year with a mild recrudescence of cheer today.

The tonic effects of strong support for the Standard Oil shares were apparent. Wall street brokerage circles were convinced that strong supporting orders for these issues had emanated from close to the Rockefeller interests. Bears were sent into a steady retreat all along the line, and advances of 2 to more than 5 points were numerous while Auburn surged up more than 15, getting once more above 200.

U. S. Steel regained about a third of yesterday's 9-point drop.

Increasing strength of Standard of New Jersey, which pushed up nearly a point yesterday despite weakness elsewhere in the list, recalled the bid for 1,000,000 shares which checked the decline in this stock in the 1929 crash. While the petroleum industry remains unsettled, with operations unprofitable for many producers, latest Wall street gossip has it that both Standards of New Jersey and New York probably will declare their regular dividends although New Jersey may discontinue the regular extra.

Wall street was encouraged by the scant amount of general liquidation brought out by the sweeping declines in the steel issues yesterday. While it was generally understood that the Bethlehem Steel earnings report due after the close of the market would be unsatisfactory, and that the dividend might be cut, it was felt that United States Steel's earnings had disclosed the worst in the steel situation.

There was considerable interest in the possibility that the Federal Reserve Bank might reduce its rediscount rate to 1½ per cent. Although Wall street has grown rather skeptical over the theory that excessively cheap money is a stimulating factor, many quarters would welcome any move that might strengthen the still discouraging bond market.

ROADS OPPOSE NEW RATES

CHICAGO, April 30.—(AP.)—Fifteen western railroads filed suit in Federal District Court today to enjoin the Interstate Commerce Commission from putting new rates on grain and grain products into effect on June 1.

The petition said the average loss to the carriers on the various classifications would be 10 per cent. The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway has estimated its possible annual loss at $3,900,000 under the new rates and the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway at $2,000,000. The largest reductions in rates are scheduled for the Southwest and Far West.

COPPER SELLS AT 9⅜ CENTS

NEW YORK, April 30.—Copper sold at 9⅜ cents, delivered, late yesterday. There is practically no demand in the domestic market. None of the custom smelters is offering copper under 9⅜ cents, delivered. Foreign sales dropped off sharply this morning with a break in metal prices on the London Metal Exchange in practically all metals.

Rubber Producers Seek Curtailment

AMSTERDAM, April 30.—Dutch rubber producers, who refused to co-operate with British producers in the Stevenson restriction scheme, have formed an association of their own which seeks a 25 per cent curtailment of production and higher prices. These growers produce but 34,000 tons annually. The world production in 1930 was 812,000 tons.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, April 30.—Grains averaged lower early today owing largely to absence of a definite announcement relative to proposed reduction of Germany's wheat import duty. Urgent need of rain in Canada, however, tended to check declines. Opening at ⅜ to ½-cent decline to ¼ to ¼-cent advance, wheat later held near the initial limits. Corn started ⅛ to ⅝-cent off and subsequently rallied.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Raw sugar was unchanged today, duty paid, for the fifth consecutive session. The [illegible] and some new business reported for nearby and deferred quarters. Prices were unchanged, refiners listing at 4.40c and refined quoted at 4.35c.

General Motors Expected To Cover Dividend In First Half

With the General Motors report for the first quarter out of the way, the Street has begun discounting the corporations prospects for the half year. Although 61 cents a share was shown in the first three months many are confident the company can cover the $1.50 a share common dividend requirement for the six months. This opinion is based on the fact that some of the units, particularly Chevrolet in the motor field, have been doing well. The Frigidaire business also is likely to contribute to earnings in the coming months as the weather becomes warmer.

Hershey's report for the first quarter was an exception to the general trend of corporation earnings. Net income available for dividends was $2,670,730, an increase of approximately 15 per cent over that of the corresponding period of 1930, when the total was $2,320,218. The balance sheet showed current assets of $9,596,871, and current liabilities of $3,756,030, a ratio of 2.56 to 1, against 2.09 to 1 on December 31 last.

Wall street is satisfied now that no small proportion of the selling which has been bearing the market down has been coming from the investment trusts. Most observers now sit back and point to the character of the stocks in which the selling has been heaviest as providing sufficient evidence in support of this theory. Recent heavy liquidation in the oil shares is now ascribed chiefly to these institutions which apparently have been moved to give up hope of any early change for the better in the petroleum situation.

More talk is heard of the probability of an early reduction in the rediscount rate by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, especially after the latest cut in the purchase rate of acceptances. While such a development would be looked upon as favorable by many, the bears maintain that it would emphasize the slowness of business, because it would reflect the limited demand for funds for commercial uses.

Although earnings of Packard for 1930 and in the first quarter of the current year were not satisfactory, the company has maintained a strong cash position. On March 31, last, cash and securities aggregated $18,250,000, an increase of around $2,500,000 over the corresponding period of last year. The surplus at the end of last month amounted to $12,741,000, which was a shrinkage of $5,500,000 from a year previous.

A number of market students will be watching railroad shares for a cue on the general market. In the past 18 months, the action of the carrier group has been a sensitive and trustworthy index of the general market. The rails have led the way in both directions. Naturally, that fact is responsible for the attention which is being attracted to the railroad list.

Steel Production Higher in France

PARIS, April 30.—March output of steel ingots in France totaled 722,000 tons against 693,000 in February and 848,000 in March of 1930. Pig iron output totaled 775,000 tons against 726,000 in February and 898,000 in March, 1930.

Nebraska Standard Lowers Gas Price

OMAHA, April 30.—The Standard Oil Company of Nebraska has reduced gasoline to 8.9 cents a gallon plus 4 cents state tax, a reduction of 4 cents. Other companies are following suit.

DIVIDEND NEWS

Bolero Ensemble in Sizes 4 to 12
Pattern 2142
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Your small daughter will adore this delightful little model consisting of contrasting blouse, smartly pleated skirt and modish bolero. The pointed tabs add an unmistakable Parisian touch, as well as hold the jacket neatly in place. Pattern 2142 is charming in printed and plain pique, shantung or linen, red, brown or blue wool crepe, shantung or challis with white lawn blouse; or, for very best, a silk frock with eyelet embroidered batiste blouse.

Obtainable only in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 4 requires 1⅞ yards of 36-inch fabric and ⅞ yard contrasting. Yardage for every size and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

THE NEW SPRING AND SUMMER PATTERN CATALOG features an excellent assortment of afternoon, sports and house dresses, lingerie, pajamas and kiddies' clothes, also delightful Accessory Patterns. SPECIAL JURY FOR OHIO QUIZ

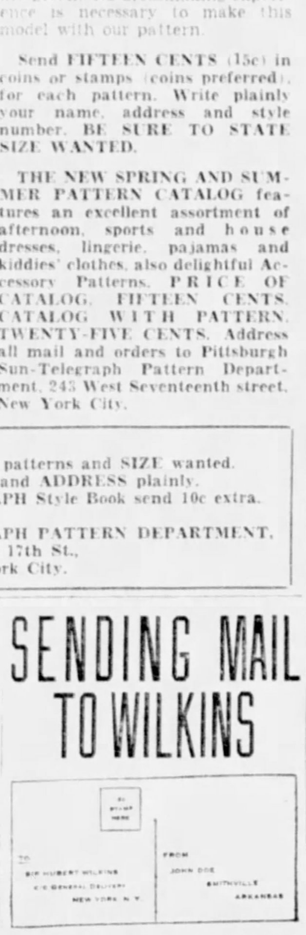
YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 30.—(AP.)—A special grand jury will be convened Monday to look into the relations between public utilities and public officials and investigate the dispute between Mahoning County's five Common Pleas judges and Prosecutor Ray Thomas.

The new jury, replacing one which had been called by the judges, was ordered after a hearing yesterday before three out-of-town judges—H. W. Jewell, of Delaware; A. J. Pearson, of Cleveland, and Alfred Mack, Cincinnati.

The visiting judges had been sent here to preside over the dispute precipitated when the judges sought a special grand jury investigation into public utilities, with Thomas disqualified as prosecutor. Yesterday's hearing was on Thomas' answer to charges of the Mahoning judges that he should be removed from conducting the probe.

Thomas was charged with receiving and attempting to dispose of bonds which he knew to be stolen, with laxity in prosecuting two cases in which the Ohio Edison Company and its predecessor were parties, and with threatening criminal prosecution against the Central Savings and Loan Company unless allowed to withdraw $20,000 in deposits by himself and family after the company was in receivership.

SENDING MAIL TO WILKINS



Letters or postcards intended for carriage on the submarine Nautilus in her journey to the North Pole must be divided. A two-cent stamp placed slightly to the left of the bisecting line and addressed "To Sir Hubert Wilkins, Care General Delivery, New York, N. Y." on the left side, while on the right following "From" must be the name and address of the sender.

They must then be inclosed with a letter stating from where letters or postcards are to be mailed back. They will be returned by ordinary means. All cards or letters, with correct fee for posting at London, Bergen, Spitzbergen, and after the North Polar journey, must reach the headquarters of the Wilkins-Ellsworth Trans-Arctic Submarine Expedition, 2 West Forty-fifth street, New York, by May 1. Those reaching there after that date and before June 1 will be forwarded by ordinary means and delivered to the Nautilus at London, Bergen, or Spitzbergen, for transmission on the North Polar journey.

The rate is 75 cents for each letter or post card mailed back to addresser from London, Bergen, or Spitzbergen, and $1 from some port at the termination of the expedition. Registrations will be 25 cents and autographs of Sir Wilkins, leader of the expedition; Commander Sloan Danenhower, U. S. N., commander of the Nautilus, or any other member of the expedition, will be $1.

Checks and money orders should be made out to Sir Hubert Wilkins.

R.C.A. PERMIT RULING WAITED

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Anxious to stamp out monopolistic tendencies in the radio world, congressional leaders today were awaiting a decision by the Federal Radio Commission on the revocation of all broadcasting permits held by the Radio Corporation of America.

The commission must decide whether it is bound by a decision of the federal courts holding the R. C. A. guilty of violating a section of the Clayton anti-trust act. If it reaches a decision against the corporation the commission will revoke all the R. C. A. broadcasting permits.

Congressional leaders were interested to learn whether the commission will strictly interpret the Dill-White radio act, which expressly directed it to revoke all permits of any corporation found to be violating the anti-trust laws. In spite of the huge loss it would entail the R. C. A. if it was apparent congressional leaders favored revocation of its permits as a result of the court decision.

20,000 Homeless In Russian Quake

MOSCOW, April 30.—(INS.)—Toll of dead in the earthquake which rocked a large area of Southern Russia and surrounding territories rose totday to 500, with indications this number would become even greater when complete reports from the affected district are received.

A total of 1,000 were known to have been injured and at least 20,000 persons rendered homeless. Disruption of communication facilities prevented a full check-up of the casualties and damage.

Syrian Tribesmen Killed by Drought

JERUSALEM, April 30.—(AP.)—Hundreds of shepherd tribesmen and their flocks are reported dying of thirst and starvation in the deserts of Southern Syria and Central Arabia where a winter drought killed off vegetation and dried up wells. Word from Basra said it was likely that only those tribes which already have reached river banks or the deeper wells can live through the summer.

Youth Killed, Two Hurt in Car Crash

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., April 30.—(AP.)—Robert Martenson, 21, of Ridgway, Pa., was killed, and Terry Boutelle, 17, of Jamestown, and Ethel Lord, 14, of Ashville, were injured last night in an automobile accident near Cassadaga.

The automobile, driven by Martenson, crashed into a tree.

THE SECRET SIX -:- By Frances Marion

Scorpio Becomes Wealthy Leading Racketeers

It was two months since Colimo's bumping off, and his new gang was working perfectly. Stills and storehouses in his protected town of Centro—trucks wholesaling his liquor, and all his rackets working smoothly. Now he was busy being a gentleman.

His new home—a penthouse on top of the highest building in the city, was luxuriously furnished and decorated by the greatest of artists. A retinue of servants, wardrobes that would shame a movie star—these were his answer to Newton's sheepish remark that "Gentlemen are born."

"Send Phillip in," he ordered.

Crusaders Bust Joint

"What's this—30 grand behind last week?"

"Yes, sir. They raided seven of our stills and 30 speakeasies."

"Didn't I give the cops 10 grand for their pension fund?"

"Yes, sir."

Newton, with the appearance of having come in haste, pushed impatiently past the secretary and the waiting valet.

"Get up," he ordered Scorpio tersely. "And get dressed as quickly as you can."

"What in Hell—?"

"You heard me. Snap into it."

"Bath, sir?" asked Phillips.

"Naw. I ain't done nothin' to get dirty."

"But you didn't bathe yesterday."

"I didn't go out yesterday." To the barber. "Put some of that Maderia Breath on my hair, it stinks swell."

Newton was pacing the floor. "I told you to hurry."

Without a word Newton led him out to the rear of the building, where the boat-landing at the river permitted unloading of freight. Panting at the landing was a speed-boat. Hurriedly motioning the gangster into it Newton whispered a curt order to the pilot.

Down the river sped the boat.

"What's the idea of this instead of an auto?" demanded Scorpio. "The cops won't see us."

Newton sulked until the boat pulled up at another landing. Before them loomed the rear of the Criminal Courts Building. Newton hurried Scorpio in, and they proceeded to the office of the district attorney.

"I'll do the talking," Newton instructed the big fellow as they entered. "There are 18 warrants out for you fellows as public enemies—but I can bluff it through. I've sent some of the boys out of town to make things look right."

Scorpio began to understand the raids on his stills.

"It's that there Secret Six mob that's behind this," he muttered, as they entered the prosecutor's private office.

"Good morning." Newton suavely greeted the official. "We just dropped in to save you the trouble of serving that warrant on Mr. Scorpio."

"We are at your service any time, Newton calmly went on. "What is the exact charge against my client?"

"Warrancy."

"Say," interrupted Scorpio. "Watcha think I am—a panhandler?" He whirled on the two police guards in the office.

Newton quickly silenced Scorpio.

Posts Heavy Bail

"The district attorney and I will settle this," he curtly interrupted. "Has the judge set the bail?"

"Thirty thousand."

"That's easy," he remarked. "Here it is."

"Good morning, gentlemen," mocked Scorpio in imitation of Newton's suave tone. "I'll be stickin' around any time you want to see me."

When the pair left, the district attorney whirled to his phone, and whispered a number.

"Hello. Give me the headquarters of the Secret Six."

The room was dim.

The only light shone on a small platform, before the shadow-shrouded figures of six masked men. Standing in this patch of light was Donlin, Centro's former captain of police, now the most trusted operator for the Secret Six.

"—Yes, I know these hoodlums well. I saw them crawl out of their alleys." Donlin was speaking forcefully. "While men like Scorpio are living in luxury, every decent citizen in the United States is on the spot—potentially a victim. Business is being gutted into and even our homes threatened."

The booming of a deep-throated bell was heard. Then a voice cut in on him.

Carl Gives Details

Donlin issued orders. "Send them in."

The district attorney came first. In back of him was—Carl Luckner. He stood there peering through the light into the shadowed room at the group of masked men.

"Operator 36 has brought us more valuable information than any man on our force," was Donlin's introduction of him. "For two years he has been an intimate of Scorpio's gang. A dangerous mission, gentlemen. You know what would happen to him if they ever found out about his service and loyalty to us."

It was Carl's first visit to the headquarters of the Secret Six. Carl felt strangely awed before this silent group.

Donlin answered for him. "Last time I looked in the books it was about $40,000, not including valuable gifts."

There was a murmur among the Secret Six, but no one spoke.

"Gentlemen, we are facing another crisis." It was the district attorney speaking again. "I have just had word from headquarters regarding the massacre last night. Six officers were killed in the raid. Two fatally wounded. Capt. Fuller regained consciousness this morning. Before he could identify any of us, suspects a bomb was dropped into his room."

Donlin interrupted. "Was Scorpio arrested?"

"No. Newton provided too clever an alibi. I have just had Scorpio in my office. He paid $32,000 bail."

"What about the cars?"

Here Carl spoke for the first time.

"The gang had left town by dawn. Evidently Newton sent them away. I found out that two of them had flown over the border. Scorpio has established headquarters in Mexico. I may be able to find out more about them as Scorpio has asked me to his home this evening."

Hank Finds Evidence

"Why hello, Carl, where did you come from?"

Carl grinned provokingly.

"You know I'd tell you anything."

"Sure you would."

"Come on. Kick through. What's behind those barred doors?"

"I'll tell you how to find out," said Carl with a laugh. "Go ask your grandma."

"What are you going in there for?"

It was Carl's turn to question.

"Say, Carl," ignoring the question, "if a gangster packed a gun around for a couple of years, he's likely to carry it the rest of his life, isn't he?"

"Sure. I've known some of the mob who are superstitious about their rods." Then, "Why? What have you got on your mind?"

Hank laughed provokingly.

"Come through. I'd tell you anything."

"Go ask your Aunt Emma," laughing as he disappeared through the door into the ballistic room.

"Hello, Hank—what's on your mind?" greeted the bespectacled man behind an array of microscopes.

"Have you got the bullets that killed Johnny Franks?"

"Sure—here in the specimen cases."

The ballistics expert deftly adjusted the apparatus.

"Take a good peek," he invited. "You know how the ridges made by the riflings are. No two guns make 'em alike. It's as sure as finger-prints."

Hank peered a moment at the enlarged hills and valleys of lead as they appeared under the magic lens.

"Now," he requested, "Can I see the bullets that killed Joe Celimo?"

"You look," suggested Hank.

"The same thing you did," coolly answered the expert. "The same gun killed them both."

Hank nodded.

"And I think," he added quickly, "I know where to locate that gun!"

DAILY TRUE STORY

Delancy Helps

Unusual Method Used to Capture Gangsters

Marvin Delancy was one of that small number of wealthy young New Yorkers of most excellent family who do not become involved in scandals, police courts, night club orgies or attempts to "burn up" Broadway. Nor yet was he one of the too-good-to-be-true sort of young men.

He had been over at the "Garden" to witness some first rate "prelims" and a third-rate main bout and was walking eastward to his penthouse overlooking the East River.

The composition soles of his shoes made no sound on the sidewalk. For this reason, as he turned a corner, the three men who were struggling did not see him.

Delancy saw the fight go on for a moment, thinking that there was more genuine scrap right there than there had been in Madison Square Garden all the evening.

Recognized by Detective

Then he saw that there were two against one and that one of the two was struggling to club the lone fighter with the butt of an automatic.

Now that wasn't quite "cricket," according to Delancy's credo. He pressed the tip of his cane into the ribs of the man with the gun.

"Reach up!" he ordered.

Delancy took his gun.

This had enabled the lone fighter to put the second man out of the activities of the moment with a haymaker that would have been laughable under any other circumstances.

The air was thick with curses when the chap found that it was only a cane in his ribs.

"What's it all about?" Delancy asked.

The man who had been fighting the two frisked the victim and snapped the bracelets on.

"Plainclothesman?" Delancy asked.

"Yes, buddy, still a plainclothesman instead of a stiff, thanks to you."

He had both men handcuffed together by then, the first one sitting up and groggy from the effects of the sock on his chin.

"I'll trot along, in case they start anything," Delancy said.

"Welcome, buddy, although they won't start anything. I'll burn the first one that even falls out of step."

When they came under a light. "Look here, aren't you Mr. Delancy—Marvin Delancy?" the plainclothesman asked.

Delancy admitted it with a nod, finger to lips, and then said, "Rather not, name's Smith."

The detective understood.

"Keep me out, please. You did it single handed or was helped by a stranger, as you please, in your story to the gentlemen of the press; only keep me out."

That is the manner which the wealthy aristocrat, Marvin Delancy, and Peter Hogan, detective in the plainclothes branch of the police department, became truly friends.

The thugs had made quite a mistake. They believed Hogan to be a private citizen and were endeavoring to part him from whatever cash and negotiable trinkets he might have on his person. Hogan had been off duty. After booking the strong-arm pair, Hogan accepted Delancy's invitation to run up to his quarters for a brief visit.

To the sincere delight of Marvin Delancy, he went out with Peter Hogan after that on several occasions and once, in a rather tough speakeasy, when a fight started, he floored his man with neatness.

A Tough Job

One evening when Delancy had nothing of importance in a social way to engage him, he strolled over to the police station and found Peter. Peter was just going out on a little job of gangsters hunting. Yes, Delancy could trail along if he cared.

"It's like this," Peter Hogan explained. "There's three gangsters from Detroit and points west who are badly wanted in Detroit."

"I suppose you look at their mugs in the gallery and go out and try to find them, Peter?"

"These birds haven't been mugged. They haven't been any closer to the law than to be brought in and questioned a few times."

"And you are expected to go out in a city of this size and find three men whom you never saw, know nothing about and have no hint as to where they might hang out?"

"Something like that."

"That seems absurd. Where will you go and why?"

"That's a swell question—regular detective stuff in that," Peter said, approvingly. "I'm going to drop in at a few low-brow night clubs and a few more of the snootier sort."

They dropped in at three places. Delancy watched Peter as Peter's eyes took in the patrons searchingly.

"One thing helps me, I'll explain," Peter said. "I know most of the regular gangsters by sight and any guy I'd recognize by sight wouldn't be any of these strangers from Detroit."

Manager Surprised

"Quite so," Delancy agreed, "and furthermore, in these days, half of the gangsters appear to be every-day, prosperous young business men."

They went up to the "Fifth Wheel," so called, perhaps, because it was good in a thirst emergency. Delancy had been there before, as he had dropped in quietly at a score of the better known night clubs.

"They know you here," Peter observed.

"Oh, yes."

Peter was chatting, laughing, covering up the fact that he was putting a sharp eye on everyone.

The manager of the place came along to their table. He gave Peter a brief note, indicating that he knew him but was not going to let his identity be known.

"How is everything with you, Mr. Delancy?" he asked.

"Not complaining, Johnson. Say, by the way, I wish you'd have one of your velvet voiced singers render some sob stuff—you know—heartrending mammy stuff, regular tear jerkers."

"That's a hot one from you, Mr. Delancy, but I'll do it, just the same."

The manager went away and Peter stared at Delancy.

"Getting sentimental?" he asked.

"Not noticeably so. I positively detest those sob ballads. But I just had a hunch—wanted to try out something."

Trio Arrested

"A little psychology, eh? Studying the reaction on three different saps who come here to be called fish and suckers?"

"Well, in a way. Anyhow, it won't do any harm, Peter. We can stand it, I imagine."

After a while, when the show was on, a sad-faced man came out and began to "render" some of the old-time, soft-boiled ballads. These included some of the real old-timers, "In the Baggage Coach Ahead," "Just Break the News to Mother," and others like that.

Peter was studying Delancy during all of this, but Dlancy was emulating Peter at this time, he was studying faces.

Finally he leaned forward a little, began to mark on the tablecloth with a fork, absent-mindedly, and spoke softly as though he were telling a rather hot story.

"Down on your left, don't look now. At the table second from the trap-drummer. There are three men—they're gangsters. Now if you don't know them, it's barely possible they might be your Detroit trio."

Wise Peter laughed, as though it had been a funny story, and later he looked around. Then he sauntered away and telephoned. After a while he went over to the table.

"Glad you like our city, boys; sorry to bother you, but you'll have to come over for a chat with the lieutenant," he said.

The men grinned and followed him out. They got no chance to jump him, because Peter's telephone message had brought men right there waiting.

They were the three gangsters from Detroit so badly needed as it turned out.

"It's a shame I had to take the credit, Marvin," Peter said a couple of days later. "But naturally you don't want any publicity. Now come across—how the devil and all did you spot them?"

"Very simple, Peter—childishly simple. Who ever knew of a real tough guy, gangster and gunman, who wasn't as full o' tawdry sentiment as a Swiss cheese is full of holes? They always weep. I asked for some sob stuff and seized up the crowd. Your three gangsters from Detroit were weeping rivulets."

"You're a wonder. Hope I can have you help me again some day."

"That's a promise, Peter," Delancy assured him.

Political Appointments

Lang Admits Bridge Supervisor Was Chosen Over His Protest.

The heads of city departments are compelled to accept politically-appointed friends of the administration on their staffs even though they may believe the chosen individuals to be unfitted for their jobs. This was shown yesterday when Public Works Director Lang admitted to Henry Oliver Evans that he had protested the appointment of William A. Herd as supervisor of bridges.

Herd is chairman of the Twenty-first Ward. Lang's only superior in the city administration is Mayor Kline.

Under the most searching of investigations Lang has shown that his department deserves a high rating in comparison to other city departments in the conduct of its business. It is a sad commentary on the state of our boss ridden city government, that the protest of a man of Lang's standing over an appointment is completely ignored.

Lang, who was being questioned during the City Council's investigation of the rubbish and garbage disposal system, attempted to minimize the effects of these political appointments when he declared:

"I said there were political appointments and there always will be. At times men are appointed who at first do not seem to be fitted for the job, but with time and a little common sense, they develop into good employes."

No private corporation trusts to luck that square pegs will eventually change to fit round holes and there is no reason why taxpayers should be forced to be complacent about inefficiency while political favorites are taking time to grow into their jobs—if they ever do develop to such an amazing extent.

It is a pity that able city department heads are compelled to turn their offices into training schools for incompetent politicians.

Utility Regulation

Governor's Bill to Create Fair Rate Board Passed By House.

Gov. Pinchot will be given an opportunity to carry out his campaign promises to improve public utility regulation, judging from the favorable action taken in the State House of Representatives on the bill to abolish the Public Service Commission, the bill creating a Fair Rate Board and a third measure giving the board authority over utility financing and the right to recapture excess earnings.

If the measures are passed by the Senate, the Public Service Commission, with its complacent attitude toward the doings of utility companies, will become a thing of the past and the Governor will be able to select aggressive men to supervise the organizations supplying electricity, gas, water and transportation to the citizens of this state. The new measures will also eliminate some of the cumbersome features of the older Public Service Commission law.

In his previous administration Gov. Pinchot attempted to rule the utilities with a firm hand, but was blocked in his efforts to replace members of the Public Service Commission with appointees chosen by himself.

If his plan to abolish the Public Service Commission is successful, the Governor will have the way cleared to prove his allegations that the power companies have been charging domestic consumers too high a rate and his new board will be able to correct such abuses where investigation shows that they actually exist.

Apportionment Advanced

Bill Realigning Congressional Districts Voted Out of House Committee.

The congressional reapportionment committee of the House in Harrisburg has voted to report for passage the Spangler bill for a realignment of congressional districts, with amendments drafted to cover the situation as it relates to Philadelphia. The bill reduces the number of congressional representatives from 36 to 34. The provisions of the bill relating to Allegheny County remain as originally drawn for the present, the problem of changes being left to the local delegation. Opportunity to amend the bill for this purpose will come later, either on the floor of the House or in committee, after it has passed first and second readings.

Necessity for redistricting the state is based on population changes revealed in the last census. The number of members of the House remains the same, consequently the average number of inhabitants for each district is increased. This number divides the population of Pennsylvania into 34 parts, which explains why our representation in Congress is reduced by two. Altogether 21 states lose 27 members and a total of 7 other states gain the same number, California alone gaining nine.

Pennsylvania still will rank second to New York in congressional representation. In the next 10 years we should have sufficient population growth to get back those two votes. Few other states have been endowed with natural advantages for industrial expansion such as we have. Intelligently cultivated they will mean greater population for our state.

Swamp to Be Reservoir

Pymatuning Dam Visioned as Impetus to River to Lake Canal Project.

With the signing of the Pymatuning reservoir bill by Gov. Pinchot assured, a problem affecting extensive area in Western Pennsylvania appears to have been solved.

For years the Pymatuning swamp in Mercer County has been a subject of legislative discussion. Now the swamp is to be drained into an artificial dam, which will control the flow of the Shenango and Beaver rivers.

Those who have been promoting a proposed Lake Erie-Ohio River Canal vision the reservoir as a possible feeder for such a waterway. Completion of it certainly should give impetus to that project, which would mean much to industry of this part of Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio.

Immediate benefits looked for are the control of floods in Beaver and Shenango valleys and the assurance of adequate maintenance of the rivers in them during periods of low water. What is now largely a waste will be made to serve useful purpose.

Construction of the dam will mean employment of a large number of men, estimated at 1,000 for a number of weeks, and up to 350 for nearly a year, the time estimated to be required for completion of the dam. And that certainly is some-

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Mrs. Solomon Says—

My daughter, how dear to the hearts of woman is a man that doeth no stunts, demandeth no limelight and seeketh no plaudits from his gallery.

Behold, since the beginning of time, woman hath been called "the vainer sex," and her weakness for flattery hath caused mirth in high places, and brought upon her the laughter of cynics.

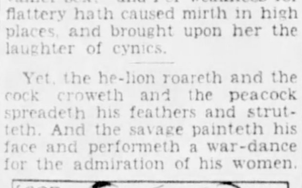
Yet, the he-lion roareth and the cock croweth and the peacock spreadeth his feathers and struteth. And the savage painteth his face and performeth a war-dance for the admiration of his women.

Likewise, the civilized man delighteth to array himself in gold braid and cocked hats, and to parade before the multitude at the spring "convention."

He driveth his gaudy sport-car beneath the window of his beloved, and soundeth the horn gustily, to attract her attention.

He doeth stunts in the air, and performeth feats upon the athletic field. He hath himself photographed with the fish he hath caught, and boasteth of the game he hath killed.

He rejoiceth to shine as a "spender" in the gay places. He squandereth his shekels upon wine and scattereth his moneys upon waiters and bus-boys. He delighteth to be called "highflyer" and "Broadway playboy!"



He decketh himself in radiant sweaters and passionate cravats for the conquest of women. He decorateth the piazza of the country club as a bright spot of color. He rivaleth the sunset.

He seeketh out a damsel and telleth her all ABOUT himself; he revealeth the height of his brow and the depths of his mighty intellect. He delighteth to TEACH her things, and to bestow his "advice" upon her. He regaleth her with his wit and his brilliant wisecracks.

And, woman smileth within her sleeve, and is filled with "wonder." She clappeth her hands, crying "Hear, hear!" She disappointeth him not.

For she knoweth that to admire him is her only "lure." To praise him is her only "enticement." And to glorify him is her only "witchery."

Yea, verily man is the SHOW-OFF of the sexes. And, when he seeketh a woman he seeketh not a rival, but an audience!

A COSMIC DILEMMA

By Archibald Henderson

The new conceptions of the finite universe, advanced by Einstein and De Sitter, embody the assumption that the universe is in equilibrium. Recent investigations, however, indicate that such an assumption leads to an incompatibility in results which cannot be escaped. Since the actual universe contains systematic velocities as evidenced by the extragalactic nebulae, this compels us to decide between Einstein's and De Sitter's universes in favor of the latter, the empty universe. But the total mass of all these same nebulae is such as to compel us to choose Einsten's universe. We cannot have it both ways; an empty universe and a static universe, since the latter can have no systematic motions which the actual universe has been shown to have.

Is there a way out of this dilemma? Yes; the way out has now been shown by Dr. G. Le Maitre, of the University of Louvain. The conclusion to be drawn from the above indicated fundamental incompatibility, is that the universe cannot be in equilibrium. Le Maitre took up the general equations of Einstein's theory and solved them for the case of a non-static universe. As it happens, the Le Maitre universe is finite, like the other two; is homogeneous and isotropic, which is convenient for the mathematician. Now, however, the radius varies with the time—an extraordinary conclusion.

Le Maitre thus arrives at a universe in unstable equilibrium. It cannot remain in equilibrium; it must either expand or contract. The question then is: Does it expand or does it contract? Since Humason and others have found these vast nebulae fleeing from us at enormous velocities, it is clear that the universe is expanding, and not contracting.

Let us imagine, then, our universe like a mighty soap bubble on which are tiny flecks of light representing the galactic systems. Now suppose the bubble to be slowly blown up. Then the mutual distances of these objects from each other will increase proportionately with the radius of the ball; and each of them will ascribe to all the others a receding velocity proportional to the distance.

Although we are able, on Le Maitre's assumption, to compute the mass and radius of the universe as it is now, we cannot know the law of its increase without additional knowledge regarding the past history of the universe. Le Maitre makes a definite choice, namely, that the universe started at some time in the remote past as a static universe.

The calculations give rise to results of very genuine interest. According to Le Maitre, the initial radius of the universe was a thousand million light years; and its total mass was originally, in grams, the number one followed by 55 ciphers. The present radius of the universe is computed to be at least three times the original radius. Unfortunately we cannot say that the universe has always been expanding. Perhaps it has alternated between expansions and contractions. Eddington computes that the universe has expanded by one part in 2,000 in the last million years.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Remember when you were about 13—

And no one, in all the world, understood you — 'n' everyone picked on you—

And you wisht you was dead?

Then all those old meanies would find you lying cold and still, with a sad, sweet, forgiving smile on your face . . . AND THEN MAYBE THEY'D BE SORRY, BUT IT WOULD BE TOO LATE!

Remember when you were 13 and felt like that? Remember also (bet you won't want to!) how many times you've felt like that since you were 13? For, though you're a big, grown-up girl or boy now—30 or 40 or 50 years old, instead of 13—it's dollars to doughnuts that you still have those wisht-I-was-dead spells. Not as often, perhaps—but when they do come, the symptoms are identical.

Things have been going on pretty well. You've been working hard—behaving yourself. But all the time, you've been accumulating a sort of rash inside your soul. Then one day, it gets too much for you—and you bust loose into a regular orgy of self-pity.

You're mad at everyone. You don't want to see anyone ever again. You don't do your regular chores. You refuse dates. You can't eat. There's only one thing that you wish to do . . . YOU WANT TO SIT DOWN AND BE SORRY FOR YOURSELF. So you do that. You stop trying to be polite or helpful or self-controlled and you abandon yourself to gobs 'n' gobs of gloom.

You think what a great, noble, generous, golden-hearted Human you are and how nobody appreciates you. You think of all the terrible things that have happened to you and all the dirt that's been done you. And how ribly sorry. BUT IT WILL BE TOO LATE!

And all the time—while you're thinking these things—what is really happening? Are your friends missing you? Is the world's work stopping because you have jumped your job? Is everyone convulsed with sorrow and remorse because you have removed yourself from circulation? No, gentle reader, they are not. No one's missing you. They are, indeed, secretly relieved that you've taken yourself and your grouch out of the picture. You're a Great Guy when you're regular and they love you—but you're a Pain in the Neck when you start pitying yourself. And as for the world's work, it's rolling on per usual. For, shocking as the fact may seem there are thousands of people who can take your place.

That's the truth. And, when you come out of your tantrum, you'll acknowledge it . . . you'll see quite plainly, that you've hurt only yourself. Then why do you throw these fits? You try to say it's because you were hurt, but you know that isn't the real reason. ACTUALLY, YOU INDULGE IN SELF-PITY BECAUSE YOU WANT MORE ATTENTION THAN YOU'RE GETTING. You're tired, maybe—or lonesome—or just plain ornery. You want to be coddled. You want people to flock around you and make a fuss about you and kiss your tears away. And they won't. So you make a fuss over yourself. And you get a Big Bang out of thinking that you are the world's worst sufferer.

WHY IS SELF-PITY? THAT'S WHY.

P. S.—How do I know you act like that? Listen, stranger I act that way myself!

Wise Words

Such is the patriot's boast, where'er we roam,
His first, best country ever is at home. —Goldsmith.

We take cunning for a sinister and crooked wisdom, and certainly there is a great difference between a cunning man and a wise man, not only in point of honesty but in point of ability.—Bacon.

Power shows the man.—Pittachus.

It is only by labor that thought can be made healthy, and only by thought that labor can be made happy, and the two cannot be separated with impunity.—Ruskin.

I look upon indolence as a sort of suicide; for the man is effectually destroyed, though the appetite of the brute may survive.—Chesterfield.

Text for Today He hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalteth them of low degree. He hath filled the hungry with good things; and the rich he hath sent empty away.—Luke, 1:52.

A Great Monstrosity

THE "GREAT SCULPTOR," JACOB EPSTEIN, BESIDE HIS LATEST "GREAT WORK," CALLED "GENESIS."

Every important art publication in the world has printed a picture of this terrific and most hideously ugly picture, of a gigantic, misshapen savage woman, carved by Jacob Epstein, called by many the greatest living sculptor.

Frankly, we consider him the creator of the greatest monstrosities known to history. But, de gustibus non disputandum, as the old Roman matron said when she kissed the cow. We do not pretend to condemn the tastes of others.

This statue is not named for the first book of the Bible. "Genesis" was chosen because it comes, as you well know, from the Greek gignomai, which means to become in other words, this lady represents creation.

You would hate to think about what she probably would create.

We print it because it proves there are 10,000 ways of succeeding. You can make a magnificent woman, like the Venus of Milo, the most powerful of all statues, Michelangelo's Moses, the "Thinker" of Rodin, or the incomparable "Winged Victory Samothrace."

You can even make this horror, succeed and have your picture in the papers. And a lot of poor simpletons, that have no opinions of their own, will say: "It must be wonderful, or he wouldn't have made it."

Mrs. "Genesis" is hideous, a crime against art, at least from our bourgeois point of view.

In fact if all the art magazines had not published it, we wouldn't dare print it here.

We only put it before your wondering eyes to emphasize a great and important lesson.

IF YOU TRY HARD ENOUGH AND SINCERELY, NO MATTER HOW, YOU WILL SUCCEED.

One way to try is to read carefully the Classified Advertising of all kinds that you will find in this paper, look for your opportunity THERE.

Some, like Epstein, MAY carve success out of soft clay or hard marble. The average must carve success out of hard work, and ceaseless vigil.

READ THE CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING OF THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH EACH DAY.

P. S. On second thought after an editorial discussion we have decided that we, as custodians of public morals, DARE not print the "Genesis" lady full length as Epstein presents her to the public. So the Art Department has painted a nightgown on her, from the neck down.

When you look at this head, ugly as it is, we beg to tell you, in the words of the poet, "You haven't seen anything yet."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 30.—When the old Waldorf gave up the ghost and the curb lines of drooping cabbies were forced to seek new evening stands, the metropolitan press heaved a collective sigh for the passing of the horse and gig. They have gone the way of the bay-windowed brown stone fronts.

Only a small group huddled northward near the plaza entrance to Central Park. But their future seemed as shabby as the fading green of their liveried coats. Their cry, honeyed with unction: "Kerridge, sir!" had lost its appeal. The mad motor age exacted the final toil.

To those of us for whom the two-wheeled hansom cab with its driver perched high in the rear was a pleasant recollection, the passing was a sentimental wrench. Fifth avenue did not seem quite the same. To many they offered the only distinguishing difference between New York and any other city.

So it is nice to chronicle that for some reason—the market crash is as good as any—the hansom and the Victoria have received a new spurt of popularity. As a means of leisurely metropolitan transportation the comeback is noticeable on all the smart thoroughfares.

The ancient drivers with empurpled noses and patent leather plug hats have taken new heart. Horses turned out to pasture are back in their stalls and curried to a new sleekness. Harness and other trappings are freshly oiled and red wheels spin among the limousines.

People are not only using barouches, hansoms and Victoria for sentimental swings around the park and on Riverside Drive, but to and from the theater and opera. Debutantes pull up in front of restaurants in them. The hansom, by the way, was named for J. A. Hansom, English inventor.

When I came to New York it was the berries to sit on the verandah of the old Savoy at dinner or lunch and languidly gaze out on the passing panorama—the bobbing sun parasols, the clop of lacquered hooves, clinking silver chains. No one since has attained the imperious hauteur of those immobile grooms and footmen. Afterward one strolled southward and through the curtained windows of the Vanderbilts, the Goulds, the Goelets and the Twombleys were glittering chandeliers sparking in the crackle of open fires. As J. Brooks Atkinson says in one of his elegant essays hummed. * * *

It was a vivid city. Thin

Today the city does not hum. It splits the air with deafening crashes. As the leading slammer in a door-slamming family I find my efforts entirely futile. In fit of anger it is my wont to go through the house practicing my art. But in all the noisy hubbub it is completely lost. It is like dropping blotters on a pi of feathers. * * *

In fact a piano tuner in the next room no longer beflusters. used to be when he got hold of note and tried to ping it into har mony I had to push away the typewriter and take the air. Bu today the Bounding McGuires ca practice on my desk and work such as it is, goes on as usual.

It is said Alexander Woolcott gave up dramatic reviewing be cause, after many years of it, h could no longer sit through a show. He has not lost a liking for the theater and attends regularly, but in a professional ca pacity he found it something els again.

EAST BOROUGH ELECTION OFFICIALS NAMED

E. Pittsburgh Asks County Park

TRACT NEAR NEW BRIDGE OFFERED

Commissioners Urged to Act Promptly; Borough Asks $100,000 for Property

County Commissioners today are awaiting a requested appraisal by county real estate experts of the land on either side of the approach to the George Westinghouse Bridge in East Pittsburgh Borough.

Attorney Harold M. Irons, representing a delegation of borough residents, appeared Tuesday and suggested to the commissioners that since they had taken the better part of the former borough park for the bridge approach they should now buy the remainder and convert it into a county park.

ACTION URGED

L. M. Beck, chairman of the Borough Council's finance committee, requested the commissioners to take prompt action as the borough is badly in need of money. He explained that the county would not lose any revenue in the requested purchase as the site had never been in the tax column.

Irons declared that while the county took only two acres for the bridge approach, the remainder of the eight-acre tract was unfit for playground purposes in its present condition due to the recurrent earth slides in the fill.

VALUATION CONFIRMED

Irons said the borough was asking about $100,000 for the site, based on the purchase price when the land was bought by the borough from the East Wilkinsburg Improvement Company.

The market value of the site was confirmed by M. T. Gorham, real estate broker of East Pittsburgh.

AMITY CROSSING LIGHT FAVORED

Removal of a watchman by the Pittsburgh Railways Company from the Amity street railroad crossing in Homestead and substitution of a light system today was unopposed.

No protest to the proposed change was entered at a hearing yesterday before the Public Service Commission in the City-County Building. The initial hearing was held before Commissioner Charles H. Young.

The change would result in the installation of a modern manually controlled trolley contact system, railway officials testified. Additional safety would result from the system, J. M. Loftis, superintendent of transportation, testified.

A man in the Pennsylvania Railroad tower would control the street car movements, it was pointed out. A light signal would be installed at the crossing, which would show purple at all times. This color would stop each car. A clear crossing would result in the tower man throwing a white light as a signal to the motorman to proceed. As the car reached a point on the crossing, an automatic contact would throw the signal purple.

C. F. Montague, supervisor of the Pennsylvania Railroad, said the method would provide additional safety. He testified there are 410 trolley movements and 87 train movements on the crossing daily.

CHILD HEALTH FETE TO OPEN IN OAKLAND

Mothers to Hear Lectures, Tots to Be Entertained In Program for Tomorrow

Child health subjects for mothers and educational entertainment for children will feature the Children's Health Festival tomorrow in the Y. M. & W. H. A. Building, Bellefield avenue, Oakland.

Invitation has been extended to mothers to attend the all-day program opening at 10 a. m. and continuing until 6 p. m. A play room will be provided, with four trained nurses in charge, where smaller children will be entertained with games and stories while mothers attend the series of lectures.

FIVE LECTURES

The first lecture is scheduled at 10:45 a. m., when Mrs. Francis D. Tyson will speak on "Family Limitations and Child Welfare." Dr. B. B. Wechsler will be heard on "Pre-Natal Care" beginning at 11:30 a. m. "Pre-School Reading" will be the subject of Mrs. F. S. Follansbee beginning at 2 o'clock. Miss Ella Ruth Boyce, head of Pittsburgh public school kindergartens, will explain that department and its purpose at 2:30 o'clock. "Prevention of Deafness" will be discussed by Miss Emma Kessler at 3 o'clock.

Efforts to teach children the value of milk, fruit and vegetables will be presented in two puppet shows at 3:15 o'clock. These are entitled, "Why the Cow Jumped Over the Moon" and "The King of the Pearly Mountains." Children of school age will be entertained with a motion picture at 4 o'clock by Miss Etta Glick, educational director, Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh.

VAUDEVILLE PROGRAM

A vaudeville program will begin at 4:30 o'clock. This will include a song and tap dance by Beatrice Polk; garden dance by Jeanne Smith; song by Eleanor Garfinkle; impersonations by "Davie" Carey; toe and tap dance by Betsy Levy, songs by Robert Harris; acrobatic number by Ruth Golomb and two "Y" group numbers. The day's program closes with a juvenile health parade.

Booths will depict the five senses and games will be conducted to portray their uses and values. An educational booth for mothers is to be another feature. Mrs. Charles L. Reizenstein is general chairman.

Pitcairn District Golf Club Organized

Pitcairn district golfers will have their own club this season with formation of the Westinghouse Valley Golf Club, which expects to open the season May 15.

Lease has been obtained on the McMaster Farm about three miles from Pitcairn on the William Penn Highway in Patton Township. A nine-hole sand-grass course will be improved.

While officers of the new club have not been elected, pending the time when the membership reached the tentative limit of 100, Attorney John C. McGinnis has been named temporary chairman. Dr. Ford B. Craig is acting treasurer. McGinnis announced the membership fee will be conservative.

The club proposed to build a small clubhouse. The course will occupy about 80 acres of the 260-acre farm. The course was in operation last year as a public links. Gerald McMasters is in charge of improving the course of the club activities.

Billy Bullwinkle, professional at Aliquippa, will serve the club as professional. McGinnis today announced the membership has reached 40.

Wilkinsburg Garden Plea Made to Aid Jobless

Appeal to owners of vacant ground in Wilkinsburg for use as gardens by the unemployed of the borough was issued today by the Women's Civic Club of Wilkinsburg.

Likewise, householders were urged to beautify lawns and yards. The plans have been announced as a follow-up to the borough's clean-up drive in an effort to make Wilkinsburg a prettier residential town, according to Mrs. Harry Walker, chairman of the better home and welfare committee of the club.

Plans to aid the unemployed through providing garden space have resulted in some vacant lots already being offered to the club. Work in giving the ground over to worthy cases is carried on through the Wilkinsburg Relief Association. The club is serving as a clearing house for property owners willing to turn their lots over to relief work, offers being received by Mrs. Walker at Penhurst 0447.

A committee meeting is expected to be called within a week, at which time plans will be discussed for obtaining funds to aid unemployed to obtain seeds in cases where such assistance is necessary.

WESTINGHOUSE SCHOOL ENDS SESSION

Banquet in Wilkinsburg Hotel Marks Close of Company's April Classes for Employes

A banquet for members of the April Commercial School of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel, Wilkinsburg, will close the current session tonight.

The students, graduates of 20 colleges and universities in 25 states, have followed a sales course embracing salesmanship, business policies of the company, headquarters departmental activities, history, letter writing, contracts, claims, credits, price policy and other company analyses. The present scholastic session had been in progress for two weeks and concludes a 10-month term.

Mr. Davis

Speakers for the banquet will be R. R. Davis, editor-in-chief of the Westinghouse advertising department; Barton Stevenson, central station manager of the central district which embraces Pittsburgh; C. S. Coler, manager of the educational department; T. H. B. Whipple, literary critic; T. A. McDowell, supervisor of development headquarters sales.

E. V. Ellis, of the California Institute of Technology, is chairman of the banquet committee. Other members of the committee are J. J. Nelson, of Salt Lake City; W. F. Frank, of Carnegie Institute of Technology, and N. C. Oliver, of Dunwoody Institute, New York.

Pat Malone to End Evangelistic Meet

A series of evangelistic services by the Irish evangelist, Pat Malone, will close Sunday night at the First Swedish Baptist Church, Brushton. Nightly services have been conducted since last Friday.

MOOSE CONFER DEGREE

A one-man degree team initiated a large class at the East Liberty Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, while several visiting officials were guest speakers Sunday afternoon.

The initiation was part of a six-week campaign for new members, with Harry Snavely as general chairman, assisted by Gregor Betts and E. B. Laird. Speakers at the meeting were David Davis, Perry Shanor, Simon Merkel and Prof. William McGowan.

Degrees were given by N. D. Thomas, composing a one-man degree team. Mr. Thomas, who is blind, handled the ceremonies without assistance. The membership campaign is being conducted from the lodge headquarters, 117 Shady avenue. A second initiation will be held for postal workers of the East Liberty branch on May 10.

Veterans to See Tech Students Give 'Macbeth'

Members of the Maj. John Baird Atwood Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Oakland, will view a special presentation of "Macbeth" in the Little Theater of the Carnegie Institute of Technology. The production will be staged by drama students for post members and friends.

Pitt Club to Hold First Formal Dance

The first formal dance of the Physical Education Club, University of Pittsburgh, will be held at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association May 15. Arranging the spring program are Alice Eibeck, chairman; Dorothy Lee, Claire Cryder, Estelle Woods, Jane McNamara, Gretchen Brooks, Lillian Hoar, Martha Pearce, Virginia Negley, Mary Kovacs and Isabelle Murphy.

LEGION SHOW IN SWISSVALE

Immediate relief for unemployed World War veterans will be provided by funds raised through the presentation of "Three Live Ghosts" by the Sketch Club under auspices of the Daniel W. Brooks Post, American Legion, in the Swissvale High School auditorium next Wednesday and Thursday.

The Legion committee headed by Allen F. Koch and including Burgess W. T. Pyle, Walter Tomlinson, John L. Allen and Dr. H. S. Kopsofsky, is being assisted in the presentation by Mrs. Charles O'Baker and Mrs. Victor J. Greene. The following organizations are cooperating: Swissvale Philanthropic Society, Catholic Daughters of America, Child's Conservation League, Women's Club of Swissvale, Busy Bees, Order of Eastern Star, Sons of Italy, Legion Auxiliary, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Parent-Teacher's Association of Regent Square.

Proceeds will be used by the Legion post to improve the post home, employing only needy ex-service men. The Swissvale Chamber of Commerce has pledged its support to the program.

Missionary Society At Birthday Party

A birthday party was held by the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Whitaker Methodist Episcopal Church, Saturday night, with Mrs. Ruth Poad in charge of the program. Proceeds from the affair went to the thank-offering.

Serving on the committee on arrangements were Mrs. Bertha Dunlap, Mrs. William Cox, Mrs. George Orris, Mrs. Ruth Clowes, Mrs. William Strang, Mrs. F. A. Orris, Miss Agnes Lindsey, Mrs. A. Maze, Mrs. C. Morris, Mrs. J. P. Jackson, Mrs. A. Durst and Mrs. L. Wilding.

Wilkinsburg School Holding Guest Night

Wilkinsburg will be guest of a Community Night at the Wilkinsburg senior high school Tuesday night when special programs and classes will be viewed. The school orchestra and band will participate with musical offerings and a fashion show will be held by the home economics department. Other features are being arranged to acquaint the citizens with activities in the school. Members of the school board will meet visitors during the evening.

Study Club Guests In Lincoln Place

A talk on home decorations was given by Mrs. M. Redenbaugh. Assisting in the program were Mrs. Samuel Johnson, leader; Mrs. Robert Stock, Mrs. William Elwell, Mrs. Reuben Hallam, Mrs. Paul Rogers, Mrs. James King and Mrs. Thomas Stewart.

Church Class Meets In Homestead Park

Fake Rug Peddlers Canvassing in East Liberty

East Liberty district residents were warned today to be cautious of Oriental rugs being offered by peddlers, complaints having reached the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce. Executive Secretary Patrick Flood declared rugs being offered as of Oriental origin are cotton imitations. Many residents are known to have purchased these rugs, he added, but efforts to apprehend the salesmen failed.

SCOUT DRIVE ON IN HOMESTEAD

Annual budget campaign of the Homestead District Council of Boy Scouts was in its second day today, with James E. Lose, superintendent of the Carnegie Steel mill, as general chairman.

The campaign, which opened Tuesday night with a dinner for 50 majors and captains, will close with a victory dinner May 4. Bert F. Kline, president of the Scout Council, was host to the workers the opening night at a dinner in Bier's restaurant. Civic and business leaders compose the campaign officers.

ARLISS, ROGERS AND CHAPLIN IN EAST END SCREEN FEATURES

M'DONALD, PENNER HEAD ENRIGHT STAGE SHOW

Three outstanding stars George Arliss, Will Rogers and Charlie Chaplin, grace the East End district theater screens next week with a galaxy of featured players in late photoplay successes.

The George Arliss production "The Millionaire" opens at the Enright Theater, East Liberty, tomorrow. The famous actor of stage and screen is presented in a romantic comedy role. The stage will offer Brian McDonald's revue "Spring Follies" featuring Joe Penner, and Hunter and Percival.

ROWLAND

A screen version of the current book success, "Millie," opens the Rowland Theater, Wilkinsburg, offering of the week, showing the first two days, Warner Baxter and Joan Bennett co-star in "Doctors' Wives." Wednesday and Thursday, "The Naughty Flirt," features Alice White on Friday and "Fifty Million Frenchmen" is Saturday's attraction.

SCHENLEY

"Doctors' Wives" is booked Monday and Tuesday at the Schenley Theater, Oakland. It is followed by Charlie Chaplin's latest picture, "City Lights," on Wednesday and Thursday. "Millie" on Friday and "Fifty Million Frenchmen" Saturday.

ARSENAL

The first two days' offering at the Arsenal Theater, Lawrenceville, will be "The Last Parade." The next two days' attraction will be "My Past" followed by Ben Lyon and Ona Munson in "Hot Heiress" on Friday and "Fifty Million Frenchmen" Saturday.

MANOR

"Millie" moves into the Manor Theater, Squirrel Hill, for Monday and Tuesday. "Doctors' Wives" will be featured Wednesday and Thursday. "The Last Parade" on Friday and "The Great Meadow," Saturday.

REGENT

PLAZA

Bloomfield theatergoers will be offered "My Past" on Monday and Tuesday at the Plaza Theater. "The Last Parade" has been booked for Wednesday and Thursday, "Girls Demand Excitement" for Friday, and "Hot Heiress" closing the week Saturday.

BELMAR

Will Rogers stars at the Belmar Theater, Homewood, the first two days in "Connecticut Yankee." Wednesday and Thursday brings "Millie." Friday presents "My Past," and Saturday, "Not Exactly Gentlemen."

CAMERAPHONE

Two three-day pictures have been booked for the Cameraphone Theater, East Liberty. The first half of the week offers Bebe Daniels in "My Past." The last half booking is "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," screen version of the stage success.

2 HEALTH FETES IN PITCAIRN

Two Child Health Day programs will be presented by the Pitcairn public schools tomorrow, the lower grades participating during the afternoon, and students of higher grade appearing at night.

The afternoon program, beginning at 2 p. m. for children and parents, will be held in the high school gymnasium. It will include a May Pole dance, crowning of a May Queen, songs and drills.

Two playlets will be presented at the school auditorium at 8 p. m. for parents. This program includes the presentation of "The Trial of Johnnie Jones" and "On Board the S. S. Health." A tableaux will also be offered by sixth grade pupils.

WILSON HEADS CHAMBER

Walter J. Wilson, Jr., today heads the Homestead District Chamber of Commerce, installation taking place Tuesday night at a reception for new and retiring officers.

The election occurred Monday morning, when the new and remaining directors met at the chamber headquarters. Mr. Wilson is assistant secretary of the Monongahela Trust Company.

Other officers named were: First vice president, W. R. Smyth; second, Burgess John Cavanaugh; third, W. H. Packer; treasurer, John P. McConegly; councillor to the national chamber, Port Eckles, and state councillor, John W. Hensler.

Two newly elected directors presented resignations at the meeting, explaining business pressure prevented carrying duties of the office. They were Leo J. Half and John Forbes. Two members named to their places were Howard Braun and Joseph A. Hensler.

Committee appointments and new business will be taken up at the next meeting, Executive Secretary F. H. Leushner said.
